Finns Battle Russian Parachute Troops

MEN FROM SKY SHOT AS THEY DRIFT TO EARTH

Soviets Drop Bombs on Many Cities.

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 2 (AP).—A bizarre and mighty Red army onslaught "in the shape of things to come" tonight sent parachute troops, strange steel roofed sledges, and smoke screen laying tanks against the unyielding defenses of Finland's Mannerheim line.

While the eerie battle on the Karelian isthmus raged, more than 20 new civilian deaths from air raids, far behind the fighting lines, brought the week's total of bomb victims in homes, hospitals and other buildings to nearly 100—at the cost of at least 35 soviet planes shot down within the same period.

The second day of the Russian offensive on the Karelian isthmus got nowhere, Finnish military advices asserted. The attack is directed at Viipuri, an objective 20 miles distant which the Russians have been unable to reach in nine weeks of war.

Picked Off in the Air.

Many of the parachute troops, dropped in coveys from dozens of planes, were picked off in the air by sharpshooters or machine gun fire. Those who landed behind the Finnish lines became separated from their fellow soldiers, stumbled about, and began shooting wildly, only to be captured or killed by the Finns. They carried automatic rifles to the ground with them.

While this ill-fated aerial expedition was being disposed of, dozens of Russian tanks again began moving toward the Finnish positions in the Summa sector of the Mannerheim line.

Push Armored Sledges.

The larger tanks pushed armored sledges ahead of them. The sledges were about 10 feet long and 6 feet wide, protected from above and on the sides by heavy metal plating. Machine gunners filled the sledges, protecting both the tanks and the closely packed ranks of infantry which followed.

On the flanks smaller tanks moved rapidly across the snows, billowing smoke columns thru which the troops sought to maneuver. All the tanks zigzagged in an effort to confuse the Finns. The Finns, however, were not to be misled.

Work from Concealed Positions.

Their antitank guns stopped most of the armored sledges and, from concealed positions, they said they were able to repulse the other measures of attack. There was no estimate of casualties.

The isthmus attack, a frontal smash at the Mannerheim line, had another purpose—to relieve disorganized and stalled soviet divisions which attempted to flank the line north of Lake Ladoga, but succeeded, the Finns say, merely in working themselves into dangerous pockets.

Tonight's Finnish communique said the Finns had repulsed Red army attempts to cross the ice of Lake Ladoga and take Finnish held fortified islands off the north shore.

Bomb Southern Finland.

The devastating air raids were directed at southern Finland. Pori, on the southwest coast, was one of the centers most heavily hit, with 10 dead and dozens wounded.

One person was killed at Rauma, also on the southwest coast. Several were killed at Pieksaemaki, and heavy damage was inflicted on Kotka and Kuopio. One church was badly damaged by the raiders. Several soviet bombers were shot down just outside Helsingfors.

At Pori one bomb fell thru a red cross painted on the roof of an eight story hospital. Finnish officials gave orders recently for the removal of all Red Cross emblems, saying they had been the target of constant attacks, but the Pori hospital had not yet complied, choosing to await the decision of the international headquarters of the Red Cross at Geneva.

In a Suburban Area.

The hospital lies in a suburban area. A squadron of some 18 planes dropped tons of bombs on its premises and set fire to a nurses' dormitory near by. Heavy casualties were

HORNER CABINET SPLIT; CAMPAIGN BOSS BANISHED

G. O. P. Rally Hails Lyons and Brooks.

Smoking hot developments split the preprimary political horizons of both the Republican and Democratic parties in Illinois last night. They were:

1. DEMOCRATIC: In Springfield, F. Lynden Smith, Gov. Henry Horner's campaign manager in the past and head of the powerful public works department, was told to take a vacation in Florida until after the April 9 primary. Smith's friends immediately declared that Smith was being banished because he had advised the governor that he was too ill to make a third term campaign.

2. REPUBLICAN: At a packed and enthusiastic meeting marking the opening of the joint Brooks-Lyons headquarters in the Hotel Sherman, with impressive organization support about him, Richard J. Lyons laid down for himself two golden rules of conduct in his campaign for the governorship. One was that he will do nothing to weaken the Republican party. The other was that he will confine his efforts to getting "Hornerism" out of the statehouse.

CAMPAIGNERS DROP SMITH

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2 [Special].—Members of Gov. Horner's inner administrative circle disclosed tonight that F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works, would not be permitted to take an active part in the primary compaign this spring.

Friends of Smith said plain speaking on his part and friction with other Horner leaders—State Finance Director Sam Nudelman and Charles K. Schwartz of the state tax commission—made any healing of the breach improbable, at least during the spring and fall political campaigns.

The break between Smith and the circle close to the governor came when Smith frankly told the governor that Horner's physical condition was too bad to permit him to make a strong campaign and win it, and that if he persisted in the race Smith's support would be withheld.

Report Horner Offended.

It was said that the governor, offended by Smith's stand, conferred with his advisers, who retorted that Smith, as a result of recent political developments, was "too hot" to keep among the leadership.

Smith then was advised to take another long vacation with pay [he returned recently from a month in Florida]. Friends of Smith said last night that he would do this, adding that under the circumstances he would stick to his stand on Horner altho it may entail the risk of loss of his cabinet post.

The loss of Smith will, in the opinion of some observers, make Gov. Horner's task more difficult. Smith has been an energetic worker for the Horner cause and in 1936 was the governor's downstate campaign manager. The Illinoisans, an organization formed to collect 2 per cent levies from state employés—the money being used for campaign purposes—was headed by him. His handling of this activity of late has got unfavorable publicity for the governor, however.

Patrol Scandal Cited.

Disclosures last fall that the Illinoisans were forcing the state's civil service workers to contribute constituted one of the reasons that make Smith, in the eyes of Nudelman and his group, "too hot." Another reason was the scandal, recently brought out, concerning the appointment to the state police force of John Howe.

It was shown that Howe once was arrested on charges of robbery and was released on a plea that he was insane. His past came out when he was arrested in connection with efforts to bribe a juror in a vote fraud case. Since then he has been adjudged sane and is to be prosecuted on the robbery charge.

After dodging the responsibility for weeks, Smith finally took full responsibility for the Howe appointment and declined to tell who had sponsored the policeman. This belated action made no hit with the governor and the clique which has

Plan Federal Attack on City Building Code

Federal officials are planning an attack on the city's new building code, it was disclosed yesterday in Washington. The proposed action is an outgrowth of the grand jury inquiry into all forms of trade restraints in the building industry in this area.

Government attorneys have been told that the Chicago building code, adopted by the city council last year after a decade of wrangling among special interest groups, imposes unreasonable and outmoded restrictions which bar low cost building.

Government a Property Owner.

When asked about the plan to attack the code Leo F. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general, who is in charge of antitrust prosecutions in this area, said the government as a property owner on a par with individual home owners and builders can proceed against the code in federal court. Action in Chicago, it was indicated, probably will assume nation wide proportions because codes in other sections have been found to contain provisions that add materially to the cost of building.

"Building codes thruout the United States, as well as in Chicago, are believed to act as trade barriers, causing increased costs of building," Tierney asserted. "The government, thru subsidiary agencies, owns considerable real estate and is the likely victim of increased building costs which burden taxpayers. I plan to suggest that the antitrust division of the department of justice and such other governmental agencies coöperate in bringing suits in Chicago and any other places that seem proper.

"The burden to taxpayers is in the repair of their properties by reason of arbitrary local building restrictions. The object of the suits would be to have declared arbitrary, unreasonable, and capricious, and therefore unconstitutional, the building restrictions adding to the costs of repair and construction of homes."

Acquired Thru Foreclosures.

Thru foreclosures on HOLC mortgages, the government has acquired more than 1,000 properties in Chicago, records show. Before most of these can be resold they must be repaired. Contractors doing this work are bound by the same provisions that affect the average citizen.

It is estimated that the added repair expense to the HOLC, resulting from code requirements, totals thousands of dollars of government money in Chicago alone. The savings to taxpayers and home owners thruout the country, should the government be successful in forcing local communities to relax their building restrictions, would amount to several million dollars per year, it is said.

The revision of the Chicago building code last year was the first since 1911. Most of the work was done by a commission of experts appointed by Mayor Kelly. Many of the innovations designed to reduce construction costs which were approved by the commission were killed by members of the city council before adoption.

WASHINGTON'S HOME OF CHILDHOOD DAYS TO BE SOLD ON BLOCK

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 2 (AP).—George Washington's boyhood home, Ferry farm, will be sold at public auction tomorrow to settle the estate of the late J. B. Colbert.

The sale will be made by three commissioners acting under decree of the Stafford Circuit court. The 470 acre farm lies across the Rappahannock river from Fredericksburg. The only original structure of Washington's time which remains is a small frame building used as his surveyor's office.

Washington lived on the farm from the age of 7 years until manhood. It was on Ferry farm that he performed the legendary feats of chopping down the cherry tree and hurling a silver dollar across the Rappahannock river.

CHARLEY TRIES, BUT WAUKEGAN STILL HAS HIM

Charles R. Wilson, 56 years old, a transient, was released from custody by Waukegan police yesterday and told to get out of town. The police didn't specify how.

So he went to the outskirts of the city and stood on the tracks of the North Western railroad. Nonchalantly he held his thumb aloft for a hitchhike ride as the Chicago bound "400" flyer came roaring down the tracks.

Getting Your Shoes Fixed Costly Project in England

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 2.—It costs more in this country to get shoes heeled and soled. The board of trade has just authorized a 10 per cent increase in the charge to shoemakers, which follows an earlier 10 per cent boost, also levied since the war started.

Scotch Women Trail Wagons; Plead for Coal

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Housewives carrying pails followed coal trucks in the streets of Glasgow today and appealed for supplies to replenish stocks used up during the coal famine which struck the city when severe weather disrupted transportation. Members of the house of commons said some coal now was reaching the city from neighboring mines.

For days many houses in the working class districts have been without coal fires and Mayor Patrick J. Dollan of Glasgow appealed to householders to use electricity and gas fires as much as possible so that those most in need could obtain the small supplies on hand.

Tells of Plight.

Glasgow's plight was told in a telegram Mayor Dollan sent to the minister of mines. He complained against the shortage and said that two-thirds of the population live in one and two room tenements, which have no facilities for storing coal. They buy their supplies from day to day in small quantities, he said, and urged that stocks be maintained.

Retail coal merchants in Scotland are being hard pressed by their customers and many of them are selling a mixture of coal and coke at 45 cents for a 100 pound bag.

Crowd Coal Offices.

Housewives also are crowding the offices of fuel overseers clamoring for special licenses to enable them to buy coal from any merchant and not necessarily the one with whom they are registered. Most of these special licenses are useless, however, because many merchants have no coal to sell.

In London coal rationing is on a basis of 200-weight [about 224 pounds] a week for every family.

Coast Guard Cutters Will Report Weather on Atlantic

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—U. S. coast guard officials said today they were inaugurating a new weather patrol service between Bermuda and the Azores to replace reporting service which formerly came from ships of now belligerent nations. Commander John S. Baylis, chief of staff of the New York Coast Guard division, said the cutters Duane and Bibb would take sea positions soon to wireless reports on storm movements and other information formerly assembled from reports of trans-Atlantic ships.

Story of Dies Plot Dinner Is Told to House

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Further details of the communist conspiracy to discredit the Dies committee investigating un-American activities were revealed to the house tonight with the unfolding of the story of a stag dinner given by the plotters for six congressmen.

The facts regarding the dinner, based on evidence gathered by the Dies committee, were presented to the house by Representative Joe Starnes [D., Ala.]. Starnes is acting chairman of the committee in the absence of its regular chairman, Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], who is ill at his home in Texas.

According to Starnes' story, the host at the stag dinner, held on Jan. 16, was Gardner Jackson. Jackson is a lobbyist for Labor's Non-Partisan league, the political action offspring of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Linked to La Follette Group.

According to evidence previously received by the Dies committee, Jackson was the moving spirit behind the creation of the civil liberties committee of the senate headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin radical. The creation of this committee, to harass and smear employers opposed by the C. I. O., was planned four years ago at a dinner at the Cosmos club of Washington, arranged by Jackson and attended by Lewis, La Follette, and a dozen or so other left wingers.

Harold Weisberg, one of Jackson's associates in the plot to smear the Dies committee, is a former employé of the La Follette committee. He told the Dies committee at a closed session that he edited some of the reports of the La Follette committee. He denied that he was discharged by the La Follette committee for divulging unpublished committee information to the Daily Worker, official organ of the communist party.

Hook Among Guests.

The stag dinner given by Jackson in his home here on Jan. 16 was attended by Representatives William H. Larrabee [D., Ind.], John M. Coffee [D., Wash.], Robert Ramspeck [D., Ga.], Abe Murdock [D., Utah], Joseph E. Casey [D., Mass.], a member of the Dies committee, and Frank E. Hook [D., Mich.]. Also present at the dinner were Weisberg and James Weschler, associate editor of the Nation, a left wing magazine.

Hook is the man who introduced into the Congressional Record documents, later proved to be forgeries, which sought to link Representative Dies with William Dudley Pelley, head of the Silver Shirt legion, an anti-Semitic organization.

Three of Six Absolved.

The Dies committee absolved three of the six congressmen present at the dinner given by Jackson from any complicity in the conspiracy after hearing their testimony in executive session today. They were Representatives Larrabee, Coffee, and Ramspeck.

A fourth member, Murdock, was out of town and could not be heard by the Dies committee. However, Casey, a member of the Dies committee, and Hook, who made the charges against Chairman Dies, spurned the committee's invitation to appear and tell their stories.

Representative Starnes told the house tonight that "there was no collusion whatsoever" on the part of "these three gentlemen who appeared before the committee today." Besides repeatedly exonerating "these three gentlemen"—meaning Larrabee, Ramspeck, and Coffee—Starnes also said there was no evidence of any complicity on the part of Representative Murdock. Thus by elimination he made it conspicuously plain that he was not exonerating Hook and Casey.

Casey Poses Question.

When he had concluded his statement, Casey sarcastically propounded what he called a parliamentary inquiry—whether members of the house hereafter may not attend "private dinner parties without being investigated by the Dies committee." Speaker William B. Bankhead commented scornfully that it was not a parliamentary inquiry.

According to the story told the committee, Jackson invited the congressmen without giving any indication of the purpose of the meeting. After a general fireside conversation over a few drinks, Weisberg brought up the subject of the Dies committee and there was talk about the possibility of defeating the resolution then pending for its continuance. Two or three of the congressmen present said the resolution would be passed overwhelmingly and that they intended to vote for it. Then Weisberg produced his documents which, he

HOUSE IGNORES ROOSEVELT; 67 MILLION SLASH

Backer of Defeated Loan Plan Weeps.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The house of representatives late tonight passed and sent to the senate an agriculture appropriation bill of $722,001,084, which was $66,928,434 below the amount requested by President Roosevelt in his budget for the fiscal year 1941. There was no record vote.

Representative Woodrum.

It was the first time since the advent of the New Deal, almost seven years ago, that the house has wielded the economy ax on an appropriation bill for the farmers. Heretofore congress always has voted everything requested by the President's budget bureau, and last year it boosted the budget estimates by $338,000,000.

Actually, the house slashed the farm appropriations involved in its economy fight with the Roosevelt administration by a total of $106,928,434, but the sum of $40,000,000 was added to the bill at the last minute on a legislative technicality.

How That Happened.

The bill carried $40,000,000 for rural electrification loans, an item which was not involved in the economy controversy. The money for these loans was to come from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The provision for RFC financing, however, was eliminated on a point of order and the result was a direct appropriation of $40,000,000. Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.] made the point of order that there was no legislative authorization for RFC financing of the loans.

The house approved the slashes in the farm budget shortly after it had been informed of a blast by Mr. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., earlier in the day. The President said the appropriations committee had made "perfectly terrific cuts" in his estimates for farm appropriations, and read excerpts from his budget message warning of "the danger of too drastic or too sudden a curtailment of government support."

Appeal Read to House.

Representative Harold Cooley [D., N. C.] read a report of the President's press conference on the floor of the house and appealed to the membership "not to repudiate this administration." Other members recalled that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had threatened congressmen with political retaliation by the farmers.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], foremost economy advocate, anticipated Mr. Roosevelt's assault on the committee cuts.

"Whose idea was it," he asked, "that we ought to try to cut down public expenditures and put reason and logic and sanity into our appropriation work? I want to read you what the President of the United States said about the subject, speaking of deficit financing and unbalanced budgets."

Quotes a 1932 Speech.

Woodrum proceeded to read from Mr. Roosevelt's campaign speech at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1932, when he said deficit financing had "contributed to the recent collapse of our banking structure, accentuated the stagnation of the economic life of our people, and added to the ranks of the unemployed."

"What was true seven years ago is doubly true today, because the national debt is higher," Woodrum declared. "We are up against the ceiling of the national debt" [45 billion dollars].

Representative Emmett O'Neal [D., Ky.], another member of the appropriations committee, warned that government expenditures must be reduced "even to the point of suffering" if the country is to escape uncontroled inflation, chaos, and the "iron hand that follows the destruction of democracy."

"We've spoiled the country with extravagant expenditures," he said. "Congress has come to the point where it must face realities. To avoid disaster, we have got to cut not only expenditures that are unnecessary but also those that are desirable and even necessary."

The Main Reductions.

The chief cuts in the budget requests which the appropriations committee voted and the house sustained were $72,678,812 for farm surplus removal subsidies and $25,000,000 for loans to finance the purchase of farms by tenants, as authorized by the Bankhead-Jones act.

The most significant economy test vote came on the amendment of Representative Marvin Jones [D., Tex.], chairman of the agriculture committee, to restore the $25,000,000 for farm tenant loans. The amendment was defeated by a teller vote of 149 to 135 after Jones, Speaker William B. Bankhead [D., Ala.], and other southern members had pleaded for the appropriation.

Jones, in a dramatic speech, during which he broke down and wept, pleaded with the members not to go back on "the plain homespun folks" struggling to rise from the status of tenants.

An Opponent's Reply.

Representative Woodrum replied that there was a "homespun philosophy that men are supposed to support the government rather than having the government support the men."

Woodrum said he had an almost unbroken record in following the leadership of Jones in agricultural matters, but that the time had come when it was "necessary for us to conserve our national resources and reduce appropriations our great President has said are necessary.

"If we had money—and we don't have any money—if we could borrow money—and we can't borrow money without raising the federal debt limit—it might be well to go on with the social experiment, but I don't see for the life of me how congress can justify it now," he said.

Food Stamp Plan Balked.

The rejection of the $72,678,812 budget request for farm surplus removal will prevent expansion of the administration's food stamp plan of subsidizing consumption by reliefers. This scheme now is in effect in 28 cities, and the department of agriculture had planned its immediate extension to a total of 42 cities.

Under the farm act the agriculture department receives 30 per cent of the customs receipts for surplus removal, and this will make about $100,000,000 available for the next fiscal year. Some of these funds are used for export subsidies, but there will be enough on hand to continue the food stamp plan as now operated.

An amendment by Representative Stephen Pace [D., Ga.] to restore the $72,678,812 for surplus removal subsidies was ruled out on a point of order as having no legislative authorization.

The house added only two items to the total of the bill as reported by the appropriations committee. These were $126,800 for dry land farming experiment stations and $47,500,000 for benefit payments to both continental and territorial sugar producers under the sugar control act. The appropriations committee reversed itself and sponsored the sugar amendment on the ground that it does not affect the deficit since the subsidies are financed by the sugar processing taxes.

HITS ECONOMY DRIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 2.—President Roosevelt today attempted to stem the congressional economy drive which is discrediting the "pared to the bone" budget he offered congress in the presidential campaign year.

At a press conference he demanded restoration of the cut made by the house in his 900 million dollar department of agriculture appropriations bill.

He charged that the proposed cut would seriously impair the efficiency of the farm program, upset the nation's economic system, and work undue hardship on farmers.

To support his plea that the cut be restored Mr. Roosevelt read to reporters excerpts from his budget message. He emphasized his words as tho he were reading to the congressmen who wielded the ax on his appropriation.

"I have carefully checked the individual estimates under these broad categories," he said, quoting, "and I am satisfied that no lower figure can be attained except at the expense of impairing the efficiency with which laws are administered or of working undue hardship on individuals and economic groups.

CALLS DINNER FOR NLRB AIDS GROSS BLUNDER

Madden Says He Fired One Who Attended.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 [Special].—The storm caused in the National Labor Relations board family over the attendance of two of its regional directors at a lavish New York dinner party was told today by J. Warren Madden, chairman of the board.

Madden was questioned about the incident, which he termed a "gross blunder," while he was under examination about other matters before the house committee investigating the labor act and its administration.

The party was given by Glenn Smith, Cleveland attorney for a firm which had cases before the board. Altho the affair might have been a social success, it resulted in the subsequent dismissal of James P. Miller, regional director for the board in Cleveland, and severe criticism of Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, New York regional director.

Accepts Railroad Fare.

It was testified that Smith paid Miller's railroad fare from Cleveland to New York, which Madden termed "the grossest sort of impropriety." Miller told the committee several weeks ago that he accepted his railroad fare from Smith, but had repaid the attorney immediately.

Madden testified that when Miller was summoned to Washington for questioning about the affair, Smith came with him. The board chairman said their explanations about the payment of Miller's fare did not agree.

Chairman Madden said he asked for Miller's resignation, inasmuch as the board felt that the Cleveland director, in accepting the fare, had been guilty of the "grossest sort of impropriety and was not the sort of person to continue in the employ of the board."

Mrs. Herrick Still on Job.

Chairman Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], asked Madden where he drew the line in the matter of punishing employés. He pointed out that Mrs. Herrick is still with the board altho she had accepted the same hospitality as had Miller.

Madden replied that he thought there was quite a difference between Miller accepting his railroad fare from Cleveland to New York as well as the dinner, and Mrs. Herrick's acceptance of only the dinner.

"The whole affair was a gross blunder," he said. "Mrs. Herrick went there to make friends for the board, but, instead, she got their suspicion and contempt."

The board had been concerned chiefly with the very disturbing reaction the affair produced outside the board, Madden testified. He said an attorney who attended the dinner made the remark: "I thought you people were over zealous, but I had not known you were dishonest."

Madden defended the conduct of Robert M. Gates and Fred G. Krivonos, special board examiners, for investigating regional board offices. He denied that their work had any resemblance to that of secret police or the Russian GPU, as had been charged by previous witnesses.

The chairman was then questioned about the goon squad which previous testimony had indicated the NLRB maintained to intimidate its own employés. Charles Fahy, labor board counsel, asked Madden about the statement of Mrs. Herrick that Examiners Gates and Krivonos constituted a goon squad.

Explains Goon Squad Charge.

Madden replied that "goon squad" was a labor term which Mrs. Herrick had improperly applied. He explained that Mrs. Herrick "felt strongly that no one should come from Washington and talk to members of her staff except in her presence. The board disagreed with her."

The board chairman sharply criticized Charles Wood, former trial examiner for the board, for his conduct of a hearing at Chicago resulting from the Inland Steel strike.

A proposal was made to the investigating committee by Dean Lloyd K. Garrison of the University of Wisconsin law school that congress relieve the labor board of the difficult job of umpiring the civil warfare between the American Federation of Labor and the C. I. O.

SCALISE SEEKS RULE OF BOWLING ALLEY MEN BY HIS UNION

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 [Special].—George Scalise of New York, president of the Building Service Employés International union, today appeared before the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor in convention here with a request that his organization be given jurisdiction over such bowling alley employés as janitors and pin setters. The council indicated it may sanction Scalise's request later in the session. This would bring 25,000 bowling alley workers thruout the country into his union.

Scalise, who once served four years in Atlanta federal penitentiary for transporting a girl across a state line for immoral purposes, has recently been accused of racketeering methods in Chicago and San Francisco, where he moved to destroy the autonomy of local unions. After Louis Schiavone, former Capone hoodlum and bodyguard for Matt Taylor, head of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, was slain last July Scalise won the changes in the local's charter which he had demanded. The officials of the Building Service Employés' local in San Francisco have brought court action to restrain Scalise from ousting them.

said, proved that Dies was associated with the head of the Silver Shirts.

Representative Coffee, a New Dealer and an outspoken foe of the Dies committee, examined the documents and said they were palpably spurious. No lawyer, he said, would take a second look at them. Ramspeck left the meeting at this point and soon was followed by all the other congressmen except Hook, who remained with Jackson and Weisberg and later used the documents as the basis of an attack he made on Chairman Dies in the house.

Hook also charged in the statement he placed in the congressional record that Dies was an associate of a "prominent collaborator" of the Christian front, the leaders of which are charged in New York with plotting to overthrow the government.

The Dies committee has evidence that communists in New York City offered a former investigator of the committee $3,250 to make the Christian front charges later made by Hook.

The letters purporting to link Dies with the Silver Shirt legion were addressed to one David Mayne and bore the purported signature of Pelley, the Silver Shirt Fuehrer. Mayne has confessed he wrote the letters and forged Pelley's signature to them for the consideration of $105, put up by Jackson and turned over to him by Weisberg. An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation informed the Dies committee, after he had investigated the letters, that they were written on Mayne's typewriter.

C. I. O. CAMP REDS BRANDED FOES OF TRADE UNIONISM

A. F. L. Urges Protection of Neutrality.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2.—The communist influence in John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations is a deliberate effort to injure trade unionism in this country on the orders of Josef Stalin, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor charged today. The council called for a repudiation of this soviet menace and also for a national policy of strict neutrality to avoid involvement in Europe's wars.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., listed a group of C. I. O. unions which he said are definitely communist controled. They are the Longshoremen's union on the west coast, headed by Harry Bridges; the Fur Workers' union, the National Maritime union, the American Newspaper guild, the United Office and Professional Workers, the Transport Workers, the United Automobile Workers of America, the State, County, and Municipal Workers, and the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers.

Strike at Totalitarianism.

"From the beginning," a report of the executive council read, "the A. F. of L. has consistently and unreservedly condemned the philosophies of communism, Nazism, and Fascism. At a time when it was fashionable among so-called liberals in this country to make common cause with soviet Russia, the federation maintained steadfastly that communism and Nazism were merely different labels for the same hateful brand of totalitarianism.

"We denounced them both as enemies of peace and democracy. Nothing has happened to make us change our convictions. Instead, events have compelled many who once criticized our position to become belated converts to our way of thinking."

The report then reviewed the Stalin-Hitler pact as "an exposure of the shameful hypocrisy and falsehood of Stalin's pretension that he was the friend of communism and Hitler's masquerade that he was the foe of communism."

Aggressors Are Accused.

Germany's and Russia's aggressions in Europe have marked them as the imperialistic nations and their next goals may be Belgium, the Netherlands, the Balkans and all the Scandinavian countries, the report said.

"In the light of these facts," the report continued, "it seems inconceivable that any American citizen could continue to entertain sympathetic feelings toward the aims and policies of Nazism and communism. True, Hitler and Stalin have lost many of their fellow travelers in this country, but the party members still follow the party line.

"This holds true especially of the communists. Their party members have been reduced by discipline to the state of robots who cannot think and judge for themselves, but do and say whatever Moscow dictates.

Want Neutrality Guarded.

"Unfortunately, a large number of open and secret members of the communist party have established themselves in control of labor organizations affiliated with the dual movement [the C. I. O.] outside the A. F. of L. They have deliberately injured the cause of democratic trade unionism in this country at the behest of Stalin and his associates."

Concerning neutrality, the report said: "War in Europe, which has fallen into the somnolent stage during recent weeks, is likely to burst forth with renewed fury and destruction in the spring. We must not allow ourselves to be lulled into a sense of security. Constant vigilance is the chief safeguard of our neutrality.

"We extend our fullest sympathy and offer every possible assistance to the victims of racial and religious persecution in Europe. We urged our government to do everything it can without endangering American neutrality to help Finland resist soviet aggression."

In connection with the federation's attitude on Finland Green said that he would favor a loan to that country if this did not violate neutrality laws.

HARVESTER SHOP VOTE ON STRIKE PLANNED BY C. I. O.

The Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing committee, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, announced yesterday that a vote on a strike authorization would be taken next week among its members employed at the Chicago tractor works of the International Harvester company. Union leaders said the company refused to arbitrate a wage dispute. Company officials refused to comment, but it was understood they took the position contracts were being carried out and there was nothing to arbitrate. The C. I. O. claims 5,500 members at the works.

PLEA TO END WAR IN CHINA ANGERS JAPANESE ARMY

War Chief Will Reply to Critic in Parliament.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, Feb. 3 [Saturday].—The diet was thrown into a turmoil this morning as preparations were made to act on a speech criticizing the army which was made in the lower house yesterday by Takao Saito, a leader of the Minseito, Japan's strongest political party.

Saito declared that Japan lost 100,000 killed and several hundred thousand wounded in China and suggested that Japanese troops be withdrawn to make possible a negotiated peace. Parts of his speech were called insulting to the army and scornful of the objective and ideals of the campaign in China. Saito's remarks infuriated not only the army but political and other quarters. Political observers intimated that Saito will be disciplined by the diet and probably expelled.

Objectionable Portions Deleted.

The objectionable portions of the political leader's speech were deleted from the stenographic record and he will be asked to retract in its entirety the last half of his address. War Minister Shunroku Hata demanded the right to speak at today's plenary session for the purpose of refuting Saito.

Saito challenged the government's policy of establishing "a new order in East Asia." He said the principals enunciated by former Premier Prince Fuminaro Konoe do not demand territorial reparation. He said these principals recognize China's complete independence and assure the world that Japan will not monopolize economic activities in that country.

He said if the Tokio government adhered to those principles Japan would get nothing out of the war. This was considered by the army and most political quarters as a slur on the spirit in which the Japanese people seek to achieve their aims in China.

Premier Replies to Critic.

In replying to Saito yesterday, Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai declared that the proposed Chinese régime of Wang Ching-wei will think in the same terms as Japan and that the Japanese government recognizes it will possess power and ability. Japan, the premier said, will help the development of the new régime.

Japanese military leaders in China are supporting establishment of such a régime under Wang, disaffected former premier of China, but have declined to promise withdrawal of troops.

Japs Bomb French Railway.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2 (AP).—Japanese bombing planes, renewing raids which have drawn sharp protests from the French government, struck again today at the French operated Hanoi-Kunming railway. One hundred persons were killed or wounded as the planes blasted a northbound passenger train 50 miles inside Chinese territory. Ten of those killed or hurt in the raid, which wrecked a bridge and destroyed the train, were reported to be occidentals.

The railway, which links Kunming, capital of Yunnan province, with the French Indo-China port of Haiphong by way of Hanoi, is a vital supply line for the Chinese.

PAPER RATIONING MAY CUT BRITISH BOOKS BY 60 PCT.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—British book publishers were preparing tonight to curtail their spring lists in view of the forthcoming paper ration. The minister of supply is discussing with the publishers' association the extent of the ration, but it is generally believed each publisher will be allotted only 60 per cent of the paper supply which he bought last year. Publishers will meet the emergency in various ways. Type will be smaller, margins narrower, and paper will be inferior. It is expected that dustcovers will disappear. Prices of popular books already have gone up 10 per cent. Newspapers already are limiting their size and production under a voluntary rationing system. It is almost impossible to get a regular morning paper now unless ordered in advance.

Dropped from Play

Doris Dudley, who will be replaced in John Barrymore play by Elaine Barrie as result of star's "reconciliation" with wife.

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Elaine Barrie, whose ardent welcome to John Barrymore upon his return to Broadway resulted in a "reconciliation," will return to the cast of her husband's starring vehicle, "My Dear Children," within the next two weeks.

The producers of the play announced tonight that Miss Barrie would replace Doris Dudley in the rôle of Cordelia, the girl who gets spanked.

Miss Barrie created the rôle, but left the show after a few weeks, complaining that her husband spanked her too realistically. She later filed divorce proceedings. Elaine and John have been separating and making up ever since their turbulent romance started four years ago.

PLEA FOR WOMEN TO WORK PUZZLES BRITAIN'S UNIONS

Will Study Churchill's War Project.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The appeal of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, for 1,000,000 women to go into industry and asking unions to relax restrictions has puzzled the Trades Union council. The matter will be considered when the joint advisory council for industry meets at the British ministry of labor next week.

This body consists of representatives of employers and labor unions and was established to advise the government on industrial and labor problems in wartime.

Two Questions Involved.

The council wants to know whether Churchill's appeal represents government policy and if so why they, as experts selected by the government, were not consulted about it.

The engineering unions, which are most vitally affected, already have made arrangements with government departments and employers' organizations for "dilution" of labor.

Will Find Workers.

If there is a shortage of skilled men the unions are prepared to coöperate with the government in finding them, either from the unemployed or from those lost in other occupations, but it is pointed out that thousands of skilled men have gone into the armed forces.

Report Tribal Disorders; 7 Foreigners Jailed.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Incomplete reports of unrest on the northwest Indian frontier, with disorders at Waziristan and the arrest in Bombay of seven foreigners, including four Italians, reach London today. The arrested individuals it was alleged, were involved in communicating with persons in Germany and European neutral countries in violation of the defense of India act.

It was not made clear whether these reports had any connection with denials made by authoritative circles in London that there were indications of a concentration of Russian troops near Afghanistan thru which any threat to India might expected to be directed.

Seek to Stop Kidnaping.

Sir George Cunningham, governor of the Northwest Frontier province, who has just completed a tour of the southern district of Waziristan, is due to arrive at Delhi tomorrow for discussions with India government officials. The officials are considering the question of coördinating civil, military, and central authorities in an effort to halt kidnapings and lootings and also to strengthen the frontier constabulary.

After the recent kidnaping and subsequent release by tribesmen of Maj. Duggal, Indian medical officer, there had been a brief period of comparative calm. Then followed fresh disorders by tribesmen, such as ambushing an ammunition truck, looting a mail wagon, and a raid on a village in which three Hindus and three Moslems were killed.

The disorders, it was said, seem to be spreading northward toward the key area of the Ahmadza salient. The latest outbreak there was the ambushing of a car carrying frontier constabulary and the wounding of one constable. The district around Peshawar has not been affected so far.

Blame Lawless Tribesmen.

The India office in London said the disturbances are created by scattered bands of lawless tribesmen from areas outside the regularly administered territory of British India.

Reports from Bombay said that four Italian men, two German women and one Netherlands woman are being held in bail of $30 each on charges of violating the defense of India act.

Police said an official of an Italian shipping company was seen handing 30 letters destined to Europe to officers of a ship last Nov. 20. It was said seven of the letters were addressed to persons in Germany and the remainder to others in various parts of the continent. Contents of the communications were not revealed.

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Six nationally prominent clergymen called upon Protestant ministers throughout the land today to urge in their sermons Sunday an embargo upon the export of war materials from the United States to Japan.

The American committee for nonparticipation in Japanese aggression announced these church leaders made the appeal:

JAPS CHARGE U. S. WRITER'S STORIES SLANDERED ARMY

TOKIO, Feb. 2 (AP).—James R. Young of Springfield, Ill., correspondent for International News service, was charged formally today with violating that part of the army criminal code relating to dissemination of false and slanderous rumors, Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, disclosed.

It was not known whether the case would come before a civil or military court, but the latter was said to be probable. Under the army criminal code the maximum penalty in the event of conviction would be three years in prison. Since his arrest Jan. 21 Young has been questioned almost daily by the police.

Suma said the correspondent was charged "firstly, with sending from Shanghai and elsewhere, to newspapers and magazines in the United States and Japan some 38 extremely slanderous news reports regarding the Japanese forces in various parts of China, and, secondly, with spreading fabrications and rumors regarding actions of Japanese forces in various parts of China among Japanese and foreigners in Tokio between Jan. 6 and 19."

BRITISH BELIEVE NAZIS SAVED ALL IN 2 SUBMARINES

Hear Names of Men Over German Radio.

LONDON, Feb. 3, Saturday. (AP).—The British Press association said today that it understood the entire crews of the sunken British submarines Starfish and Undine were prisoners of war in Germany. The Starfish and the Undine were destroyed in Heligoland bight on Jan. 15. The admiralty has listed the crew of the Starfish as 5 officers and 34 men, and the Undine's as 4 officers and 26 men.

The British submarine Seahorse also was lost in the bight on the same occasion. Nothing has been said about the rescue of its crew of 5 officers and 34 men.

German Announcement.

A few days after the submarines were destroyed the Germans announced they had saved 4 officers and 26 men from the Starfish and the Undine. Since then "Lord Haw Haw," the nickname which the British have given to the German English language radio announcer, has doled out the names of those rescued in small, tantalizing driblets while anxious British relatives of the missing men bent nightly over their receiving sets.

In addition to the men named in the German broadcasts others have sent postcards home saying they were prisoners.

Believe British Steamer Lost.

The British admiralty last night advised owners of the Cardiff steamer Polzella, 4,751 tons, that she was overdue and presumably lost. The Ponzella carried a crew of 38.

Authoritative sources said that a German report of the torpedoing and sinking of the British steamer Oregon was untrue.

Reuters [British news agency] quoted the German radio as reporting that the Oregon, 6,008 tons, had been torpedoed 140 miles off La Coruna, Spain.

The German radio also mentioned a report from Stockholm that the 2,491 ton Swedish steamer Fram had sunk after an explosion off the British coast. Nineteen of the crew were said to be missing.

U-Boat Calls Rescue Ship.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 2 (AP).—The commander of a German submarine which sank the Netherlands steamer Arendskerk in the Bay of Biscay Jan. 15 was reported today to have summoned an Italian vessel to the rescue after leaving the scene.

Capt. C. J. H. Wyker, master of the Arendskerk, arriving from Lisbon, where the survivors were landed, said the submarine commander halted the Italian steamer Butterfly 20 miles from the scene of the sinking and ordered her to pick up the Arendskerk's four lifeboats. Before the Butterfly's arrival, however, the rescue was accomplished by the Fedora, her sister ship.

Norwegian Steamer Sunk.

HAUGESUND, Norway, Feb. 2 (AP).—The sinking of the 1,560 ton Norwegian steamer Varildi with the loss of her crew of 15 was announced here today. The cause of the sinking, which occurred in the North sea, was not known.

Fate of French Ship Unrevealed.

Thomaston, Me., Feb. 2 (AP).—Fate of an unidentified French ship, which radioed it was in trouble approximately 600 miles west of the Azores, remained undisclosed tonight as several vessels headed for her position. The distress message, heard by Mackay Radio late yesterday, gave the unlisted call letters FPGY, indicating the ship had been placed in commission only recently.

The American freighters Tulsa and Exmoor and other ships were in the vicinity. The Tulsa reported she was within 100 miles and was proceeding to the scene.

HIS IDEAS ABOUT A WOMAN'S DUTY END IN TRAGEDY

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—A tragic story from Samarkand throws light on the appeal of the women of Uzbekistan for the new law to suppress the use of veils. A girl named Hallilova joined a collective farm in the remote Hatirichinsk country of Samarkand province, threw off her veil and married a member of the communist youth party named Berdief, who was elected to the farm council and who took an active share in the work among women.

The husband, tho a communist youth member, had an old-fashioned idea about a woman's duties, and one fine morning he went for Hallilova with a sickle. First he found her mother, Fatima, and slew her. Then he cut Hallilova, but was prevented from killing her by neighbors. He was arrested, tried and shot.

NOW LONDONERS KNOW IT WAS COLD JAN. 20!

LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP).—Now it can be told. Today the censorship was lifted on news of the weather of two weeks ago, and it is permissible to disclose that Saturday, Jan. 20, was the coldest day in London in 59 years. The temperature dipped to 12 degrees above zero Fahrenheit—or "20 degrees of frost," as it is expressed here. It was the coldest day since 1881, when the temperature dropped to 9 above. Censorship was clamped on weather news to prevent the enemy from obtaining information which might be useful.

Germans Rename Prague's Depot Named for Wilson

Push Drive on Finns

Red aerial bombs killed 10 Finns at Pori (1) and several at Pieksaemaki (2). The black area (3) is the Karelian isthmus, shown in detail in upper map. The Reds hope the isthmus drive will relieve Finnish pressure on area northeast of Lake Ladoga.

Favorable weather aided the soviet air squadrons. Hundreds of incendiary and high explosive bombs were dropped across the country. Flying northward, apparently from an Estonian air base, nine planes raided Pieksaemaki, damaging and burning several houses. A squadron of 34 planes was sighted flying near the southwest coast.

Sixteen planes raided Kuopio, where two houses caught fire and bombs narrowly missed a hospital. A church was destroyed and a hospital machine gunned in Uusimaa province, where several squadrons of 10 planes each were active all day.

At Rauma at least one person was killed. At Kuovola and Kotka damage and casualties were minor.

Many Houses Damaged.

At Sortavala, on the northern shore of Lake Ladoga, bombings resulted in a number of casualties and damage to many houses. Raids on suburbs caused two alarms at Helsingfors during the day. Turku was in a state of alarm virtually all day, after a night long vigil during which unconfirmed reports of two bombings were received.

The soviet onslaught was the answer Finland got to President Kyosti Kallio's appeal yesterday for "an honorable peace." Today, as on previous occasions, the Moscow radio broadcast a declaration, quoting the communist organ Pravda, to the effect that the Red army will "fulfill its duty for the liberation of the Finnish people from their white guardists under Mannerheim." [Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, commander in chief of the Finnish armies.]

Moscow consistently has refused to recognize Kallio's Finnish government or its armies as anything but "Finnish bandits" or "Finnish white guards," and says it will deal only with a "people's government," which it inspired. Today's broadcast said the Helsingfors government would be "destroyed" as an enemy of "the working people of Finland."

Russian Communique.

"Nothing of importance at the front. Soviet aviation successfully bombed enemy military objectives. Eleven enemy planes were brought down in air combats. One soviet airplane failed to return to its base."

HOLLAND STRIVES TO BREAK BRITISH NAVAL BLOCKADE

Introduces Bill to Defeat Contraband Control.

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands, Feb. 2 (AP).—Holland's government, seeking by every means to avoid anything that could be used to throw her strict neutrality into question, introduced an emergency bill in parliament today by which it can stop Netherlands companies from binding themselves to foreign control measures.

The legislation will empower the ministry of economic affairs to decide whether Dutch firms can make declarations or submit to supervision such as is demanded by the British contraband control authorities in blockading shipments to and from the Netherlands which might benefit Germany.

Some Submit to Control.

Some Dutch companies have had to accept various kinds of British control in order to carry on their business, government circles said, yet some of these arrangements might work against the best interests of the country as a whole.

Informed observers interpreted the government's measure as a skillful effort to show Germany that it is trying to lessen British contraband control and thus deprive Germany of an opportunity to contend that Holland is unneutral.

The Dutch, on some occasions, have expressed concern over German press charges that the Netherlands has complied too willingly with this control. Instead, the Germans have suggested that Holland defy the contraband measures and make a test case. It is no secret that this entered into the Netherlands' decision to take extreme defense measures against possible invasion last November.

May Become Law Soon.

The first reaction to the government's measure came from the Socialist newspaper, Het Volk. It commented that the bill would not help the long Dutch-British negotiations in London which are intended to find some way of relieving the pressure of contraband control on Dutch business.

The measure, however, is expected to become law next week.

Officials said the new authority would be used whenever, in the opinion of the government, foreign control of any Dutch enterprise would work to the detriment of the needs of the Dutch people.

Up to now the government has resisted hardships imposed by the British-German economic phase of the war only by diplomatic means. Protests have been made to both London and Berlin against delays in Dutch shipping. The Hague has refused to concede Britain's right to seize exports from Dutch ships which originated in Germany. It also has complained that belligerent contraband lists cover too many articles.

Exporters Suffer Losses.

From the standpoint of purely material loss to Holland, the war has brought serious hardships. Shipowners and exporters alike have suffered losses by the virtual stoppage of transshipment traffic from Germany imposed by the British export blockade.

Holland's own exports to Germany, normally her best customer, have been heavily reduced because of the British policy of restricting raw materials entering Holland to strict home needs, with no surplus to convert into goods for Germany.

In the first three months of the war Dutch exports dropped to $104,220,000 from $157,160,000 for the same period in 1938. For the same period of 1939, imports totaled $207,980,000, compared to September-December imports in 1938 of $196,020,000. Building up of stocks at the outset of the war contributed to the unfavorable trade balance.

Awaits German Serum

Washington, D. C. Feb. 2 (AP).—A little girl's dire need for leukemia serum has led the state deparment to try to obtain it from warbound Germany.

Relatives of the child, 3 year old Leslie Lee Ross of nearby Cheverly, Md., have heard that in Frankfort, Germany, the chief physician of the city medical service has discovered a new serum which will cure the disease. At their request the state department cabled Emil Sauer, American consul general in Frankfort, to secure a vial of the serum and rush it here by trans-Atlantic plane.

If the serum is obtained there is doubt as to whether or not it can be flown thru the British blockade. But Leslie's father, Leslie Edward Ross, a clerk in the Public Works administration here, is pinning all his hopes on obtaining the remedy, because there seems to be no other chance of saving the child's life.

HOOVER WARNS OF AFTERMATH IN A LONG WAR

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Former President Herbert Hoover declared tonight that if the war is long drawn out the United States will "need to meet the question of famine and pestilence over the whole of Europe."

He said that if it had not been for American food and American relief in 1918 "famine, pestilence, and communism would have engulfed Europe."

In a speech before the Overseas Press Club of America, Hoover urged that this country remain at peace because "the chance for civilization in Europe to come back again may depend upon America."

Appealing for funds to "meet the heartbreaking needs of Finland and Poland," he said the United States has a food surplus out of which "we can furnish the little nations without depriving our own people of one atom."

37 N. U. FACULTY MEMBERS URGE LOAN TO FINLAND

A recommendation that the government approve a 60 million dollar loan to Finland was sent to Illinois congressmen yesterday by 37 members of the faculty of Northwestern university.

The letter read in part: "Finland, we feel, is deserving of this loan not only because she has paid her debts and established credit. The whole matter is one transcending purely financial consideration."

Among the signers were Dean Emeritus James A. James, Acting Dean James W. Bell of the graduate school, Dean Kenneth E. Olson of the Medill School of Journalism and Dean Samuel N. Stevens of the university college.

FRENCH DEFEND THEIR SEARCH OF MAILS FROM U. S.

Report Finding 8 Million in Nazi Contraband.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The French blockade ministry today supported Britain's claim that the empires are within their rights in examining mail from the United States and other neutral countries and asserted the procedure had blocked an organized Nazi effort to send large quantities of money and food to Germany.

Within the last three months, the ministry said, approximately $8,000,000 worth of contraband "exported by Nazi agents in the United States" has been taken from parcels and letters. American mail also has yielded $10,000 in bills, 15,000 British pounds [about $60,000], and $425,000 in checks destined for Germany, it added.

Much contraband was found in containers bearing labels such as "stained glass" and foodstuffs were labeled "commercial samples," it was said.

Seizures Called Within the Law.

The extent of the seizures was disclosed in a communique which said the empires' contraband control had acted in strict conformity with international law and historical precedents.

The communique, like the note in which Britain two weeks ago rejected a United States protest against examination of mails, cited Article 1 of the elevents Hague convention of 1907 as authority for the allied action.

[*The British note said that under the Hague convention immunity "is enjoyed only by genuine postal correspondence" and that belligerents therefore are "at liberty to examine mail * * * in order to assure themselves that they constitute such correspondence and not articles of noxious character, such as contraband."*]

American Action in 1916 Cited.

"Immunity of postal correspondence," the French communique said, "cannot be invoked to facilitate operations of the enemy."

Moreover, it declared, "the United States government on May 5, 1916, admitted that notes and negotiable instruments were comparable to merchandise and submitted as such to the same exercise of belligerents' rights."

Absence of the control, now exercised by the empires over mails destined for Germany would "facilitate German hostile acts," the communique said. It added: "That is why the British response to the United States note of Dec. 27 appears strongly justified."

BLAST IN GERMANY JARS BASEL; SUSPECT MUNITIONS BLOWN UP

BASEL, Switzerland, Feb. 2 (AP).—A heavy explosion in Germany about 10 miles from the Swiss frontier today led to conjecture among Swiss that a Siegfried line munitions dump had blown up. The explosion rattled windows in Basel and was heard over a wide area in Switzerland. It was followed by fire.

"Nothing to Report."

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP).—Tonight's French communique said: "Nothing to report" on western front.

"No Special Events."

BALKANS FROWN AS TURKS URGE A DEFENSE PACT

Fear Germany Will Use It as Excuse to Attack.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 2.—Four men met here today as delegates of the Balkan entente. They desperately sought some means to save Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Turkey, and Greece from being plunged into the European war.

At the close of the first day's session of the conference the quartet—Foreign Ministers Grigore Gafencu of Rumania, Aleksander Cincar-Markovic of Jugo-Slavia, Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey, and Gen. John Metaxas of Greece—were reported to be optimistic.

Parley Strikes a Snag.

However, there was one snag. Greece and Turkey were reported to be favoring closer coöperation with Bulgaria than Rumania was willing to accept. Bulgaria has been clamoring for the return of the territory of Dobruja, which Rumania secured after the world war. Hungary, too, has been demanding that Rumania give up Transylvania.

Gafencu, as spokesman for Rumania's dictator, King Carol, can tell members of the Balkan entente whether there is any chance of Rumania promising to readjust her frontier now or later, if Hungary and Bulgary reciprocate by joining the entente against any possible attacks.

Recent speeches by King Carol tend to indicate that Rumania will not make such a promise.

According to one rumor, Gafencu demanded a guarantee of Rumania's frontiers by other members of the entente and said that otherwise Rumania must accept a German guarantee. Most observers described the rumor as mere gossip.

Turkey Wants Alliance.

The most militant member of the entente is Saracoglu of Turkey. He is after a defensive alliance. The others do not want a genuine alliance because they fear it might be used by Germany as an excuse for attacking them. Turkey has treaties of mutual assistance with both Great Britain and France, and the other Balkan powers believe that if they are tied too closely with Turkey their status as neutrals would be endangered. They are painfully eager to maintain that status. Consequently it was considered unlikely that Turkey will succeed in getting an alliance.

Strict "economic neutrality," meaning the sale to Germany of all the oil the reich can buy and transport, was understood to be the Rumanian aim. Rumania's petroleum is the curse of the Balkans. Her oil wells are more likely to bring war into Southeastern Europe than any other factor.

Only the four men who sat around a little round table in the office of Cincar-Markovic know the full story of the proceedings. They were not even accompanied by stenographers. What they want the public to know will be disclosed in a brief official statement Sunday evening, but the most important points discussed probably will not be mentioned.

Economic agreements to improve trade among the Balkan countries to make up for the loss of outside trade thru the war probably will be the only achievements of the conference.

Plea for Aid Rejected.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 2 (AP).—Worried Rumania, squeezed between strong demands by Germany and Great Britain and France for the lion's share of her oil, tonight was reported to have lost her chances of winning guarantees of automatic support from her neighbors in the Balkan entente.

Representatives of Rumania, Turkey, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece were understood to have decided formally that there would be no change in the present entente.

Observers said this meant that the representatives of Jugo-Slavia, Turkey, and Greece had refused Rumania's request for automatic help in the case of an attack by Germany or Russia.

However, the conferees were reported to have decided to try to maintain economic relations with the belligerent powers on a prewar basis. This was an attempt to prevent being flattened between the conflicting demands of Germany and Russia on the one hand and France and Britain on the other.

ROAD BUILDERS END CONCLAVE; 47,322 ATTEND

The need for express highways into and thru large metropolitan areas, including Chicago, was emphasized yesterday in resolutions passed at the closing session of the American Road Builders' association in the Stevens hotel.

Other resolutions urged that all highway taxes, barring normal exemptions, be used for highway purposes; that congress make special provisions in 1940 to begin the development of national interregional highways, and that congress enact legislation to obtain necessary land to ease city traffic congestion.

The convention was attended by 47,322 members or official visitors from the 48 states and 36 foreign countries.

FINNS REQUIRE PLENTY OF HELP, BRITON ASSERTS

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 2 (AP).—Sir Walter Citrine, head of a British labor delegation touring Finland, declared today that the Finns "will need plenty of help" to hold off the Russian invasion.

"I haven't a very high opinion of the Red army," Citrine said. "But it must be remembered that their man power is inexhaustible, whereas Finland is small."

He added that "very extensive help is under way in England for Finland, and I am sure it will arrive in time."

Citrine, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, voiced his opinion as the delegation completed an 11 day tour of Finnish industrial centers and the front. He characterized as "sheer nonsense" Russian reports that the Finnish government is oppressing labor.

COLD WAVE HITS SHANGHAI; 80 BABIES FROZEN

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2 (AP).—The frozen bodies of approximately 100 persons, including 80 infants, were picked up in the streets today as a bitter cold wave brought acute suffering to thousands of Chinese in Shanghai. Hot rice was distributed by a fleet of trucks operated by the Salvation Army. Reports from outside the city indicated hundreds had perished as a 24 hour snowstorm swept the lower Yangtze valley.

GERMANY FORBIDS FOREIGN WRITERS TO VISIT POLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The German government today refused to permit foreign correspondents to visit German occupied areas of Poland to investigate charges that Poles are being persecuted.

A propaganda ministry spokesman said it is impossible for permission to be granted at the present time. A similar answer was given by a high foreign office official. He suggested instead a trip to the German province of Posen, which includes a part of the former Polish corridor and a strip of the territory annexed from southwestern Poland.

In refusing permission to visit the area of Poland occupied by German troops, the foreign office official denied that priests and others have been prosecuted. However, he admitted that "the Nazis are very severe" with Poles suspected of political activity.

"We are at war," he said, "and we are not going to tolerate any opposition behind the lines."

GERMANY HEARS CHURCHILL TALK AMID GREAT DIN

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Listeners to German radio broadcasts in the last few days were amazed to hear the voice of Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, coming from the German station. Suddenly catcalls and whistling interrupted the speaker.

"This," interposed the German announcer, "is a record of how Mr. Churchill's recent speech in Manchester was received by is audience."

When Churchill's voice again was distinguishable, it again was drowned out by noise. The announcer called the listeners' attention to the "unpopularity of the British minister among his starving countrymen."

Records have been taken here of the German broadcast version and compared with that taken at the time the speech was delivered. The comparison, it was said, shows the German propaganda service had taken a record of Churchill's speech and doctored it with interruptions.

NAZIS ARE CHIEF BUYERS OF OIL FROM RUMANIA

British Lag Far Behind in Purchasing Battle.

Germany is outstripping Britain in the struggle now going on between the two belligerents for control of Rumanian gasoline and crude oil supplies, a study of Rumanian exports showed yesterday.

In the first nine months of 1939, the latest period for which statistics are available, Germany bought 4,564,000 barrels of Rumanian gasoline, while 1,966,000 barrels were exported to the United Kingdom.

Both nations had doubled their purchases of the first nine months of 1938, when Germany bought 2,079,000 barrels and Britain 953,000 barrels.

However, the German imports for the 1939 period included sales of 1,504,000 barrels to Czecho-Slovakia. The German total was almost half of Rumania's total gasoline exports of 10,430,000 barrels.

Crude Oil Purchases Leap.

In purchases of crude petroleum, Germany showed a far more startling increase, due primarily to the absorption of Czecho-Slovakia, which was formerly Rumania's most important crude oil customer.

German imports, including 843,000 barrels to Czecho-Slovakia, totaled 1,033,000 barrels, an increase of more than 1,000 per cent over German imports of 85,000 barrels in the first nine months of 1938.

Britain's purchases of Rumanian crude oil were too small to be listed separately. The German total for the 1939 period was well over half of Rumania's total crude oil exports of 1,883,000 barrels.

France Cuts Imports.

Britain's ally, France, cut her purchases in the 1939 nine months to 785,000 barrels, less than half of the 1,625,000 barrels taken in the first nine months of 1938.

Germany's gas oil purchases in the first nine months of 1939, 869,000 barrels, were about double the comparable 1938 total, while Britain's purchases of 411,000 barrels were approximately halved.

Of fuel oil, still another important item on Rumania's export list, the United Kingdom cut purchases to 27,000 barrels in the 1939 period from 40,000 barrels in 1938. Germany increased purchases from 317,000 to 342,000 barrels. Italy is Rumania's biggest fuel oil market, taking 1,293,000 barrels in the 1939 nine month period.

With British companies controling 36 per cent of Rumania's production and France 16 per cent, Rumania is caught between two fires in the Anglo-German battle for oil. Germany, with the threat of invasion back of its demands, has negotiated an agreement calling for about 1,400,000 barrels of oil a month, but shipments have dropped to about 600,000 barrels a month due to bad weather.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY AGREEMENT IS NEARLY READY, OTTAWA HEARS

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 2 (AP).—Completion of the St. Lawrence seaway agreement for signing within a month was reported in prospect here tonight altho officials declined to comment.

The announcement by Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario that there is little prospect of any seaway legislation in the legislature this session caused little surprise here in view of the general belief that there will be no dominion or provincial legislation until the United States senate gives its verdict on the treaty.

Negotiations are reported proceeding thru the final stages without difficulty and a joint committee of Canadian and American engineers is working out details of the plan.

CHIEF DEPUTY OF U. S. MARSHAL IS HOLDUP VICTIM

Joseph Tobin, chief deputy United States marshal, was held up with several other persons by three gunmen in a tavern at 924 West 69th street late last night.

The bandits took his badge, his revolver, and 20 cents, but overlooked $80 in a vest pocket. Tobin lives at 6815 Sangamon street.

Other victims were William Steen, the tavern owner, and Frank Stone, 6714 Morgan street, and George Staib, 6609 Paulina street, patrons who lost a total of $99. Four women, whose names were not learned, were also menaced. One was robbed of 24 cents. Another saved $5 by hiding the bill in her dress.

ESTIMATE REDS USE 26 DIVISIONS AGAINST FINLAND

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Competent circles here estimate the Russian forces engaged against the Finns to be 26 divisions in addition to five brigades of heavy tanks and six corps of medium tanks. This compares with some fifteen divisions and one mechanized corps at the beginning of hostilities.

On the Karelian isthmus it is believed that the seventh Russian army comprises three army corps, each of four divisions, together with four brigades of heavy tanks and three corps of medium tanks. North of Lake Ladoga it is estimated that the thirteenth army is composed of five divisions with one brigade of heavy tanks and one corps of medium tanks. Further to the north the ninth army is believed to have six divisions and one corps of medium tanks, while in the extreme north [Murmansk] the fourteenth army is believed to dispose of, three divisions and one corps of medium tanks.

ANTARCTIC SNOW TOO SOFT TO USE 30 TON CRUISER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The snow is so soft in the antarctic just now that the government expedition's 30 ton snow cruiser has had to delay a contemplated exploration trip for several weeks. A message to the navy today said Dr. F. Alton Wade, in charge of the huge vehicle, decided not to leave the Little America base until late this month or early March. By then, cold weather should offer better traction for the 10 foot rubber tires. Dr. Wade is connected with the Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago. Dr. Thomas P. Poulter, inventor of the snow cruiser, was aboard the North Star when the ship sailed from Little America last week for Valparaiso, Chile.

BUILDERS OF CHICAGO (23)

By CALEB

JULIUS Rosenwald was born on August 12th, 1862, in Abraham Lincoln's home city of Springfield. His parents knew many of Lincoln's friends, and the lad grew up amid surroundings constantly reminiscent of the Great Emancipator. A typical mid-Western American boy, he secured the public schooling of those days, worked in his father's store, and early displayed independence of purpose and resourcefulness.

Entering business in New York City in 1879, he remained there until 1884, and the year following, when only 23, he became president of Rosenwald & Weil, clothing manufacturers in Chicago. Buying an interest, ten years later, in the firm of Sears, Roebuck and Company, his activities in that great mail-order house absorbed the remainder of his business career. As Vice-President and Treasurer, later as President, and finally as Chairman of the Board, he expanded its operations and resources into some two hundred times the business volume it was handling back in 1895. Among forward-looking policies he early established were the money-back guarantee, and in 1916 he inaugurated, for workers of ten-year service status, the Employees' Savings and Profit-Sharing Fund, bringing substantial estates to many routine-salaried workers.

During post-World War difficulties of his company, Mr. Rosenwald returned to its treasury $21,000,000 of his common stock holdings, enabling the firm to recoup itself without loss to other stockholders. Coupled with numerous services to the Government, in advisory and special mission capacities, were civic, educational and charitable projects identifying him with the Jewish Charities of Chicago, the Chicago Plan Commission, Rockefeller Foundation, University of Chicago, Tuskegee Institute, Hull House, the Art Institute, and other similar enterprises.

Space precludes more than the merest summary of his numerous benefactions to schools, museums, hospitals, social settlements, research, the fine arts, and relief agencies, totaling more than $40,000,000. The $20,000,000 Julius Rosenwald Fund was created in 1917, and later greatly augmented, for "the well-being of mankind"—but outstanding in his public record has been his educational work for negroes. In that unique field, his own contribution of some $4,500,000 resulted in the establishment of 5,357 "Rosenwald Schools" in 15 southern states, as an integral part of the American public education system, and today this splendid work represents an investment from all sources of some $28,000,000. . . .

His death, on January 6, 1932, at Ravinia, Illinois, removed from civic affairs one of the city's ablest merchants and greatest philanthropists—a builder of Chicago in the most constructive sense. Rich and poor, high and low, the world in which Julius Rosenwald moved was to him a world of common brotherhood—wherein need was the only distinction his generosity sought or recognized.

FIRST PETITIONS FOR PRIMARY TO BE FILED TODAY

Big Names Among G.O.P. Will Be Lacking.

BY PARKE BROWN.

An unprecedented lack of well known names will mark the first filings today by Republican candidates for Cook county offices today. In most instances first place on the April 9 primary ballot will go to a candidate of whom the general public has heard little or nothing.

The opposite is true of the Democratic filings. Every local official whose term expires this year is seeking renomination and, with one or two possible exceptions, it is expected that petitions carrying all their names will be filed with County Clerk Michael J. Flynn this morning.

Courtney Circulates His Own.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's name was omitted from the regular organization's petitions but he has circulated his own and probably will file it today. The only other omission from the county committee filings will be the name of Sanitary Trustee George Seif. He is collecting his own signatures but may not file today.

First place on the ballot is not at stake in the filings by state candidates at Springfield since the names of seekers of state offices are rotated on the ballot printing, but interest in the first day at Springfield is high because of the personalities involved.

The first and possibly the only petition for the presidential preference primary will be filed early. It will carry the name of Thomas E. Dewey of New York as a Republican candidate and will be presented by his Chicago representative, Leonard C. Reid. Altho the Democratic county committee has completed a petition in the name of President Roosevelt, it will be held back subject to authority from the President to file it.

Three Major Candidates to File.

Three major candidates running for places at the top of the Republican ballot intend to be in Springfield to file their petitions in person. They are Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons, seeking the governorship, and Wayland Brooks, candidate for United States senator.

There will be a large number of filings by Republican candidates for offices farther down on the list, but it is doubtful that any of the Democratic aspirants to renomination for offices voted on by the state as a whole will file until after the state central committee meeting next Friday. Gov. Horner's petitions have been circulated but whether they will be filed at this time has been kept secret.

The Springfield filings also will include hundreds of petitions for congressional and legislative seats. This list will be so long that arrangement by district may not be completed in the office of Secretary of State Hughes until tomorrow.

Scramble in Former Years.

The Cook county Republican situation is considered astounding by veteran observers who recall the first place scrambling of former primaries. For years the fiction was maintained that the first man to file won first place. Long lines of messengers formed a day or even two days before the first day for filing.

The public was led to believe that the law was observed, but the law, the filing officials said, was unworkable and it was ignored from the time it was ruled that filings by mail would receive first attention.

The first mail bag, since then, has always happened to contain or to appear to contain the petitions of the candidates already slated to receive first place. That bag was opened—or at least it was so announced—in the privacy of a back room in the clerk's office. In fact, the treasured ballot spots were awarded by the clerk in the order predetermined by him, sometimes in conference with his organization leaders.

May File Until Feb. 19.

Candidates may file until Feb. 19, so that today's list is not final, but it is believed there has been no important contest for first place on the Republican ballot except for state's attorney. There are candidates for that nomination conceded to have strength—Harry S. Ditchburne, Judge Oscar F. Nelson, and Edgar A. Jonas.

There are a few candidates for other offices whose names will be recognized. They include A. W. Komarek of Riverside for county recorder, William John Granata for clerk of the Probate court and Dr. Edmund F. Bennett for coroner. They are expected to file but a dozen or more petitions for other offices have been circulated in the names of men not recognized by reporters who have been writing about politics for years.

The great lack of big names is ascribed chiefly to the fact that the county committee voted not to put up a slate this year. With that in the record, it is said, the members of the county committee, all of whose terms expire with the primary and most of whom are candidates for reelection, have been unwilling to sponsor county office candidates singlehandedly because that responsibility might react against their own candidacies. The first day for filing petitions for ward and township committeemen is next Friday.

12 Judges to Be Nominated.

What is true about the county clerk's office is also true about the city clerk's office where candidates for the Municipal court file their petitions. Twelve associate judges are to be nominated, but the only candidates with public records who have said they will file are two former judges, Edward B. Casey and Charles F. McKinley, and Samuel A. Hoffman, a former assistant state's attorney.

Horner Drops Smith

his ear. They took the position that Smith's tardiness already had damaged the standing of the Horner administration in the public eye.

Earlier Hint of Break.

In December the director of public works gave some hint that the break with the governor was on the horizon. He declared then that he did not actually control the Illinoisans and didn't even know how its finances were being run — hadn't signed a check for the organization in months. Then he added:

"I've taken about all the criticism I can stand. I am still trying to be loyal to the people I started with. The governor told me I owed all I have to the state. Well, I've paid it all back, and then some."

Smith has been close to Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who does not stand well with the Horner inner circle and would be a likely candidate for the nomination should Horner withdraw. Nudelman has been foremost among those who have urged the governor to stay in the race.

LYONS-BROOKS RALLY

BY PERCY WOOD.

Strong organized Republican support appeared last night in behalf of Richard J. Lyons for governor and Wayland Brooks for senator when the two young candidates opened their joint headquarters in the Hotel Sherman.

Jammed into the grand ballroom with thousands of others, the Brooks-Lyons managers declared, were 41 chairmen from the 101 downstate counties—part of the contingent of 67 downstate chairmen who James E. Hill, downstate manager, said were behind the candidates.

From the Cook county standpoint, the picture was even brighter. Edward F. Moore, Cook county chairman, said 42 of the 50 Chicago ward committeemen had brought delegations to the opening, joining 28 of the 30 township committeemen from the country towns.

Throng Applauds Lyons.

Lyons received the greatest hand of the evening when he told the throng his self-adopted rules for the primary campaign.

"As candidates," he said emphatically, including Brooks with a wave of his hand, "we are not going to do anything to weaken the Republican party. As a candidate for governor I shall confine my efforts to getting Hornerism out of the state house.

"I'm not going to fight Republicans or attempt to divide the Republican party. We shall adhere to a policy of decency in this campaign."

Cries of "That's it!" "Yes!" and "That's what we want!" met these assertions.

"Our job," Lyons continued, "is to get rid of the present corrupt and disgraceful state administration and to install an honest, less expensive state government. This will lead to the early stimulation of agricultural and industrial activity, with more and better jobs in private employment."

Brooks was given an almost equal ovation for his tributes to "the steadfastness of you party workers before me."

"You have been fighting since 1932," he said, "to restore an equitable balance of power in America, which is so necessary for the continuance of our kind of government.

"You didn't wait until victory seemed secure to join the ranks of the fighters; you have been loyal from the start."

Sons in Audience.

Listening admiringly to the candidates were Russell Brooks, 15 years old and already taller than his father, and Richard J. Lyons Jr., who at 16 has only a fraction of an inch to grow to top his 6 foot father. Mrs Lyons and Lucille, 21, also were in a front row.

When Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith (6th), Chicago campaign manager, finally adjourned the long meeting, Brooks and Lyons rushed for a midnight train to Springfield, where they will file their respective petitions with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes this morning.

Another political development yesterday was the withdrawal from the Republican race for governor of Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, former national commander of the American Legion. Hayes said he would file for attorney general, with assurances of support from backers of both Lyons and his leading opponent, Dwight H. Green.

HAVANA JURIST NAMED PRESIDENT OF COUNTY AND PROBATE JUDGES

County Judge Maurice E. Barnes of Havana, Mason county, was elected president of the Illinois County and Probate Judges' association yesterday at the close of its convention in the Hotel Sherman. He succeeds Judge Charles M. Webber of Urbana.

Judge M. E. Barnes.

Probate Judge C. W. Burton of Madison county was named first vice president; Probate Judge Forest Dizotell of Rock Island county, second vice president, and County Judge Edgar F. Thoma of DuPage county, secretary-treasurer.

Judge Barnes announced that the judges' association would seek passage of the proposed changes in the Illinois election laws, as recommended by the special commission appointed by Gov. Horner in 1937. The committee's report was approved by the general assembly committee on elections, but was not passed by the legislature.

A resolution was passed which opened membership in the association to judges in the juvenile courts of Illinois.

3 Masked Gunmen Ransack Apartment and Get $490

Three masked gunmen yesterday took $490 from John Jenkins Sr., 2438 Greenleaf avenue, after ransacking the Jenkins apartment for an hour in search of the money. The trio threatened Jenkins, operator of a bowling alley, and his son, John Jr., when Jenkins refused to tell where the money was. The thugs finally found it in an overcoat and left after locking their victims in a closet.

N. Y. DELEGATE SLATE OF DEWEY BACKERS APPROVED BY G. O. P.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP).—The New York state Republican committee unamimously approved today its executive committee's selection of eight delegates-at-large to the party's national convention, seven of whom are regarded favorable to the Presidential candidacy of Thomas E. Dewey.

Only one delegate-at-large comes from an upstate district believed favorable to the candidacy of New York's other Presidential candidate, Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher.

RALPH E. CHURCH TO CONFER TODAY ON SENATE RACE

Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston will fly from Washington to Chicago today, arriving at 1 p. m. His Washington office announced that today and tomorrow he will confer with Chicago associates on whether he will become a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator. Mr. Church has received many messages urging him to make the race, his secretary, William R. Pitts, said last night.

FRANCE BIDS FOR NEWEST TYPE OF U. S. ARMY PLANE

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—The French government, it became known today, is trying to buy "a considerable number" of the newest types of pursuit planes being manufactured for the United States army air corps. These are the Bell Airacobra planes, which carry a cannon in the nose and reach a top speed of more than 400 miles an hour. What attitude the war department has taken has not been disclosed, but such negotiations seldom are undertaken without its knowledge.

A plea is made that the sale of these planes to France will speed aid to Finland. England and France make no secret of the help they are extending to Finland in its war with Russia, both in warplanes and other implements. Since the extent of that aid is conditioned on the availability of replacement armament for their own defense, whatever Airacobras are bought here by the French, it is said, would release to the Finns a corresponding number of currently used French planes.

The Bell Aircraft corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., is ahead of its delivery schedule on an unspecified number of the cannon-equipped planes ordered by the United States air corps.

Masked Gunmen Rob Pair of $2,850 in Gems and Furs

Irving Cohen, owner of a loan shop at 649 North Clark street, and his wife were held up by two masked gunmen in their home at 2724 Pine Grove avenue last night, and robbed of $2,850 in jewelry and furs.

CHICAGO FACING HOT COMPETITION FOR CONVENTIONS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—The hottest contest among American cities in years over the location of the Democratic and Republican national conventions is in progress here, and Chicago is in the thick of it.

William J. Hennessy [Upper] and William J. Kelly. [Moffett Photos.]

The Chicago Association of Commerce is out to land both 1940 conventions, and to that end has sent William J. Hennessy, manager of its bureau of conventions, and William J. Kelly, its vice president, to Washington. After conferring with Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and John Hamilton, chairman of the Republic national committee, the Chicago representatives said they feel encouraged to believe that they have an excellent chance of success.

Democrats Sought First.

The first of the two prizes to be awarded is the Democratic. On Monday the Democratic national committee will meet here to initiate the convention arrangements, including the time and place of the meeting to nominate candidates for President and Vice President. Hennessy and Kelly will be on hand at that meeting to argue the claims of Chicago.

It may be that no definite decision will be reached by the committee at this meeting. The Democrats are trying to jockey the Republicans into holding their convention first for the tactical advantage, if any, accorded to the party getting the last word. The Republican national committee will meet here Feb. 16 to make its convention arrangements. So, the Democratic committee on Monday night might refer to its executive committee the question of the location as well as the date of the Democratic convention with power to act after the Republicans act.

Other Cities in Race.

Other cities bidding for the conventions include San Francisco, Cal.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Atlantic City, N. J.; Minneapolis, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo. Delegations representing these cities will appear at the Democratic committee meeting Monday armed with arguments and some of them with checks to cover the committee's convention expenses and possibly add something to the party treasury.

The California legislature is appropriating $150,000 for this purpose, and Philadelphia is reported to have raised a fund of about that amount.

After the meeting between Farley and Hennessy and Kelly it became bruited about that Chicago is making no money offer for either convention. Kelly declined to comment on this rumor, explaining that he is not at liberty to reveal the details of Chicago's bid until he appears before the committee on Monday.

Chicago's Natural Advantages.

The fact is, of course, that Chicago never makes a money bid for a national convention in the sense that such bids are made by other cities. The reason is that for the accommodation of a national convention of 2,000 delegates and alternates, entailing an attendance of several hundred thousand persons for a week or more, the natural advantages of Chicago are such that Chicago has been able to obtain such conventions without paying a bonus therefor.

There are only two cities in the country that can accommodate a national convention without inconvenience—New York and Chicago. For geographical and other reasons New York rarely gets a convention of the major political parties. For geographical and climatic reasons and the demonstrated ability to handle a great convention all in the day's work, Chicago starts with a big advantage over all rivals.

Chicago is the rail center of the country and not over a day's ride from home for the overwhelming majority of the delegates. Of recent years it has become the air route center and can be reached in less than a day by plane from any part of the country.

Chicago's cool lake breezes in torrid convention time are well known to the politicians. Then there is the capacity of the hotels to care for the convention throngs without crowding. And, as usual, Hennessy and Kelly give the pledge that hotel rates will not be raised. Finally there is the largest and best equipped convention hall of the country in Chicago.

Mystery Solved

[Acme Photo.]
Clark Gable and Carole Lombard.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 2 (AP).—A 12 hour mystery entitled "Where are the Gables?" ended undramatically today. Clark simply phoned his studio: "Here we are. Why all the fuss?" Gable and his wife, Carole Lombard, were in Ensenada, 50 miles below the Mexican border. They learned upon their arrival that they were missing. Both were amused. Clark and Carole left a ranch 115 miles south of Ensenada early yesterday. They explained that a bus with a broken axle blocked the highway and they were delayed on the road.

GARNER DRAFTS GEORGIA TEST WITH NEW DEAL

Demands a Primary and Says He'll Run.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 [Special].—Vice President John N. Garner manifested clearly today a determination not to permit the Roosevelt forces to gain control of any state delegation to the Democratic national convention by default.

Garner indicated an intention to enter his name in those states in which there appears an inclination toward sending uninstructed delegates to the convention and in which the law permits a presidential primary.

Garner's decision was announced in connection with the situation in Georgia. He declared his intention to step in there if the Democratic state executive committee will open the door by calling a primary as it has done in other election years.

May File in Ohio, Too.

This flat declaration was supplemented by Garner's advisers here with the information that he also will enter the Ohio primary if Senator Vic Donahey does not enter as a favorite son candidate, and that his name will be on the ballot in Wisconsin, California, and Oregon. It also was learned that Garner's supporters today began a campaign for delegates in 15 congressional districts in New York state.

The Vice President's attitude in reference to Georgia became known by the publication of letters exchanged between him and Senator Walter F. George of that state who survived the Roosevelt effort in 1938 to purge the party of anti-New Deal senators.

The question of Georgia was taken up in the Garner camp when its New Deal governor, E. D. Rivers, publicly suggested that the state name an uninstructed delegation and that the state executive committee refrain from calling a primary.

George Writes Garner.

Senator George then wrote Vice President Garner asking his attitude. In his reply Garner wrote:

"I understand that the established custom of the Democratic party in your state is that in presidential years a preferential primary is held for the purpose of permitting the people to express their choice for the presidential nominee. I think this precedent in Georgia is the Democratic procedure.

"As you know, I have heretofore announced that I will accept the nomination for President, but will make no effort to control any delegates.

"Will you please advise me regarding the time and procedure for filing in Georgia and give me the names of the proper officials of the party to contact?"

Senator George then wrote that the long established precedent would not be abrogated this year.

Immediately, it is said, a group of Georgia Democratic leaders started a campaign for holding a presidential primary this year. It is headed by Edgar B. Dunlap, campaign manager for Senator George in 1938.

FAVORS CHICAGO AS DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION CITY

Scott Ferris of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma's Democratic national committeeman, passed thru Chicago yesterday on his way to Washington and asserted that he hopes the 1940 Democratic presidential convention can be held in this city.

"The national committee will meet in Washington on Monday to select the time and place for the convention, and while I hold no particular brief I personally hope that it may come here. This city is centrally located and has all the convention facilities. I think it's the best convention city in the United States."

Ferris said that Mayor Kelly and Patrick A. Nash, national committeemen from Illinois, would be in charge of Chicago's affairs at the meeting. He said, however, he would be glad to vote with them for this city. Los Angeles and San Francisco, Philadelphia, and St. Louis are among the leading candidates for the convention honors.

DWIGHT GREEN FLAILS HORNER OIL TAX PLAN; DEMANDS COST SLASH

Mt. Vernon Ill., Feb. 2 (AP).—Dwight H. Green of Chicago, candidate for the Republican governorship nomination, tonight attacked Gov. Henry Horner's proposal for an oil production tax and called for a reduction in state expenditures to meet the costs for increased old age assistance.

Raising the oil tax issue for the first time in his campaign, Green charged in an address here that "there is enough waste and pay roll padding in this administration to more than meet the needs of increasing old age benefits to the present legal maximum of $30 per month, which now goes only to the favored few."

Gov. Horner proposed a tax on oil production to bear the cost of increasing maximum monthly old age assistance payments from $30 to $40. He indicated he would include the proposals in a call for a special session of the legislature.

PARKER SCHOOL PARENTS WATCH STUDENT UNION

The question of whether the American Student union has a communistic tinge is being studied by parents of pupils at the Francis Parker school, Webster avenue and Lincoln Park West. Herbert W. Smith, principal of the school, said the parents had been invited to express their views as a result of "increasing concern over the outside connections of the union since the recent Madison [Wis.] conference."

Smith said two meetings had been held for parents of pupils in the upper grades and that most parents had expressed themselves as being unwilling to have their children associated with any organization that might have communistic affiliations. Smith said the student union, organized four years ago, had 22 members from 120 upper grade pupils. Smith added that if it were found to be anti-American it would not be allowed to continue.

President Would Withhold His Name from Memorial

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 2 [Special].—Sitting almost in sight of the memorial he is erecting to himself on his family estate, President Roosevelt today said that he feels that schools or other public buildings should not be given his name in his lifetime. He told reporters he had done his best to keep school officials in his home town from naming a new school after him. He said he was aware of the honor implied in the use of his name, but held that officials should follow the old rule and not name any building after a living person.

MAILS REFUSE BLAME ON BROKEN POLITICAL TOYS

After an inquiry by postal inspectors, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen said yesterday he is convinced that damage to recent shipments of a political toy were not caused by carelessness. Edward E. Parry, 720 North Franklin street, the manufacturer, had complained that a large percentage of the toys were broken in the mails.

The toy, called the "Battle of 1940," consists of two magnetized figures. One, "John Citizen," turns and knocks over the other, "A New Deal Brain Truster," when the figures are moved close together. Kruetgen said they are fragile and some breakage in a large shipment is to be expected.

Parry told the inspectors, according to the postmaster, that 15 or 20 toys were broken out of the first consignment of 300.

CHICAGO'S RELIEF COSTS LAST YEAR RISE 3 MILLIONS

Direct Payments Expand to $37,498,647.

Chicago's relief load cost taxpayers nearly 3 million dollars more in 1939 than in the preceding year. A report released yesterday by E. E. Ferrebee, statistician for the Chicago Relief administration, showed that direct relief costs last year amounted to $37,498,647, compared with $34,657,095 in 1938.

Of the total $32,717,353, approximately 87.3 per cent was provided from state taxes, principally the sales tax. The remaining 12.7 per cent, or $4,781,294, came from local tax funds.

An analysis of monthly case loads shows why total costs were higher than in 1938. Case is a term used to denote a group, family or individual receiving relief as a unit. In the first 11 months of 1939 there were from .2 to 35.3 per cent more relief cases than in the corresponding period in 1938. In December there was a drop of 2,581 cases [7,808 persons] from the preceding month's total of 97,804 [229,305 persons]. The figure also was lower by 7.6 per cent from the 103,025 cases in December, 1938.

Comparisons by Months.

Month—	—Total cases— 1939.	1938.	Average —per case— 1939.	1938.
January	106,954	98,834	$28.52	$28.40
February	110,202	95,368	28.52	27.86
March	113,848	96,520	28.43	28.75
April	111,846	96,150	28.24	27.49
May	114,585	88,348	24.81	24.53
June	115,668	85,467	25.79	23.50
July	110,759	86,473	21.38	26.79
August	106,001	90,587	23.13	31.37
September	105,749	91,738	21.98	27.12
October	99,638	94,266	23.87	27.90
November	97,804	97,649	29.43	29.43
December	95,223	103,025	29.03	28.28

Of the $37,498,647 expended for relief, approximately 98.86 per cent, or $33,517,676 went for relief grants itemized in the above table. The rest was spent for administrative purposes. The total applies only to direct relief cases and does not include other forms of public assistance, such as WPA, old age assistance, or blind and mothers' pensions.

Business Upturn Cuts Rolls.

Regarding the downward trend in the size of relief rolls since last July, the report said: "Altho WPA employment declined during July, August, and September, the relief load also declined. When WPA employment rose again during the last three months of the year, relief rolls continued to decline."

This situation, according to Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, has been brought about because of a general upturn in business conditions and a rise in private employment. In December, he said, out of 7,470 cases closed, acquisition of jobs in private industry accounted for 13.8 per cent, a rise over the percentage in previous months.

GAS TANK EMPTY; GROUND CHICAGO PLANE IN BRAZIL

A private plane with five Chicagoland residents aboard, missing since it left Montevideo, Uruguay, Wednesday, was forced down on the shore of Lagoa Managuiera, a lake in southern Brazil, because of lack of fuel, according to word received in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, early yesterday. The plane was expected to continue its flight as soon as it refueled.

The plane is piloted by James W. Allen, 5314 Blackstone avenue, a United Air Lines flyer on leave of absence. Allen's passengers include Miss June Sprau, 1 North Stonegate road, Lake Forest; Mrs. Don Wallace, 1008 Rush street; Miss Frieda Zylstra, 5308 Kenwood avenue, and Attorney Seward H. Bowers of Benton Harbor, Mich. They left Chicago Jan. 1.

The vacation flight was to have been completed this week with arrival in Rio de Janeiro, where Allen expected to sell the plane.

HANDOUTS KEEP FLOCK OF DUCKS FROM MIGRATING

Free meals of corn and grain attracted 400 wild ducks yesterday to a pond on the Edward K. Hardy farm, which is five miles northwest of Barrington. They are part of a flock of between 750 and 1,000 ducks, mostly mallards, which have been showing up there for the last two weeks instead of making the orthodox flight south.

Every fall the Hardy pond attracts thousands of wild ducks on their migration. This year they stayed several weeks, moving southward as the weather became colder. Then for some unexplained reason they began to return after the severe cold of about two weeks ago. It is believed that they stayed later than usual in the north because of the mild fall, then were trapped by the cold weather as they flew south and returned to the pond, where they knew they could get food despite the snow.

REPORTS INFIRMARY INMATES PERILED BY OAK FOREST SEWAGE

Frank Venecek.

Frank Venecek, superintendent of the Oak Forest infirmary, appealed to the county board yesterday for action to safeguard the infirmary's 3,847 inmates from a possible outbreak of typhoid fever such as cost 53 lives last summer at the Manteno state hospital.

The infirmary is at 159th street and Cicero avenue. Venecek said the danger comes from the unincorporated community of Oak Forest, west of the infirmary, on the other side of Cicero avenue. There are 150 families, a total of 600 persons, living there. Sewage is dumped into an open drainage ditch that parallels Cicero avenue. The families get drinking water from shallow wells, some only 20 feet from the ditch.

Venecek says 25 infirmary employés live in the subdivision. He fears that the water will become polluted, that an epidemic of typhoid will break out, and that the disease will be carried into the infirmary. Otto Ziebell, Bremen township supervisor and chairman of the township board of health, said a proposed WPA sewer project for the area was abandoned last summer. He said he would seek to have it revived.

ONLY LATE RISING GROUND HOGS SEE THEIR SHADOWS

Chicagoans who place their trust in the ground hog tradition will have to do a little interpreting to determine whether there will be six more weeks of bad weather. The little varmints that came out early yesterday saw no shadows, but late in the morning and thru the afternoon the sun shone brightly.

Forecaster G. E. Dunn contented himself with predicting that it will be colder today. He estimated that the low in the morning would be between 9 and 14 degrees above zero. Rising temperatures are expected in the afternoon.

FIREMAN INJURED IN PLUNGE DURING WEST SIDE BLAZE

John Williams, a fireman of truck company No. 46, was seriously injured yesterday while fighting a blaze in a two-story building at 307-9 North Cicero avenue. He fell 12 feet from the roof of the building to another roof.

The fire started in a second floor store room of the Malizia Brothers Food Mart, and quickly engulfed the entire building. The market occupied the first floor, and there were storerooms and vacant apartments on the second. For a time the flames threatened to spread to three 2,500 gallon gasoline tanks in a service station near by.

First Deputy Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney estimated the damage at $4,000.

2 MILK CARTON SUITS REJECTED BY U. S. COURT

Two suits against the Chicago board of health seeking to compel the city to permit sale of milk in paper containers were thrown out of federal court yesterday by Judge Philip L. Sullivan. Plaintiffs were the American Can company, manufacturer of paper milk cartons, and the Ex-Cello-O corporation, manufacturer of carton making machines.

They charged they suffered losses because the city milk ordinance banning paper containers prevented Chicago dairies from dealing with them. Judge Sullivan held they are not governed by the ordinance and could not show that it injured them directly.

Another suit seeking to force the city to permit use of milk containers is pending before Jacob I. Grossman, federal master in chancery. It is brought by the Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc. Yesterday's ruling will not affect the Fieldcrest suit. The dairy is to file a reply with Grossman, who will present his recommendation to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

AIR BASE BEATING INVESTIGATED BY U. S. AUTHORITIES

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 2 [Special].—Federal authorities today were investigating labor trouble at the Chanute field army air corp base near Rantoul which has been blamed for the severe beating of a carpenter and the jailing of his two assailants on charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

Rex Morris and Otto Snead, both of Peoria, members of a glaziers' union, were scheduled to be arraigned here tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Earl Meenach in connection with the beating of William Crawford of Indianapolis, a carpenter, at the air field last Tuesday. Crawford is in Mercy hospital in a serious condition.

Morris and Snead have refused to discuss the motive for the attack, but authorities said there had been jurisdictional trouble between the glaziers and the carpenters unions over the installation of blackboards in the new administration building being constructed at Chanute field.

EIGHT INDICTED IN JURY BRIBERY AT FRAUD TRIAL

Lawyer, City Official, Two Jurors Accused.

The grand jury returned an indictment yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court, charging eight persons with jury bribery and conspiracy to obstruct justice in the now notorious 11th ward vote fraud jury fixing case.

The indictment was the second resulting from a five week investigation that followed the acquittal, last Dec. 20, of Sam Orlando, Democratic captain in the 52d precinct of the 11th ward, and Joseph Vinci, one of his workers, on vote fraud charges. The case against them had been considered unassailable.

Bribes Accepted by Three.

Inquiry disclosed that at least three of the jurors in the trial had accepted bribes and that most of the others had been approached. Witnesses linked Orlando with the plot and also accused Attorney George Crane, counsel for both Orlando and Vinci, and James Creed, who during the trial had been personal bailiff to the presiding judge, Joseph A. Graber. Creed now is superintendent of city dumps.

Orlando, Crane, and Creed were named in yesterday's indictment along with:

MARVIN OLSON, an ex-convict who admitted he was a go-between in payments to some of the jurors.

JOHN HOWE, a state highway policeman who also approached one of the jurors. Howe's seizure led to further disclosures that he was a fugitive from a state hospital for the insane, and that he was indicted in 1930 on four charges of robbery.

MRS. MARTHA AUMOND, a juror who admitted having accepted bribes.

JAMES H. McNAMARA, another juror who admitted having accepted bribes.

JOSEPH CALLAHAN, a loop bookmaker who is alleged to have delivered some of the bribe money. Callahan is a fugitive who has evaded seizure altho state's attorneys' investigators have sought him for more than a month.

Jury Names Co-Conspirators.

Four others were named as co-conspirators in the grand jury report, but they were not indicted. They are:

MRS. LILLIAN CONNORS, the first juror to admit having accepted bribe money in the case. During the investigation she announced in court that she had made an agreement with the state's attorney's office that she would turn state's evidence in return for nonprosecution.

MISS HELEN KENNEALY, another juror who was approached by Policeman Howe. State's attorney's investigators, in explaining why she was named as a co-conspirator, said that while she had taken no bribe she had agreed to "go along with the plot."

JOSEPH SPIZZIRRI, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Gladys Spizzirri, who was a co-defendant in the Orlando-Vinci trial. Joseph Spizzirri attempted to reach Juror Clarence Coleman to influence him, according to the prosecutors.

MRS. KATHRYN SHERIDAN, wife of James Sheridan, a Municipal court bailiff. She was revealed yesterday as the surprise witness who testified before the grand jury that she had carried a message from Attorney George Crane to Juror Mathias Schumacher. She is reported to have said that Crane promised Schumacher a good suit of clothes if he voted not guilty.

Lawyer Posts $2,000 Bond.

Attorney Crane appeared before Judge Prystalski immediately after the indictments were returned. He announced himself ready for immediate arraignment and produced the $2,000 bond which the judge fixed for each of the defendants. Judge Prystalski informed Crane that the arraignment of all the defendants would be on Monday.

Outside of court Crane declared that he was innocent and said that he was prepared to stand trial immediately.

State's Attorney Courtney announced late in the day that the investigation into the bribery case is not completed.

"There is a lot more work to be done," he said, "and new evidence in the case probably will be presented to the February grand jury."

Earlier Grand Jury Action.

The earlier grand jury action in connection with the 11th ward vote fraud scandal had involved both Orlando and Vinci and six other persons who served as judges and clerks of election in that precinct.

All the eight except one had been indicted in the original case on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws in the June, 1939, judicial election. The indictment against this group charged them with vote fraud.

Sixteen persons, charged with vote frauds in the April 4, 1939, mayoralty election, appeared yesterday before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to face contempt citations. Two of the group had been under arrest and the others surrendered in court. Three others wanted on the same charges are fugitives.

Indicted in Bribery

(Story in adjoining column.)

Six of the eight persons indicted yesterday as result of investigation of bribery in connection with the acquittal of two Democratic workers in the 11th ward of vote fraud charges.

George Crane, defense attorney.

Sam Orlando, defendant acquitted.

James Creed, former bailiff.

Mrs. Martha Aumond, juror.

SUIT DISCLOSES MYSTERY DEALS OF SLAIN O'HARE

C. W. Bidwill Files Claim on Dog Track Stock.

A new claim yesterday against the estate of Edward J. O'Hare, slain front man for the Capone syndicate, bought to light more of the mysterious stock deals that complicated early investigations into O'Hare's shotgun assassination. He was slain at Ogden avenue and Rockwell street last Nov. 8.

The claim was filed by Charles W. Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals football team and a friend of O'Hare. He seeks 299 shares of dog track stock which he says he owns. The shares were purchased in O'Hare's name for convenience and were held by him, the petition states. The petition said O'Hare had admitted Bidwell's ownership of the stock by paying dividends received on the shares to Bidwell.

Stock in Two Tracks.

Included are 230 shares of Miami Beach [Fla.] Kennel club stock, valued at $23,000, and 69 shares in the Bristol County Kennel club, of Dighton, Mass. No value is placed upon these.

The Florida stock is part of a certificate of 1,000 shares held by the slain man, the petition continues. The smaller block was purchased thru O'Hare, was delivered to him, and was found in a safety deposit box after the murder.

Bidwill's petition recalled to investigators their amazement at learning shortly after the slaying that O'Hare was listed as a stockholder and director in the Cardinals club.

This was established thru the club's annual return, filed with the secretary of state at Springfield. Bidwill said at that time that O'Hare did own a share of stock as required under the law to be a director, altho he had never invested any money in the club. Bidwill said he did not recall why O'Hare had been made a director, adding that the slain man had obtained his stock from a previous owner who had retired from professional football.

Other Ventures Disclosed.

Other stock and ownership certificates found at that time connected O'Hare with a company manufacturing collapsible seat backs used at sporting events, Sportsman's Park race track, of which he was president, a south side real estate enterprise, and other ventures.

Examination of testimony given at the 1930 income tax trial of Jack Guzik, Capone gangster, disclosed that O'Hare more than once had served as clearing house for dog track stock. Charles Granata, former accountant for Capone's Hawthorne Kennel club, told how Guzik had gotten rid of his Hawthorne stock thru O'Hare to avoid giving the dog track a bad name.

Guzik's 105 shares were transferred to O'Hare, who in turn, transferred them to a physician.

In the Bidwill action yesterday, attorneys for the O'Hare estate were granted 20 days in which to file an answer, by Judge Harry W. McEwen of Woodstock, sitting in the Probate court.

GANGSTER RULE OF UNION TOLD AT LEPKE TRIAL

Extortions Made on Threat of Strikes.

New York, Feb. 2 [Special].—A picture of New York's flour industry riddled with strikes, bribery, and gangster control before District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey became prosecutor was drawn in the Court of General Sessions today as testimony began in the trial of Louis [Lepke] Buchalter and three fellow racketeer co-defendants.

The four men are accused of extortion and attempted extortion in a 23 count indictment obtained by Dewey's office. Lepke, known for his extortion and racketeering operations in the fur, bakery, and flour industries, recently was sentenced to 14 years in federal prison as the head of a $10,000,000 narcotics ring.

Racketeer's Boasts Quoted.

Aaron Held, president of the United Flour Trucking corporation in Brooklyn, opened the state's case by testifying that Lepke boasted to him in 1930 that he was organizing a racket in the bakery and flour trucking industry that would mean $1,000,000 to him.

Held also quoted Lepke as boasting that he controled the Flour Teamsters' union and proved it by so many strikes and "phony shakedown strikes" that Held couldn't recall just how many eventually hit him.

Having had labor trouble since his first meeting with Lepke a few months earlier, Held said he asked how he could have peace. Protesting at a suggested penny-a-barrel payment which would have meant $250 a week, he finally settled for tribute of $250 a month.

A $600 Payoff.

On another occasion, in 1934, Held said he paid $600 to Max Silverman, another defendant, to keep a contract with the Hecker-Jones Milling company. He was afraid he would lose it because of repeated strike tieups.

Beginning in 1934, Held added, the racketeers forced him to pay them $100 a week. This was boosted to $200 a week late in 1935, he said.

Held identified all four defendants at the outset—Lepke, Schorr, Max Silverman, and Max's brother, Harold.

Frank Hogan, assistant district attorney, who is prosecuting the case with Jacob Grumet, another Dewey assistant, opened the state's presentation with a grim picture of gangster control. He said the Lepke mob had such a strangle hold that the union became "nothing but a smoke screen behind which to exact tribute."

He said practically none of the rank and file union members knew what was going on.

Records Are Seized by Police.

Detectives from Police Commissioner Allman's office raided the offices of the Mantle club in the building at 310 South Michigan avenue yesterday, seized records of the club, and arrested two employés on charges of operating a fraud.

A. C. Schmalfuss [top] and T. O. Lackey.

The club, a fraternal group, has an estimated membership of 25,000 persons thruout the country. Police said the raid was made after members had complained they received no benefits from the club altho they paid initiation fees of $20 and dues of $2 a month.

Group's Secretary Seized.

It was charged no accounting of funds collected by the club is made to members and that membership figures are withheld from them. Headquarters of the organization are in Wilmington, Del. The club was founded five years ago by Hugh B. Monjar, former head of the old Decimo club. The Decimo club dropped out of existence about 10 years ago after investigations in several states.

Yesterday's raid was made by Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan and detectives Thomas Lyons, Eugene Hackett, and James Ryan. They arrested A. C. Schmalfuss, 1258 Lake Shore drive, secretary, and T. O. Lackey, 6618 Lowe avenue, an assistant. The membership records were locked in a steel cabinet and no effort was made to seize them. Other records, including a book containing 1,000 names, were taken.

Sergt. O'Sullivan said examination of records showed that the club has more than 1,000 members in Chicago. The books were turned over to the internal revenue department for examination. Schmalfuss and Lackey will be arraigned on fraud charges Monday in the South State street court.

Founder Publishes Magazine.

Schmalfuss said Monjar, the founder, receives no salary as president of the club but receives traveling expenses. He said several directors and employés in various cities are paid salaries.

Police said Monjar publishes a magazine for club members and charges 25 cents a copy for it.

Schmalfuss said the club is nonpolitical, nonracial, nonpartisan, and nonsectarian. He said its purpose is to build character, give members a better understanding of business problems, and increase their financial gain.

ENJOIN PAYMENT OF SALARY UNTIL ALIMONY IS PAID

An unusual injunction restraining a business concern from paying any salary to an employé until he pays his former wife $120 in back alimony was granted yesterday by Judge Oscar F. Nelson.

Mrs. Robbye Helmick.

The complaining ex-wife is Mrs. Robbye Helmick, 36 years old, 2744 Pine Grove avenue. Last October she divorced Andrew J. Helmick, 41, of 2743 Hampden court, on a charge of desertion. She was awarded $40 a month.

Yesterday Mrs. Helmick, questioned by her attorney, Irving Eisenman, said Helmick was three months in arrears in alimony. She said he recently had been appointed manager of the New York branch of a Chicago insurance company and would soon leave the court's jurisdiction. Judge Nelson then issued the injunction and ordered that Helmick be present for a hearing next Friday.

POLICE BELIEVE SOLUTION NEAR IN PETERS SLAYING

Police said last night they have good information concerning the murder of Paul Peters, a union printing pressman, who was shot to death by goons in front of his home at 3505 North Oak Park avenue last Oct. 31.

"We feel we are on the right track," said Sergt. John Hanrahan of the detective bureau, who has been working on the case for weeks. "We believe we shall solve this murder."

Peters was a member of an insurgent group in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union.

HOLLAND FILES NEW BRIEFS IN O'HARE LIBEL SUIT

Judge Eugene J. Holland thru his attorney, Joseph T. Harrington, filed briefs in the Circuit court yesterday in support of his $250,000 libel suit against Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court and Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission.

The libel suit is based on an exchange of letters between Cahn and Judge Sonsteby after the slaying of Edward J. O'Hare, Capone gang front man. Judge Holland had been associated with O'Hare in a real estate deal. He was not given a court assignment by the chief justice pending an investigation being made by the Chicago Bar association.

Judge Sonsteby asked for dismissal of the suit on the ground that he was acting within his judicial capacity. Judge Holland's brief asserted that the chief justice exceeded his authority and that statements in the letters were not privileged.

Thief Foiled by Girl Victim Sentenced to Year in Jail

Frank Kamicar, 37 years old, 10418 Maryland avenue, tried to snatch a young woman's purse at Clark and Ohio streets Tuesday morning. The intended victim, Miss Francine Musica of 2001 Howe street, tripped Frank. Two men went to her assistance and held the robber until the police arrived. Yesterday Frank was sentenced by Judge Stephen Adamowski to a year in the Bridewell.

WOMAN SLUGGED IN HOME CALLED OUT OF DANGER

Mrs. Leona Conner, 25 years old, who was slugged Thursday in her home by a moron armed with an iron bar, and a revolver, was reported out of danger yesterday in Ravenswood hospital. Dr. A. G. Schroeder, her physician, said there apparently was no skull fracture.

North Damen avenue police, searching for the slugger, had Mr. and Mrs. Emil Heuerman, neighbors of Mrs. Conner, look at pictures of known morons. The Heuermans, who saw the assailant as he fled, were unable to identify any of the photographs.

The thug gained entrance to the apartment at 4536 North Wolcott avenue, by telling Mrs. Conner that he was a decorator. He hit her as she turned to enter another room, fleeing when she screamed, and breaking away from pursuers.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

GOVERNMENT BY DEFAMATION.

The conspiracy to discredit the Dies committee by throwing dirt on its chairman, Congressman Dies, and the members who have actively supported him is an interesting revelation of the tactics of the communists and their fellow travelers, the New Dealers. They use defamation and character blackening as a means of attacking opposition, silencing criticism, and intimidating persons who might reveal unpleasant truths.

Any one or any organization of citizens undertaking to bring to light activities which the New Dealers and their associates want to keep hidden may expect to face the mud slinging. Sometimes it will come from a spokesman for the White House, sometimes from a cabinet minister, and sometimes from a member of congress—inevitably from some source in the New Deal.

In trying to smear the Dies committee the conspirators procured the forgery of letters. They were made public with the story that they had been written by William Dudley Pelley of the Silver Shirts. In these letters Pelley was represented as saying that he had a gentleman's agreement with Dies and that the Shirts would be protected from any investigation. New Dealers and their associates, having tried many means of putting the committee out of business, undertook to hook it up with the intolerance, bigotry, and maliciousness of the fanatical or self-seeking imitators of what's wrong in Europe.

The malevolent fraud was almost instantly exposed, altho not until one of the New Deal congressmen, Mr. Hook of Michigan, had made it the base of accusations in the house of representatives, with exhibits inserted in the record. Implicated in the conspiracy was labor's Nonpartisan league, a link between John L. Lewis' C. I. O. and the communist party and the New Deal.

THE TRIBUNE is interested in this specimen of the strategy of defamation because it has had long experience with organized New Deal effort of the sort. It began way back in the days of the NRA, when we resisted the censorship contained in the licensing code and brought on an attack by a full battery of New Dealers. The newspapers which refused to sign away their constitutional rights were accused of trying to hide the infamies of their business, and that accusation came from the White House, where the greatest resentment was felt. It also was echoed by the yes men, some of whom, it is true, have switched about and now are rude to the chief himself.

The organized attack has continued ever since. It was particularly violent when we revealed that Moscow was in political alliance with the New Deal and supporting Mr. Roosevelt for the second term. The denials were unconvincing, but that only increased the fervor of the protective defamation. Mr. Browder, the leader of the American communists, made no concealment of the connections and he has the goods on the New Dealers, including Mr. Roosevelt, Gov. Lehman, and Mr. Murphy.

During the years in which THE TRIBUNE was the only open opposition to the subversiveness of the New Deal we had to withstand the entire onslaught of its organized viciousness, which we were able to do because all the unorganized Americans opposed in principle to such practices and to such ideas rallied to us, supported us, and increased the number of our readers.

A YARDSTICK FOR TVA.

There are at least two ways of proving that the government is losing money on TVA. One way is to examine the TVA books in detail, but until these records have been thrown open for audit by a competent commission of accountants and engineers, that way is more or less closed.

The other course is the one which is suggested by Mr. Arthur Evans' recent articles from Knoxville. He showed that a good deal more than half of the power sold by TVA last year was bought by three or four large and prosperous industrial corporations. The biggest of these customers was the Aluminum Corporation of America which has assets of more than a quarter of a billion dollars. Next biggest was the Monsanto Chemical company with assets of more than 65 million dollars. Another was the Victor Chemical company, a 7 million dollar outfit. A big contract for power has been signed with the Electro-Metallurgical corporation, a subsidiary of the 400 million dollar Union Carbide company.

They are all buying TVA power for less than they could produce it themselves. That goes without saying because otherwise they would build their own generating plants. It also goes without saying that they could produce it themselves more cheaply than the government can. All of these corporations are rich and can command almost unlimited credit. Nothing prevents them from seeking out the most economical power sites, wherever they may be, and developing them. In doing so, they would not have to pay political tribute in any of its forms: To politicians, contractors, or any one else. Private enterprise can always build more economically than government can and private operating costs are also lower because there is no necessity to pad pay rolls, or provide rake-offs.

There has been a vast amount of talk about TVA serving as a yardstick for power rates; in fact, the yardstick is provided by these private companies and it proves that TVA is operating at a loss. When the falsification of the TVA books has been exposed, as it will be one day when an impartial audit is obtained, it will be seen that for every dollar the government collects in power revenues from these giant companies, the taxpayers are providing about as much again in subsidies.

What has really been happening in the Tennessee valley in the last half dozen years can be stated in a few words The nation has been heavily taxed to provide various kinds of political spoils in the region; to cover up the deceit, big corporations have been called in, the idea being that their presence and the revenues received from them will in some measure obscure the facts from the public.

The slogans upon which the TVA was founded are seldom heard any more, and that is as might have been expected. TVA is obviously not a yardstick for anything because its accounts are fictitious. It cannot be regarded as an example of the benefits of cheap power to the small consumer because most of its power is going to huge industries and they are buying it at far below the cost of production.

OUR PEACE; THEIR WAR.

The statesmen and journalists on both sides of the western front have been hinting of late that within a few weeks or months the war will break forth in full fury. Herr Hitler in his anniversary speech told the French they might soon feel the weight of his Austrian divisions. Mr. Daladier and Mr. Chamberlain said their armies were ready, come what may. Mr. Churchill said the day might be near when the Germans would be guessing where the next blow would fall.

The spokesmen on one side or the other or both may be bluffing and then, again, they may not. At any rate, Americans ought not to assume, as many do, that the war will continue in its present form indefinitely. We should be prepared mentally for news of engagements involving whole armies instead of platoons.

The American people should be on their guard against the day when the papers may be filled with accounts of desperate advances, heroic resistances, and all the rest of it, including the atrocities of which each side will accuse the other. The war mongers in this country have not been idle in the last five months but they have had relatively little help from the communiques. There has been little in the war news from the western front to stir the blood and arouse impassioned partisanship. It has not been easy to inflame Americans to the belief that they have a duty to participate in a war which is not being fought.

But the situation may change overnight, and if it does, and if our people are not prepared for it, the war mongers may yet have their field day. They will tell us that civilization is on the brink of disaster and that only American arms can prevent the catastrophe. They will encourage us once again to believe that we have a sacred duty to win the war and dictate the peace and they will insinuate that we can do these things with only a negligible risk to ourselves.

If they succeed, and if we are swept into the war on a wave of emotionalism, not only the American people but the whole world will be the loser. We know from experience that Europe will not permit America to dictate the peace. If we have a duty to the world, it is to keep out of war, keep our freedom, and be strong enough to do our part to restore civilization when peace comes. Now is the moment to chart our policy, because now we can still look at the problem dispassionately. If we do not make up our minds now we may easily be swept into war and the ruin which it will bring.

SCHNACKENBERG'S RECORD.

In naming State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg "one of the most efficient and valuable members" of the lower house of the legislature, the Legislative Voters' league reflects the judgment of the people of Chicago. Mr. Schnackenberg's valuable qualities are appreciated far outside the boundaries of his own district. As yet he has indicated no desire to seek nomination in the coming primaries for any of the state offices for which his experience would fit him so well, preferring to return to the legislature. If this is regarded as a sacrifice, it should not be. As Mr. Schnackenberg has demonstrated, an able man in the legislature can make his influence as widely felt as he can in executive office.

Editorial of the Day

ICKES TALKS OF "TRAVESTY."

[New Haven (Conn.) Register.]

Like many others, including members of the house of representatives, he was in favor of continuing the inquiry which the Dies committee has been making into un-American activities, said Secretary of the interior Ickes just after the house had voted $75,000 for it by unanimous consent. But what he objected to was the methods of Representative Dies himself. Those were un-American, he argued, and made "a travesty of the whole thing."

Isn't this a bit strange for a member of the New Deal uppercrust, to argue that the objective is good but the methods bad?

If there has been one organization in American history that has functioned at Washington on the principle that mistakes were all right so long as the heart was in the right place, and that "the end justifies the means," it has been the New Deal outfit. It has run haywire on the principle, from advocating the passage of confessedly unconstitutional legislation to packing the Supreme court, from legalized theft of citizens' own private property in the form of gold to destroying the value of their holdings in private, legitimate enterprise, to mention just a few of the major performances.

Mr. Ickes went on to say, according to public quotation, that "if he [Dies] is sincere, in view of the widespread criticism which his tactics have created, now is the time for him to step aside."

If that were the proper procedure, there ought to be starting right now the biggest exodus in the annals of Washington, D. C.

THE BONNY BLUE FLAG.

Now to settle the questions: Why was the song, "Hurrah for the bonny blue flag that bears the single star" popular in the south during the civil war; and was there ever such a flag? "Gone with the Wind" patrons, please note.

On the third day of the secession convention in Jackson, Miss., early in January, 1861, a certain C. R. Dickson entered the hall bearing a blue silk flag with a single white star in the center. He handed this flag to the presiding officer, Hon. William S. Barry, stating that it was a gift from Mrs. H. H. Smythe of Jackson. The chairman expressed the thanks of the convention and remarked that this was the first flag of the republic of Texas.

A concert and music hall singer, Harry McCarty, witnessed the presentation and immediately wrote the verses of the now familiar song. J. L. Powers, newspaper reporter, published these verses with his account of the day's proceedings at the convention in The Mississippian. McCarty then set the words to an adaptation of the melody of "The Irish Jaunting Car," and sang them in a theater the next night. The song spread thru the south like wildfire. The flag was used by confederate troops until the adoption of the Stars and Bars March 4, 1861.

The Texas flag upon which the bonny blue flag was based had the letters T-E-X-A-S between the five points of the star. It was adopted on May 3, 1836, twelve days after the battle of San Jacinto.

MOTHER AND FLEDGLING.

"She is my trust. I dedicate to her
My hopes, my love, my years." And speaking thus
The woman found herself alone and wore,
As if 't were honor's badge, her loneliness.
"Some day . . ." she said, and unremittingly
And waited near lest, by mischance, there be
An unattended want or darkened mood.

The struggle aged her; dulled her brain with care;
Yet never for a moment did she turn
To seek a modicum of joy elsewhere;
Her trust, and that alone, could she discern.
And as she spoke her fledgling flew away.

Wabash Avenue, Here We Come!

Of all the streets I've been on in all of the cities I've been in I'll take Wabash avenue for mine. All the way from the Pure Oil building to Big Jim Colosimo's old haunts.

The way it flaunts its junction with Randolph street like a new diamond stickpin; the way it thrives on man-made twilight as it skirts the loop; and the way it gets down to business as it darts southward. I just like it.

I like the bass-baritone of the "El" as it rolls along overhead; I like the back doors of State street stores that seem like back doors; I like the camera shops that attract dreamy-eyed men to their windows; I like the music houses; I like the nest of motion picture offices; I like the bus depots; I like the one-horse night clubs and scores of dinky taverns; I like the unpretty sides of Michigan avenue hotels; I'm touched by the abundance of panhandlers that populate the corner of Harrison and Wabash; I like the trolleys that can take one almost all of the way to the Indiana state line; I like the Eighth Street theater and the Coliseum.

It's an unglamorous street, slightly dingy and a trifle bawdy, but Wabash avenue has real veins with real blood. It's a man of a street. Yes, sir, I like it!

SUBURBAN SOLILOQUIES—I.

(Blind Irish Setter.)

Old Mike is blind, the neighbors say;
He roams the village every day,
Groping his cautious, listening way.

In spring, when undergrowth is lush,
He loves to scout among the brush
For scent of squirrel or sound of thrush.

Through woods in fall he blindly stirs,
Alert as each new sound occurs,
His red coat tangled thick with burrs.

They tell the story proudly still
Of Johnnie on the high school hill

Excited boy on speeding sled—
Blind Mike was standing guard ahead—
The car was coming fast, they said.

Mike barked with everything he had,
The boy rolled off—a lucky lad.

So when Mike wrecks a flower bed
The neighbors seldom scold. Instead
They give him bones and scratch his head.

The Dead Hand of Mr. Yerkes.

In references to the approaching demolition of the Grant hotel, the building it occupies is always mentioned as the former "Inter Ocean building." For a decade or more, from my former office windows across Dearborn street, I looked upon an inscription, carved in the stone on this building, reading, "Cook County National Bank." Does nobody recall it? I think Mr. Yerkes erased this inscription.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"MAKING FACES" MAY POINT TO CHOREA.

WHILE those with chorea [St. Vitus' dance] do not gyrate their bodies to music, they do indulge in all sorts of spasmodic contortions and grimaces—so much so that unless parents possess some understanding of the malady they may be tempted to punish ill children for misbehavior.

Now and then youngsters respond to a type of nervousness which is quite different from true chorea and any exhibition of uncoördinated gesticulations should be inquired into. But the diagnosis is not difficult and early recognition spells safety. Neglect may be responsible for physical handicaps which later may be serious.

Common between the ages of 5 and 15, the ailment probably has a rheumatic basis and the great majority of cases follow a typical attack of rheumatic fever—sometimes with associated heart symptoms. Emotional upsets may be marked at the outset and the first sign, in many an instance, may be rapid fire changes in disposition—from laughter to tears. Memory may be disturbed and sleeplessness is pronounced, as a rule. Movements are characteristically irregular, jerking, or wriggling; and the facial muscles may be thrown into all kinds of shapes. Two lads "making faces" at each other purposely may offer a fair example of what to expect should the disease strike.

Inasmuch as excitement increases the manifestations, these little sufferers must be kept as calm as possible and, not infrequently—along with other remedial measures—mild doses of sedatives will be helpful. Many are unable to feed themselves. In fact, the act of carrying a spoon or a cup to the lips may be so jerky that the contents will be spilled in trial after trial. Rather than allow a sense of failure to become dominant, these children should be fed by mother or some member of the household.

How persistent is the disturbance? Mild cases will usually return to normalcy within a month. Severe infections, however, many hang on for four or five months. Relapses are not rare, and many a child who has had one bout will experience another for four or five succeeding years. Of course, prevention—if possible—is desirable, which means that no boy or girl should be frightened unduly or have his or her emotions keyed up to the point where the physical structure is weakened. Anything that will raise resistance is helpful and—as a matter of good hygiene—infected tonsils should be removed.

Since injury to the cardiac valves may occur—thus establishing the foundation for organic trouble—treatment aims to provide ample rest and quiet. Convalescence requires more time than almost any other affliction. The victim should not be allowed to sit up or have a second pillow until improvement is well on the way—at least three or four weeks after the onset. If there is the slightest indication of heart involvement the resting stage should be prolonged greatly.

Fever may be relieved with sponging or mild doses of salicylates, and antirheumatic drugs may be employed. Care should be taken to pad the bed so that the hands, arms, and head will not be injured as the body is thrown about. Recently fever therapy has been suggested and typhoid vaccine has numerous advocates. This plan cuts short the duration of the illness and it may save much damage to the pumping organ.

With the passing of the "fidgets" gentle massage will be beneficial. To while away the hours games, puzzles, and drawing materials will aid interest and stimulate coöperation. It is well to understand that a complete recovery made slowly and without undue haste will probably forestall another seizure. Six months should be allotted to the period of invalidism plus the rebuilding of health to a normal status.

LIFE EXPECTANCY.

A. C. R. writes: A year ago I was turned down by an insurance company on a small policy. I believe my blood pressure was high. I am a heavy drinker and have an abnormally large appetite. I am about 40 pounds overweight. However, I feel well and have never needed a physician. I am 49 years old. What is the outlook?

REPLY.

Poor—according to life expectancy tables. Common sense should tell you to reduce both your weight and appetite and curtail the use of alcohol.

TESTING URINE.

R. K. writes: How can I test my urine and understand the results? I get a burning sensation when urinating. What causes this? How can I overcome it?

REPLY.

Both chemical and microscopic examinations are necessary. Special equipment and knowledge are needed to do this.

You are probably suffering from cystitis and require the services of a skilled physician. We can do much to insure good health but should leave to the family doctor all examinations and treatments requiring technical knowledge.

PERSISTENT SHINGLES.

W. N. writes: A patient—79 years old—had shingles eight or ten years ago and was left with inflammation of the nerve. Is there a cure?

REPLY.

That is just what one might expect. As a rule, however, recovery comes a few weeks after an attack. The cause is probably a virus. The affected nerve may be injected with alcohol or a small quantity of the patient's own blood may be introduced into a muscle.

FEVER BLISTERS.

R. P. writes: What is the cause of lip sores that appear like a mass of small blisters?

REPLY.

Fever blisters, or cold sores [herpes simplex] may be associated with fatigue, dietary indiscretions, digestive upsets, respiratory infections, etc. Apply spirits of camphor at intervals and give yourself a chance to regain your reserve.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—Australia's biggest economic problem in 1940 will be her primary industries. The crux of that problem rests on the solution of the shipping scarcity caused by the war. Products such as wheat, wine, and apples are perplexing the government on that account. Wheat, particularly, is causing concern. Whatever the sales of this season's wheat may be, millions of bushels will have to be stored in Australia. Much of it is likely to be in storage next season.

There is one school of thought that wants to buy or hire ships from America. Another urges a bold shipbuilding policy. A third suggests the commandeering of many coastal cargo vessels. To determine whether the shortage of British shipping in the Pacific would justify a new freight service between the west coast of America and Australian ports, an American cargo vessel arrived in Sydney early in January. Should the venture prove successful and sufficient cargo be offered, the owners probably will establish a regular service.

Establishment of new secondary industries in Australia will bring serious problems, according to James McIntyre, apprenticeship commissioner in New South Wales. He said that work and machines were so simplified in some industries that their operation was not work for adults but for juveniles. McIntyre said there would be a small group of tradesmen and a vast army of unskilled workers, employed until they were 21, then ousted so that other youths could take their places. "It is tragic," he declared. "When I was in California recently, a government official in charge of an institute for juvenile unemployed said to me: 'The place is full of boys who have been on machines up to the age of 21. That is the source of our unemployed.'"

So far, the state department has sought to find a solution in promises of "special legislation," which has not even been defined. It is a sorry display of political impotence, and has been responsible for many suicides by desperate youth.

The system of licensing imports is not operating without anomalies. A case in point is the ban on a large portion of French imports. These are luxuries which must be paid for in foreign currency. Importers of French goods have suffered under the ban, while the importer of luxury goods from Britain is given an opportunity to extend his business at their expense. A commonwealth government spokesman has said that the position must be adjusted more favorably for France.

MONEY OWED.

Chicago, Jan. 25 [Legal Friend of the People].—My husband died four years ago. On Jan. 25, 1930, my husband loaned his sister and her husband 50 shares of stock. They both signed a receipt for same. I have this receipt. They put this stock up for collateral, which they lost. After my husband died I asked them for the money, or sign a new note, or a receipt. They both refused to sign a new receipt, but paid me [in cash] a few dividends. This man has been thru bankruptcy several times and is not honest.

1. I can't afford to employ an attorney and I need this money. These people have their own home but I understand they have a HOLC on it. They also have a car and a maid.

2. Can I force them to sign a new receipt or a note for the value of the stock on the day they receive it, and how can I do it?

3. If he goes into bankruptcy again, can he put my note in with the rest of his debts?

4. Will my receipt that I hold be good after Jan. 25, 1940? L. G. J.

1. We would say rather that you cannot afford not to employ one. Employ him on a contingent fee if necessary.

2. If you can make sufficient proof you would obtain a judgment for damages rather than an order on the defendant to sign anything.

3. Yes.

4. The Illinois limitation period on written contracts is 10 years. The question whether the statute would run depends on whether there had been a part payment or new promise within the 10 years.

SHARING PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 25 [Legal Friend of the People].—Your advice would be appreciated in regard to a widow executing and recording a real estate deed in the names of herself and four members of her family she wishes to benefit with the elimination of probate proceedings upon her death.

In the case of one son who is married [1] would his wife share in any way, either in his lifetime or death, his share of the property?

2. If widow decides to sell the property, would it require the signature of the wife, as before mentioned, in addition to the necessary signatures of the persons named in the deed?

3. Would you advise the widow to retain the property in her name and executing a will for the persons who are to benefit in her estate?

In probating real estate and personal property [4] is there a fixed charge by the court according to inventory filed?

A. E.

1. If she gives him an undivided interest outright, then his wife would have dower in such share. If she gives him only a life estate, then his wife would not have dower.

2. Yes, if the facts are such that she has dower.

3. Depends largely on the extent to which she is willing to put herself in the hands of the others.

4. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A WAR FOR TRADE.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—While the Democratic administration in Washington strives thru its state department to make smoother the path of Great Britain to get her supply of airplanes from American factories, English power politicians continue to snub international law by stopping, searching, and delaying American merchant ships at sea on the pretense that they are carrying contraband destined for Germany.

There's something about this war that many people are not alert to, and that is that it is primarily a trade war, with England risking everything to keep not only Germany, but the United States from getting too big a share of trade.

England and her international traders have always been jealous of the American influence in foreign trade fields. They have done everything possible without reason since 1774 to check the growth of this influence. "If we do not get the better of America," said Lord Mansfield in the house of lords of the English parliament in February, 1776, "America will get the better of us."

King George III. sent a fleet of frigates, sloops, and schooners to America to blockade the ports of New England, whose merchants were doing a little business in the foreign field. The English politicians, especially one Acland, a government supporter, urged the kingdom to use force to subdue the American trade. He said that the American colonists were becoming so independent that their merchants would rival the British in the West Indies and Europe.

The war of 1812 was founded on the same pretext. The English politician was afraid that American traders might become a competitor in the foreign field. All wars, including the war between 1914 and 1919 and the present 1939-'40 war in Europe, have been based on that selfish standard. We call it imperialism. It is as catchy a propaganda word as is "democracy" and "totalitarianism."

Gladstone, the great English liberal, tried to show the stubborn English imperialists how wrong they were denying a share of the world's markets to other nations, when, in speaking of the rise of the American nation in 1878, he said:

"It is America who . . . probably will wrest from us that commercial primacy. We have no title. I have no inclination to murmur at the prospect. If she acquires it, she will make the acquisition by the right of the strongest; but in this instance the strongest means the best. She will probably come to what we are now—head servant in the great household of the world, the employer of the employed, because her service will be the most and the ablest. We have no more title against her than Venice, or Genoa, or Holland has against us."

However, because of an inherited, traditional stubborn-mindedness, the English imperialists did not agree with this philosophy, and they haven't to this day. What they would like to see developed is a confederacy, a union of the English speaking races, with England, the British empire and the United States joined together as one nation.

The English politicians also know that the American people sympathize with England and France, but they are solidly opposed to America becoming involved in another European war. If the American people can only adjudge the facts, discern when they are being misled by English, French, German, Russian and other foreign propagandas, and keep calm, even in the face of militant remarks partial to either side by hyphenated Americans and pro-ally sympathizers, then America can stay out of the British empire trade war. If we can do that we shall be in an outstanding position at the end of the empire war to aid the weak and friendless, the humble and poverty stricken, and bring real democracy to a wartorn civilization.

THE OLD PALACE HOTEL.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—I greatly appreciated the pictures of the old time Chicago buildings that appeared in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. If it is not asking too much will you kindly send me the history of the old Palace hotel that stood at Jackson and Michigan? When was it built? How many rooms did it have? How was it heated in winter time? When was the building razed? I have been a resident of Chicago for 50 years and old time scenes revive many pleasant recollections of good old Chicago. A. S. PHILLIPS.

TO BE PASTED IN THE HAT.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The voters should paste in their hats the names of the five congressmen who voted against continuance of the Dies investigation. This is the only way we can strike back at this type of statesmen, who put politics first and their country last.

How Our States Got Their Names

24. MONTANA.

Montana was named because of the numerous mountains in the state. The word is a Latin one meaning "mountainous region." Shankle, in his book on the origin of state names, says credit for suggesting the name goes to James M. Ashley, chairman of the congressional committee on territories, who offered it in 1863.

Montana state seal. Mountain scenery on left; Missouri river falls on right, and central scene representing plow and miner's pick and shovel. Scroll bears state motto.

Montana has been called the Bonanza, Stubtoe, and Treasure state. The first and last derive from the vast mineral wealth of the state. The other, apparently, was given because of the rough contour of many parts of the state. The state bird is the western meadowlark and the flower the bitter root. Montana's motto is "Oro y Plata" [Gold and Silver]. Montana became a state on Nov. 7, 1889.

TAX REDUCTION SOLICITING TOLD AT BAR INQUIRY

Two Witnesses Describe Firm's Methods.

Lawyers on a subcommittee of the Chicago Bar association listened yesterday to two witnesses explain the inner workings of a firm of tax consultants, whose favorite clients were corporations which had personal property assessments of more than $10,000.

The witnesses were former employés of the tax consulting firm—the name of which could not be learned. One of them has retained Attorney Emerson C. Whitney, 134 North La Salle street, for any legal proceedings which may grow out of his past connection with the firm.

Assessor John S. Clark announced Wednesday that he intended to call executives of approximately 300 corporations to his office in an effort to learn the names of those who offered to obtain lowered assessments for them. Clark's announcement was made after he disclosed a plot in his office to fix the 1939 personal property assessments of the corporations. He said the county would have lost $103,538 in taxes if the plot had not been uncovered.

Welcomes Aid, Says Clark.

"I welcome the aid of the bar association or any other organization," Clark said last night. "I place no credence in the statement that representatives of so-called tax fixing organizations had access to the records of our office. There have been some irregularities, and I have discovered and corrected them. I intend to do everything in my power to stop all abuses. What I want to do most of all is to obtain uniform and just assessments for all.

"I now call on the bar association to turn over any evidence or witnesses it may have to substantiate any charges of irregularity in my office. I'm going to clean up the office."

Attorney William B. Hale, chairman of the subcommittee before which the witnesses testified yesterday, said his group would report soon to the full committee, which is expected to make a further report to the bar association's board of managers.

One of the witnesses said the tax consulting firm assigned him to obtain names and other data of corporations which were prospective clients from Assessor Clark's office. He said he turned the names in to the firm's offices. The list then was given to the second witness, a solicitor, who was told to interview the corporation executives.

Told to Cite Connections.

This solicitor told the committee he was instructed to make a forceful sales talk to the corporation executives.

"I was told," he is reported to have said, "that I should say to the business men: 'My company has many good connections and can get you a substantial tax reduction.'"

The solicitor said he was successful, and revealed a list of concerns which he declared had become clients of his firm.

He said that when he was hired he was told he would be paid one-third of whatever tax reduction the consulting firm was able to obtain for his clients. It was reported he is planning to sue the consulting firm, alleging he has not received the promised payments.

Describes Tax Parley.

The other witness testified that he and representatives of other tax consultants were permitted to enter the assessor's office and examine the books. He said a conference was held in the consulting firm's office after he had obtained a list of prospective clients and had solicited them.

At this meeting, he said, it was decided at what figure the new assessment should be set. He said the guiding rule on this was "the lowest figure they thought they could get by with, regardless of the original schedule of property."

WOMEN LAUNCH DRIVE TO REDUCE BILLBOARD BLOT.

Whisky and Election Signs First Target.

BY HAL FOUST.

A state-wide campaign against the billboard blight on city parks, boulevards and rural highways was launched yesterday by the Woman's City club. At a meeting headed by Mrs. Laura H. Lunde, program director, it was decided that much might be done thru education, enforcement and legislation to protect the sightliness of cities and of the countryside.

Mrs. Laura H. Lunde.

Political advertising on billboards will be the first target in the attack. D. E. Mackelmann, executive director of the Metropolitan Housing council, told the women that in numerous instances candidates for next April's primary had their posters on display boards that violate existing Chicago zoning ordinances.

Plan to Write Candidates.

"We can write to these candidates," said Mrs. Lunde, "advising them that signs violating city ordinances are not good advertising for votes. Similar letters might be written to candidates whose billboards blot roadsides. If they agree to take down their signs we can give them favorable publicity for so doing."

The club's directors will be asked to approve this activity Monday and also to approve the calling of a conference of all Illinois civic organizations that might be interested in better regulation of outdoor advertising.

J. Lester Mee, assistant general attorney of the Chicago park district, advised the women that in his opinion Illinois courts might enjoin the billboards on private property near parks. Mrs. Lunde and others had expressed particular distaste for the large whisky ads that face Grant park.

Tells of Garden Club Campaign.

Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker of Winnetka, representing the Garden Club of Illinois, said her organization has been effective in arousing public opinion against billboards. She said members were writing letters to advertisers, urging them not to use outdoor placards. Letters were also written, she said, to property owners.

"We are not discouraged," said Mrs. Lunde, speaking for her club. "We believe that the time is ripe for a successful drive against ugly boulevards, parks, and highways. Cities and towns of Illinois have a growing appreciation of their tourist trade and a growing appreciation of the fact that they can't get much of this trade if their roads are unsightly. In the political campaign this year, we can try to pledge candidates of both parties."

1,037 AUTOISTS LEARN POLICE CAR LICENSE DRIVE HAS STARTED

A total of 1,037 motorists, operating cars without obtaining 1940 city license stickers, were given summonses yesterday by the police. These owners must pay cafeteria court fines of $2 each in addition to purchasing the licenses. The police campaign will continue today.

Knowledge that enforcement is being pushed sent many motorists to the city hall yesterday. City Clerk Ludwig Schreiber said that during the day 22,424 licenses for a total of $199,382 were issued.

Receipts Thursday, the first day of the drive, were $199,674. The total number of licenses issued since Jan. 1 is 338,472.

Last year, when enforcement was delayed to a later date, 243,170 licenses had been issued up to Feb. 3.

TWO KILLED WHEN CHICAGO HEIGHTS TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Drive Onto Spur Track at Unguarded Crossing.

Two men were killed yesterday when a Milwaukee road freight train crashed into a dump truck at the 12th street crossing of a spur line track in Chicago Heights. They were Alex Baranski, 50 years old, 1330 5th avenue, Chicago Heights, driver and owner of the truck, and John Kawalski, 55, of 1309 Portland avenue, Chicago Heights, an employé of the East Side Coal company in the suburb, who was riding with Baranski.

The spur line is used for slow freight trains and there are no warning signals at the crossing. Joseph Hanauer, 1630 Thorne street, Chicago Heights, engineer of the train, said that the men apparently did not see the train before they drove onto the tracks. The truck was carried a block by the impact.

Dies After Accident.

John Canaan, 37, of 4551 Ravenswood avenue, died last night in Columbus Memorial hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Monday night. Canaan was riding home with friends when their car crashed into a tree near the Grant monument in Lincoln park.

Charles Moravec, 51, of 1734 Ruble street, a WPA worker, was killed by an automobile in Canal street, just south of 18th street. The driver was Elmer Horstman, 1231 Burling street.

Two Hurt in 4 Car Crash.

Two motorists escaped with slight injuries in a chain automobile collision involving four cars in front of 4848 West 63d street, along the south boundary of Chicago airport. One driver, George Smith, 3812 West 70th place, was arrested.

Police identified the cars as follows: No. 1—driven by Allan H. Standridge, Kenosha, Wis. No. 2—driven by Smith. No. 3—driven by Frank Budilovsky, 1615 South Kedvale avenue. No. 4—driven by James T. Dowdern, 5470 Iowa street. According to police, Car No. 1, west bound, was rammed from the rear by Car No. 2, which bounced back and hit car No. 3, following behind it. Car No. 3 in turn was struck from the rear by Car No. 4. Smith and Budilovsky suffered cuts.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 93 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 70 were killed in Chicago, where 2,020 were injured in the same period.

INJURED IN FOUR STORY FALL.

Casimer Wojcik, 22 years old, 1420 Erie street, was taken to county hospital in serious condition yesterday after he plunged to the ground from a fourth floor fire escape landing at the Otis school, 525 North Armour street.

Young Albert Dick to Wed Eastern Girl

BY JUDITH CASS.

ROMANTIC news of great interest comes from Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howard York Jr. of Ithan, Pa., and 30 Sutton place, New York, who today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Albert B. Dick, III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr. of Lake Forest.

Young Mr. Dick and his parents went east for a tea Mr. and Mrs. York gave at their New York home yesterday to make the announcement. They will give another tea today at their Ithan home.

Miss York, a granddaughter of Mrs. William Morris McCawley of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howard York of New York, was a debutante of last season in Philadelphia. She is spending this winter in New York.

Mr. Dick, who is engaged in business in Chicago, is a grandson of the senior Mrs. Dick of 1550 State Parkway and Lake Forest, and of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Aldrich of Lake Forest. He attended the Hotchkiss school and Yale university. His sister, Miss Helen Dick, was introduced to Chicago society last fall.

Mrs. Edward F. Carry Bride of Arthur Hull.

Members of Mrs. Edward F. Carry's family were surprised to receive a letter from New York announcing that Mrs. Carry and Arthur B. Hull of New York were to have been married on Thursday. The letter revealed that Mr. Hull and his bride planned to go to Mexico, but whether they will go by way of Chicago is not known.

Mrs. Carry is the widow of the president of the Pullman company. Mr. Hull is a widower. His first wife was a sister of the late Cardinal Mundelein.

Mrs. Carry, who is 68 years old, is noted for her adventuresome spirit. She flew to Europe last summer. Her bridegroom is a few years older. They have been friends for many years. Their romance developed during an Atlantic crossing a year ago, it is understood.

Rosso has been here since Christmas. Her husband will spend ten days in Evanston, and then he and Mme. Rosso will go to Washington.

Mrs. Theodora Winterbotham Shaw is giving a tea this afternoon for her cousin, Mrs. George McKay Schieffelin of Gladstone, N. Y., who came to Chicago because of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Hall Winterbotham, who lives in New York. Mrs. Winterbotham had been visiting Col. and Mrs. George T. ★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

A hand beauty specialist has worked out a marvelous program of rehabilitation for hands that look their owner's age and more.

Basis of it is the use, nightly, of a splendid hand smoothing and softening cream. One of the rich, greasy ones containing rich concentrated oils. This should be applied in generous quantities over the hands, knuckles, and wrists.

If your problem is just to make the skin smooth and to keep it that way you apply the cream and let it soak in as long as you can—preferably overnight. To make this process as comfortable and neat as it can be, the maker of the cream has supplied light, loose cotton gloves to wear while you slumber.

But if the contour of your hands is getting lumpier and lumpier you need more than an application of softening cream. Regular massage is in order.

Here is this expert's outline of a simple massage that limbers the muscles and softens the skin at the same time: After washing the hands, massage the white cream down over the knuckles and across the wrists. Dab an extra bit of the cream between the fingers and between the thumb and the forefinger. Then clasp the hands and pull the wrists briskly back and forth with fingers locked—or almost locked. The grip will loosen as you pull.

This works the creams into the neglected pockets and over the knuckles, where lines form early. And it does limber the fingers.

Leaf Designs Form Trim on New Handbags

BY REA SEEGER.

Bag makers apparently never close an eye, for new ideas come in every week with startling regularity. If it isn't a new shape, new combine of materials, or a sensationally new size and capacity it's a new color or tricky new fittings. For example, see the felt bags that are the last word in effective design, just what you crave as a pickup for a dull winter wardrobe.

Soft, thick felt in black, flame red, forest green, and brown is the fabric. Cutout leaf designs appliqued realistically to the surface like neat garlands make them ideal bags for the daytime and street ensembles.

The leaves are semiattached, about two inches in area and make an exciting new trim idea. The red model with black leaves looks as spicy as a Spanish fan. The blacks are handsome, the dark greens and browns match the high fashion shades in clothes and hats as well as gloves.

Smooth, dull sheened calfskin, as soft as any fabric, makes the huge flat new envelope bags and stunning pouch models and the swanky strap bags of unusual outline and fancy shape. But the distinctive flat envelopes are the smartest suit and ensemble handbags, especially when they shine with the newest three letter monograms. These large blocky initials are surprisingly low in price, shine always, don't scratch, and can be used on other bags whenever there is desire to change. Navy blue and black calfskin are particularly high fashion.

Black patent leather bags also are easy to monogram. . . . The large square models flaunt the three letter monogram directly in the center, the letters forming a good five inch square to contrast the outside square of the patent leather.

The outsized envelopes are the newest, smartest loot in town. After thick dark suedes suddenly become wrinkled and worn after weeks of winter wear, these sleek affairs with shining monograms and coverings, look as beguiling as flowered hats!

Holiday Observance.

With Washington's birthday imminent, we relate a little incident that occurred last year. A steel company with general offices in Chicago was trying to get off a rush shipment for England and needed some information from the British consulate to complete the paper work. Upon calling the consulate office, a firm official found it was closed in honor of Washington's birthday.

Commentary on G. W. T. W.

I can't get tickets from the louses
So, a plague on both their houses.

Orientation.

A man named Robert Manley was waiting for a friend in the lobby of the Palmer house when he heard a man standing near by muttering to himself, "Northeast corner . . . northeast corner." The man reached into his pocket and Mr. Manley, who was impatiently awaiting his own date, glanced at the watch he thought his neighbor had produced. But it was a compass—not a watch—that the man held. After a quick checkup, compass in hand, he moved across the lobby to the northeast corner. The last Mr. Manley saw of him he was going out the Monroe street entrance with a redhead on his arm.

WPA Class.

It was a WPA class on "Creative Writing" in one of Chicago's public libraries and Marie Lemster-Wells wandered into it by accident. The lone man in the class was reading his piece on arithmetic:

"If father drank eleven cocktails and grandmother eight, how many cocktails are left . . . ?" he read.

"Ah doan think they would be very good for them," interpolated a mellow Negro voice, that of a former Tennessee school teacher.

"Now, now," said the instructor sharply. "Where would you suggest sending this article for publication?"

Aside from anything else that is being taught, Miss Lemster-Wells concludes, the class is giving a group of mixed color, background, and ideas a common ground of free expression.

Cuff Notes.

Now it is a book on Lincoln from Egypt, Ill., When Lincoln Came to Egypt, by George W. Smith, for many years head of the department of history in the Southern Illinois Teachers college. The book, scheduled for spring publication, is said to contain new Lincoln material relevant to his appearances in courts in that area when he was a young lawyer, a campaign speaker and, later, a candidate for the United States senate. . . . That was Princess Erika Bernadotte, wife of Prince Sigvard, who is a brother of the Swedish crown princess Ingrid, eating luncheon at the Kungsholm yesterday. . . . And that little boy in a red pixie cap, with fox furs wrapped about his shoulders, you might have seen pushing against the wind in Lincoln park was Hansel, Baron von Kessel, age 4.

A corrected version of the brain teaser printed yesterday is sent in by Mrs. H. A. Berens. Each of the seven blanks represents a word of six letters. The same six letters are used, but the words are all different:

A —— sat in his —— gray,
Watching the moonbeams' —— play
On a bottle that deep in the bushes lay.
"Thou —— the weak, thou —— the strong,
Let the battle's —— to thee belong!"
The —— of leaves took up the song,
"John Barleycorn is king."

Industry Holds a Special Day for Consumers

Several thousand women and several hundred manufacturers and advertising men met yesterday at the Palmer House to find out what industry is trying to do for its customers and what the customers expect of industry. The occasion was the second annual Consumers' day sponsored by the Women's Advertising club and several hundred cooperating women's organizations.

"Industry hopes consumer movements will continue to develop and to keep manufacturers alert as to what their customers want," Thomas H Beck, president of the Crowell-Collier Publishing company, told the women.

"But we also hope that Mrs. Consumer will remember that she and her husband are involved, and that thoughtless demands may affect the employment of thousands. I trust she will not upset the apple cart."

Asserting that the American standard of living is based on "a mass market, created by mass demands, in turn created by mass advertising," Mr. Beck urged, "Do not limit the effectiveness of advertising by insisting that it be a matter of two and two. It needs color and glamor as well as logic. You women, in fact, inspired us to put glamor into advertising."

The silk industry invited the women to enter a contest to identify fabrics, and urged them to demand labels. At a consumer clinic experts told how to buy various types of merchandise successfully, and answered questions from the audience.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 2.—The best stories about the players rarely reach print. How many of you know that Jeanette MacDonald's first actual contact with Hollywood covered her with blushes? She was dancing in a musical show at the Liberty theater, on 42d street and in doing a kick, her right slipper flew off, sailed out into the orchestra and landed in the lap of Marquis Henry De La Falaise, who was sitting in the fourth row with Gloria Swanson.

She was embarrassed, not only because of the mishap, but because she was wearing a pair of old stage slippers, and she winced when she thought of what the fastidious Miss Swanson must have said when the dilapidated slipper landed in her hubby's lap.

David Oliver Selznick, who won international attention with "Gone With The Wind," rode into the movies on the right hand swipe that landed flush on Jack Dempsey's chin. In September, 1923, all that remained of the elder Selznick's film fortune was young David's raccoon coat. Wrapped in the collegiate symbol, Dave went to see Luis Firpo and engaged him to make a one reel short for $1,000, which young Selznick had borrowed from Phil Rosen, a friend. Selznick shot the one-reeler in Central park in one day. When Firpo punched Dempsey out of the ring, the one-reeler became valuable. Selznick cleaned up $6,000, gave half to Rosen.

If the Dempsey-Firpo fight was significant to Selznick in launching him upon his career, the Dempsey-Tunney fight has nostalgic memories for Eleanor Powell. At the Silver Slipper, at Atlantic City, Eleanor won her first dancing prize when she outhoofed all the black bottom dancers at the resort.

The prize was a ringside ticket to the Dempsey-Tunney fight and the headwaiter talked her out of the ticket.

When you saw "Boys' Town," perhaps you wondered, as I did, at Director Norman Taurog's amazing ability to handle kid actors. The reason is that Taurog was a kid actor himself. In 1913, he played the office boy rôle in "Potash and Perlmutter" at the Cohan theater on Broadway.

Later with George M. Cohan, Taurog played the kid rôle in "Broadway Jones." [Almost 20 years later, Taurog was to direct George M. Cohan in "Phantom President."]

Eric Blore wanted to be a singer, but London music hall patrons cured him of that misapprehension. In one night, Blore was cat-called off the Paragon stage in London, and booed off the Canterbury stage a few hours later. He claims that he is the only performer who ever laid two eggs in one evening.

Charlie Winninger was on-stage at the Cohan theater the night that the Titanic went down. His wife, Blanche Ring, quieted the audience by singing "Rings on My Fingers, Bells on My Toes."

Adolphe Menjou, then a student at Cornell, got sassy with a college professor and the professor hit him a right hand clip and knocked him down a flight of stairs. . . . The professor later bobbed up in pictures: Louis Wolheim. . . . George Burns gave Gracie Allen an $18 wedding ring when they were married in Cleveland in 1926, because he couldn't afford anything more expensive. . . . She still wears it. . . . Jack Benny, originally a violinist, did his first talking comedy part when he appeared with the sailor performers at the Great Lakes Naval Training station during the war. . . . Benny played the part of a comic orderly.

Untold stories about the other leading men too. Today Don Ameche is a big name in flickers. Not so many years ago, he was playing in the late Texas Guinan's vaudeville act, enacting the part of the district attorney in a stage parody of her arrest during prohibition days.

Tyrone Power will tell you of the days at the recent Chicago Fair when he worked as a shill in one of the concessions, pulling in customers to see how movies were made.

Robert Taylor, now a big shot at Metro, got $35 a week when he first went to work there, and he might have never got his picture break had not Marcella Knapp begged the higher-ups to look at a test he had made with the girl who is now Mrs. Hamilton MacFadden. . . . "Flying Down to Rio" launched Fred Astaire: It's interesting to know that Astaire, after seeing the picture, offered to return his salary if the studio would only destroy the print. That's how bad he imagined himself to be.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

I've seen 'em funnier, but, just the same, the bulbous-nosed Fields and the otherwise-bulbous-but-not-nearly-so-much-so-as-she-uster-be Miss West, are managing to wangle quite a few laughs from the paying guests at the Palace.

Behold the twain then, in the wild west during the days when the sort of clothes worn by our Mae in a certain type of environment occasioned only admiring comment. She is seen as a girl from Chicago. . . . Mr. Fields enters the picture as a busy getter what he canner from any source. . . . With a false ring he Mae weds, not knowing the while that the ceremony she engineers is bogus.

This spurious splicing occurs on a train en route to Greasewood from Little Bend. Flower Belle Lee has left the last named burg at the request of the vigilance committee, who have discovered her cozily in the embrace of a bandit who had held up the stage bearing Flower to Little Bend, made off with much gold, and is decidedly wanted by the authorities. . . . Flower, kidnapped by the masked highwayman in good ol' Bill Hart fashion, had turned up intact, smiling cryptically and carrying a fat little bag of gold dust—part of the loot. SO—the order that she leave Little Bend until she could come back respectable AND married. . . . Cuthbert J. Twillie to the rescue! . . .

The twain arrive in Greasewood, mayored by a Desperate Desmond whom you rightly suspect to be—never MIND! . . . He, of course, falls for Flower's charms, as also does Wayne Carter, a noble young newspaper publisher. . . .

Much transpires, with Mae looking as if she smelled something bad, in a nice way, spouting would-be naughties, and, as always, running true to form. . . . Mr. Fields gets tangled up in card games, marabou boas, and such. Joseph Calleia, by way of being my favorite villain, or at least one of them, is a neat job as the mayor. Other players know what to do.

The film has a number of amusing situations and direction that was certainly adequate to the story.

But if it HASN'T long stretches of dullness, why then I'm all wrong.

[A movie co-starring Mr. Fields and Fannie Brice! Now wouldn't THAT be something!]

The Girl in the Shadows

By Roy Vickers

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage, Cynthia Brentiford is sentenced to prison. An innocent scapegoat of the crook, Rory Clarke, she hides her plight from her fiancé, Michael Alloway. At Honeybyker, Cynthia's childhood playmate, Bessie Stockley, is a prison wardress. Bessie manages to change places with Cynthia and let Cynthia have her two weeks' leave of absence to marry Michael. Then Cynthia persuades Michael to go back to his job in Malta alone. She goes back to prison. There she discovers she is going to have a baby and manages to break prison. Explaining her silence as a lapse of memory, she goes to stay with Michael's mother and sister Marion at Cloutleigh. Rory Clarke trails her there and blackmails her. Thru a phone call, Scotland Yard connects Cynthia with Rory Clarke. Detective Stevens comes down to Cloutleigh. Marion, pretending to be young Mrs. Alloway to the detective, learns enough to arouse her suspicions. Planning to fly to Malta with Gen. Sir William Merrowbridge, Cynthia is arrested at the airport and taken to Scotland Yard for questioning. Her marriage on a date when she was supposed to be in prison clears her. Cynthia learns Bessie has lost her job thru Clarke's blackmailing and gives her a note of recommendation to Marion. Cynthia arrives safely at Malta, but Detective Stevens is still investigating at Cloutleigh. Bessie asks Marion for a job. In Stevens' presence, Bessie writes a note to Marion admitting she has been a prison wardress.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

DATE WITH A DETECTIVE.

Stevens held the wallet out to Marion, watching her face as he asked:

"Is that Stainham?"

Obviously, thought Marion, the less they all had to do with Stainham the better. So she nerved herself to answer:

"No."

Stevens had seen the hesitation.

"Are you quite sure, Miss Alloway?"

"Well, I don't remember the man particularly well, but I do know that he was clean shaven," she answered.

"Thank you, Miss Alloway. I don't think I need trouble you any further just at present."

Stevens folded the wallet and put it away. As he did so his eye fell on the pad that the girl—Bessie—whoever she was—had used and left upon the table.

The sheet which she had used was unfortunately hidden from his eyes, folded into Miss Alloway's bag; but Bessie had written heavily and the imprint of the words, or at least some of them, was just visible in the late afternoon light.

"Seem to have forgotten it," he muttered. He cleared his throat. "With your permission, Miss Alloway, I'll help myself to your pad."

"Certainly," nodded Marion, impatient only for him to be gone.

She did not notice that he tore off three or four sheets and turned them, so that he jotted down a note or two on what had been the under one. The top one, with its half-visible secret, he held lightly against the palm of his hand. He took his leave.

Bessie walked slowly back along Manor lane. She was in no hurry to get to the village—in fact, she was deliberately dawdling. She wanted that detective to catch up with her.

In the meantime, she had plenty to think about. Miss Alloway had swallowed her surprise at the curiously worded note handed to her. Either she would ask for an explanation later on, and Bessie would have to invent a reason for such secrecy. Or she would carefully avoid questions, preferring not to bring her own suspicions into the open. "That's what she'll do," decided Bessie. "She'll keep silent till Miss Cynthia needs help; and then she'll help her. She's that sort of young lady."

"O, good evening! How dark it's getting, isn't it?"

"Days are drawing in," agreed Stevens, pausing to light a cigaret. "And in the country you seem to notice it more, after the lights of London. Don't you?"

Bessie, recognizing an attempt to discover her origins, smiled to herself.

"I'm country bred," she said without specifying what part of the country she came from. "And London lights confuse me as much as the dusk does you. Tho, I suppose, a detective is never confused by anything."

"I've heard people say so, but I've never believed 'em," grinned Stevens. Then his manner changed.

"I'll tell you something I'm not supposed to, because you're staying in the village and I don't want you to be alarmed if anything happens."

"Do you expect something to happen in the village?"

"Well, I won't go so far as to say that. Anyhow, it's like this. There was a man round here not so very long ago we're after. And we've got the tip that he's coming again." He watched her carefully and added: "Man of the name of Stainham."

Bessie's face betrayed nothing.

"What's he done?" she asked.

"Ah, I can't tell you that. But if you do see a stranger hanging about I'd be glad to know."

Bessie was about to say that as far as she knew she herself was the only stranger in the village, when she saw the danger and chuckled to herself instead. So far, she thought, the detective was rather clumsy in his methods, tho pleasant enough. And if it were true that Rory Clarke was in the neighborhood, the more detectives the better.

She chattered on about his work, quite skilfully, avoiding any information about her own, but could find out no more about Clarke, whom Stevens referred to only as Stainham. Presently she let him change the subject.

"I have to go into Taunton this evening," he said. "I don't know whether you'd care to come to a film? My business won't take long."

"I'd love to!" Bessie's enthusiasm was unaffected. Country bred she might be, but the thought of a solitary evening in Mrs. Bodge's parlor had made her heart sink. "When do we start?"

"Shall we say in half an hour? At the inn?"

"I'll be there."

Humming a little tune, Bessie turned in at Mrs. Bodge's and ran upstairs to change into her best frock. For in spite of Cynthia's warning she had, after parting from her, made a stealthy way back to the house in Camden Town and packed her belongings, leaving a scribbled line of thanks for her cousin, and promising to send an address.

On her way downstairs she stopped to tell the good natured Mrs. Bodge that she would be late. She was in the hall of the Lorna Doone Arms some 10 minutes before time.

She had assumed that they would go to Taunton by bus and asked a passing farmer's boy where, exactly, the halt was; for the inn stood on a corner, with two frontages. The boy indicated the further side; but with true rural reticence forbore to add that altho it was not yet 5 o'clock the last bus to Taunton had left a good hour ago.

Bessie stood for some five minutes on the drafty corner and then saw the glimmer of a time sheet hanging on the inn wall. With the aid of a pocket torch she examined it. . . . Yes, Stevens would evidently be going by car.

"Fancy me joy riding with a detective," she giggled. "Perhaps he'll handcuff me. Hullo! What's that?"

It was with merely idle curiosity that she found herself staring up at what was recognizably his shadow on the drawn curtains of a room well above the bus time sheet.

Against rose colored folds Stevens' profile stood out in sharp silhouette; if Bessie had had any doubt about it, she would have been sure when he half turned to light a cigaret. . . . But what was he doing, for goodness sake?

She stepped back a few paces, puzzled. He was holding something up to the light. The negative of a snapshot? Too big for that. A telegraph form? Too small. Whatever it was, it was about the size of the paper Bessie had handed to Miss Alloway half an hour ago.

She acted on impulse. She ran round to the other door of the inn, passed straight inside and saw the stairs immediately in front of her.

A Grand Rapids attorney, who has previously contributed to this column, has this to say about poultry stuffings. He has the carver's viewpoint.

"It would be a boon to the carver if the stuffing of a fowl were removed in the kitchen and placed on a serving platter in portions. This might be done as the fowl is removed from the oven.

"The carver then could concentrate on his carving and would not be compelled to lay down his carving implements after severing each portion of the meat to take up a more or less adequate spoon and grope at an awkward angle for an unseen portion of stuffing. The time saved in serving, the fair and appetizing portions of stuffing, and the neatness and dispatch of a carving job carried thru without interruption are worth considering."

It is considered proper, I believe, to carve enough of the fowl for all portions before serving the plates. But this does not alter the fact that it is somewhat awkward for the carver to use the serving fork and then drop it to pick up a spoon for scooping out stuffing. Our correspondent has a point there, but it is my opinion that the ceremony of removing stuffing from a fowl at the table makes a far more interesting dinner than would service of portions of stuffing from the kitchen. Of course, a separate casserole of stuffing may be baked and passed at table after the first portions of real honest-to-goodness "stuffing" have been consumed, but this doesn't help the carver any.

The only solution which I can see is for the carver to make a real effort to become so adept at his job that there won't appear to be any awkward moments. Perhaps other men who do a good deal of carving may have something to say on the subject. I always have been sympathetic toward carvers, and if there are ways to make their duties easier, I'm for 'em!

Simone Simon Holds Rehearsals for Role in W-G-N Play Tomorrow

Simone Simon, vivacious young French actress, began rehearsals yesterday for her first radio appearance in Chicago. Miss Simon is to be headlined in the "Fifth Row Center" production on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system at 5 p. m. tomorrow. She will star in "Model Princess," a play written for her by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Miss Simon is currently appearing in "Three After Three" at the Erlanger theater. This is her first appearance on the stage in America. She is co-starred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green, who will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual network soon.

"Fifth Row Center" is aired each Sunday with a different topflight entertainer as guest performer. The show is one of W-G-N's innovations to bring the station's listeners the finest in entertainment.

Miss Simon will be supported tomorrow by Olan Soule and Brett Morrison, Chicago radio actors. Music will be provided by Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra. Blair Walliser will direct the show.

Various Causes of Quarreling Suggest Cures

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Did you discover, with our previous listing, the reason why your children quarrel?

Did it lead you to find a remedy, and to plan so that you could effect a cure?

If your children quarrel because they are too far apart in age and yet are constantly together, try separating them in their play for part of each day. Also try to get other companionship for them.

This general scheme also works where children are of temperaments not congenial. Introducing other personalities into their association helps.

When quarreling occurs in children very young and near in age over their toys, it is wise to occasionally duplicate some playthings. If Billy and Jeanie both adore little wagons or furry animals or a special tiny red truck, get one for each. Naturally this can't be done with everything, nor would it be wise, since some give and take and taking turns must be learned.

When rough and tumble inevitably leads to fights and tears, provide games or apparatus for the outlet of excess energy and call a halt on the "rough house" before it goes too far.

If you and your husband have gotten into the unfortunate habit of quarreling, make a pact to stop it and learn self-control as well as a better adjustment. And if you must argue, do it when the children aren't around.

Don't neglect your older child for a younger one, no matter how sunny or engaging he may be.

Round out your children's lives with lots of play, active exercise, and the companionship of other children and pets—this latter only if you are willing to see that excellent care is taken of the same.

If your home is very small and confined, put your wits to work to offset its effect. Take the children to the park; move where they can play outdoors nearby; let them join some play group; plan something with another mother, each taking a small group on little trips to zoos or docks or museums or parks; make use of nursery school facilities for the younger ones. Also find hobbies or special interests for the children's leisure, so their personalities are not free to bump each other constantly.

Ideal for Every Fabric

MISS' TWO-PIECE COSTUME.

Because its lines are so simple and so sleek, this two-piece frock makes up well in almost any fabric. For town wear during the present season, make it of lightweight woolen or rather heavy silk, and trim it with nothing but a slide fastener to contrast and two self material, heart shaped, patch pockets on the bodice. For southern resort wear fashion it of gayly patterned wash silk, linen or cotton, and use plaiting for trimming on the snugly fitted bodice, with buttons down the front. The sketch illustrates how versatile this simple pattern is.

Style No. 3145 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved jacket and skirt; 1⅞ yards for short-sleeved jacket; 2 yards for skirt.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the spring Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Three Moderns Lend Variety to Arts Club Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three exhibitions opened yesterday at the Arts club, Wrigley building, to continue to Feb. 27. Each is a modern exhibit but except for that each differs from the other to an almost amusing extent.

In the first gallery are paintings by Abraham Rattner, who is an American by birth tho his painting stems directly from the French and shows chiefly the influence which Picasso and Rouault have had upon him. There is a great deal of the "stained glass window" about his pictures and when that is lacking pure Picasso shines thru the distortions.

As one walks thru this first gallery the feeling grows that one has become lost in a labyrinth of Edwin Lear nonsense verses. The rhythm of "There was an old man of Badoo who walked with a pink and blue shoe, they said are you mad which made the man sad, etc." is convulsing in its finality. These weird creatures from Mr. Rattner's fertile imagination practically sway down the walls, when they do not suddenly freeze in a melancholy mold. The artist's ultra modern approach to painting may delight some tastes, for others it will have little meaning.

Yves Tanguy is a surrealist and the group of paintings he offers remind one first of Dali. But Dali would never be satisfied to play the same theme as many times as Tanguy has done. All of these compositions are of a beach and invisible sea that reaches into an invisible horizon.

Gray is the constant color. Breaking it up and dotting the beach [and infrequently the water] are shells and little mechanical devices of stone, wood and elastic. They sprinkle blobs of color on an otherwise cool, vague expanse of frozen fog.

In the last room are paintings by Camille Bombois, who is a self-confessed primitive. The paintings remind one of those by two of our Chicago artists, Remahl and Hoyer. They suggest also, to a degree, Henri Rousseau and John Kane. In short, they are primitives—and of the first order.

The surfaces are flat and extremely neat. Details are methodically recited, action is at a minimum, but there is charm in abundance. You will like this room and nonetheless because of the quiet humor which is also an attribute of this type of modernism.

Girl in Love Finds Mother Is Her Rival

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am 18 and madly in love with a man who is exactly my mother's age. My mother, I have to admit, is beautiful and she also is a spoiled woman. She wants everything for herself. She has always been that way, as my dad could prove, were he alive. This man I love took me out a number of times, and then he began asking if we couldn't take my mother along. He said he felt sorry leaving her at home alone.

"Of course, my mother jumped at the chance. Now what's happened is that they leave me at home alone, not worrying about how lonesome and unhappy I feel. He is the sort of a man a girl likes to have, because he takes one to the best places, and buys flowers if one goes dancing, and does everything nice like that.

"He has money, of course, but it isn't for that I love him. I am sure it is his money that my mother likes. It's an awful thing to say, but I am getting so that I just hate my mother for stealing my beau away from me.

JANET."

Now, Janet, you're a big girl, 18 and in full possession of your senses, except as applied to this man who has come between you and your mother. Isn't it reasonable to suppose that if you were the one he was after, you'd be the one he'd make it plain he wished to take out? Aren't you behaving pretty unfairly to your mamma, letting jealousy persuade you that she is things she probably is not at all?

You don't want a man your mother's age, anyway, do you? Lots more fun for you if he turns out to be your step-daddy, we'd think, and you ran around with a younger man who talks your young language and dreams your young dreams.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

When the defeat of a contract depends on one of the defenders overruffing the declarer, the best technique demands that the high card defensive tricks be cashed at an early stage. Wily declarers do not risk being over-ruffed if they can avoid it thru the simple stratagem of discarding a losing card instead of ruffing. Today's hand is an illustration.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	3 hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

South opened the 10 of diamonds, dummy played low, and the diamond suit was continued with the deuce. North won the jack and followed with the ace and king. If the declarer had made the error of ruffing either with a high or low card, South's jack of trumps would have been promoted to a full trick, either by an overruff of a low card or by establishment if East had ruffed with a high honor. The declarer, however, was too experienced to be caught in such a web. He simply discarded his losing king of spades. Now there was no defense. North led the ace of spades, East ruffed and ran off his nine tricks without difficulty.

Good defense would have made the contract impossible of fulfilment. North could tell from his partner's second lead of the deuce that the declarer started with three diamonds. He could, therefore, have cashed in safety the three diamond tricks, but before leading the fourth round in the hope that South could overruff the declarer, he should have taken the precaution of laying down the spade ace. Under no circumstances could this play have cost a trick and, on the particular lay of the cards that existed, it would have had a splendid result. Declarer could not thereafter discard a losing card and would be forced to ruff. Whether he chose to ruff high or low, South's jack would have been promoted to winning value.

Reduce Now to Fit Your Easter Togs

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Don't go leaving your weight reduction until the week before Easter, or you are going to be sorry. You're going to feel just too bad when you run around trying on new things for the big parade day.

We're just trying to save you Easter pains by warning you in time that a little slow reducing now may slither you into that darling little number you saw in the illustrations. Maybe you are only 10 pounds over, which isn't much to fight, you know, on longish and slowish terms. Simply eliminate the things that you know are responsible for the weight piling. No one has to name them. You know best.

Get yourself into a little exercise habit. Start with one good exercise a day—bending, stretching, anything that comes easy to you until you get a bit of the stiffness out. Coax yourself into the exercising spirit by small doses. We are a great believer in that, knowing more women have rebelled against this form of silhouette retainer because of a superfluity of exercise at first. Go easy on the exercise at first. Eliminate a bit of butter and sugar and starch from breakfast, lunch and dinner each day. Eat nothing between meals. And you five, six to ten pounds, mostly centered around the midriff, will have sluiced off gracefully come Easter shopping days.

BETTINA ENDS APOSTOLI'S CAREER IN 12TH

DE PAUL PLAYS INDIANA; SEEKS 10TH VICTORY IN ROW

LOU POSSNER READY DESPITE INJURED KNEE

Loyola's Five Meets U. of Chicago.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Is this the night De Paul's victory march ends? Indiana university, defeated only once this season, comes to the Coliseum to meet the Blue Demons, who likewise were whipped once in this campaign after which they raced to nine consecutive victories.

De Paul probably has met basketball teams as proficient as the Hoosiers. Certainly this was true when De Paul was beaten by Southern California in overtime and later whipped Santa Clara. And De Paul also has beaten Oregon, defending National Collegiate champion.

Seek Sweep Over Big Ten Foes.

There is an undercurrent of opinion, however, despite the elation on the north side at the announcement Lou Possner will be able to start, that Indiana will end the Demons' march. Possibly the knee injury Possner suffered in the Toledo game Monday evening is basis for the thought. Again, it may be that after rallying for many last minute decisions [the Trojan game excepted] the pendulum will swing to the other side.

One of De Paul's achievements was the early season conquest of Purdue, 37 to 25, on the Boilermakers' floor. Chicago also has lost to De Paul so tonight's battle in the Coliseum offers De Paul opportunity for a sweep of Big Ten engagements. Indiana has won three conference games—Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin—but was upset by Minnesota in Minneapolis, 46 to 44. The Hoosiers have scored nonconference games over Nebraska, Pittsburgh, Duquesne, Butler, and Villanova, among others.

Indiana's fast break style of attack, with continuous pressure by changing players, will test De Paul's defenses as they were tried by Santa Clara, which lost a close game in the final minute. Even Southern California, which might have been defeated had Possner scored on either of two free throws in the final minute, didn't play a driving game such as does Indiana. Indiana probably will start Andy Zimmer, sophomore, at center. His height will aid Indiana against the work of Elmer Gainer. Bill Menke and Paul Armstrong are the Hoosier starting forwards. Capt. Marv Huffman and Bob Dro are the guards. Seven other players will make the trip to Chicago.

De Paul's best advantage probably is that Indiana hasn't played in more than two weeks, but De Paul's continued play may have taken something from the Demons. There is no letup either, for Monday night De Paul meets Louisiana State in the regular double header program. De Paul's well rounded offensive quintet includes Ed Norris, Stan Szukala, and Ed Sachs, as well as Possner and Gainer, in the opening lineup.

St. Philip and Mount Carmel, leading teams of the Catholic prep league, will play a preliminary game starting at 8:15.

Loyola Meets U. of Chicago.

Chicago's other double header team, Loyola, meets another Big Ten opponent tonight. The Ramblers are the last nonconference opponents for the Maroons in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The game offers solace to one or the other, for Chicago has been beaten in its last six games while Loyola has lost 10 in a row.

Chicago's lineup, virtually constant early in the season in which Chicago won three and lost six games, probably will consist of lanky Joe Stampf paired with Carl Stanley at the forwards, Capt. Dick Lounsbury at center, and Ralph Richardson and Art Jorgensen, whose average height is 6 feet 3½ inches, at the guard positions.

Mickey Rottner, sophomore, is expected to spark the Ramblers' offensive in hope of repeating last year's 35 to 28 victory over the Maroons.

Illini, Notre Dame Clash.

Wisconsin and Illinois complete the list of Big Ten teams in action tonight. Notre Dame, playing on its home floor, will seek its sixth straight basketball victory against Illinois. The Irish will be out for the second straight revenge victory, having beaten Northwestern, 56 to 27, last Saturday after a previous 10 point defeat.

Illinois, which won a 42 to 29 decision in Champaign, will be hampered by the loss of three ineligible players, including Bob Richmond, starting guard. John Drish or Henry Sachs will start in Richmond's post. Notre Dame has won nine of its 13 games, starting the season with four victories, followed by four defeats, before inaugurating the current winning streak.

Michigan State entertains Wisconsin tonight in the Spartans' new fieldhouse. It is the seventh encounter for the rivals in as many years and the Badgers have won five of the six games played.

Mr. Frick Is Trifle Late with Request for Rules Revision

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If Ford Frick, National league president, wants a revision and clarification of the laws governing the operation of professional baseball he can have action immediately. The American league is willing and Commissioner K. M. Landis is agreeable.

While Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn club executive, was busy in Boston Thursday night assailing Landis' determination to shackle the baseball "chain stores," Frick attacked in the New York sector with a statement that the game's regulations were obsolete.

So with Frick's suggestion in mind, President Will Harridge of the American league yesterday came up with documentary evidence that his club owners had pioneered such an action at their Cincinnati meeting last December. The National league, at the time, supposedly ignored the American's request for coöperation.

Amendments Are Rejected.

At the Cincinnati meeting the National waged a fight for amendments which it figured, if adopted into the code, would have made it impossible for Landis to bomb the chain stores. The amendments were discarded by the votes of the commissioner and the American league. The latter preferred to iron out all the differences, a resolution to proceed in an orderly manner was adopted and Landis expressed his approval of the plan. The resolution, which wasn't made public at the time, was as follows:

"Whereas, it is a recognized fundamental principle that fair and equal competition is the very essence of professional baseball's long and successful history, and,

"Whereas, organized baseball recognizes its responsibility to its member players, and desires that each of its member players has equal opportunity for development, advancement and compensation.

Would Appoint Committee.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved:

"That the president of the American League of Professional Baseball Clubs shall appoint three members of the American league to act with him as a committee and to invite the National league to appoint a similar committee. This joint committee from the two leagues, together with the commissioner of baseball and the president of the National association, shall then make a study of all the rules and regulations governing and controlling the operation of professional baseball clubs, with the view of simplifying, coördinating and consolidating into one set of rules and regulations all of the rules, regulations and amendments of prior years and to recommend any changes in or additions to such rules and regulations.

"After this study has been made, the commissioner of baseball will be requested to call a special joint meeting of the two major leagues at which meeting this committee shall report its findings and recommendations for the consideration of the major leagues.

"The committee shall be empowered to employ such counsel and to incur such other expenses as it deems necessary and expedient for the purposes outlined herein."

National Just Ignored It.

A copy of the proposal was sent to the meeting room of the National league. After almost two days of waiting the American was informed its fellow major hadn't considered the thing. The National still may have had hopes it could outmaneuver Landis on the chain problem. But such hopes undoubtedly were blown to bits when a few weeks later Landis freed 91 Detroit club farm hands and followed with a bulletin setting forth severe penalties for any official caught manipulating farm club players in such way as to retard their advancement in the profession.

The National league will hold its annual spring meeting in New York next week and it is possible in view of President Frick's statement that it will decide to give consideration to the American league's proposal of seven weeks ago.

PATTY BERG WINS ON 38TH FROM BETTY JAMESON

National Champion Beaten in Long Battle.

It was nearly dark and the two girls were verging upon exhaustion when Betty missed her tee shot on the short 38th and lost to the redhead from Minneapolis. They had been deadlocked at the end of 18 holes and at the end of 36.

Seldom have two women shot such consistently brilliant golf. Each carded a 76 in the morning and another 76 in the afternoon, only five strokes over men's par for a long, exacting course, and six strokes under women's par. A crowd of 2,000 followed the match.

Betty Never in Lead.

When Patty scored her winning 3 on the second extra hole, it marked the eighth time in the course of the match that she had gone ahead. The other seven times Betty had pulled her back to all square. But she was never ahead during the long, hot match.

Miss Jameson, who was doubly anxious to win today and prove her right to the national title, had her chance on the 36th green. On the 480 yard hole she played a beautiful third shot to within six feet of the cup, and had the putt for a birdie and a win. While the gallery held its breath her ball slid past the rim of the cup and missed.

With the sun disappearing behind the palms, they played the 500 yard first extra hole in regulation fives, and the two tired 21 year olds went on to the 38th. It obviously was the last hole they would be able to play.

Misses Shot Completely.

Betty, for the first time in nearly nine hours of play, missed her tee shot completely. It wound up on the edge of a deep trap at the left side of the green, and she played it out too strong, across the grass. She came back dead for her four, but it wasn't good enough. Patty rolled her second close from 20 feet, and Betty held out her hand.

Only some marvelous putting enabled Miss Jameson to carry the match so far. She was shorter off the tee than her rival and nearly always a trifle shorter when they reached the greens. But she chipped well, and she holed her putts. On the first nine holes of the afternoon round, for instance, she had seven one putt greens. Early in the second round Patty went to two up, but the San Antonio girl sank her putts and pulled back even. Following are their cards:

Bulla and Partner Win Best Ball Match with 60

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP).—John Bulla, Chicago professional, and his partner turned in a best ball score of 60 today in the pro-amateur preliminary to the $3,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament. He teamed with Loren La Prade, young Phoenix amateur, to register the 11 under par score and take first prize money of $75. Bulla's medal card was 65, La Prade's 72. The 54 hole open begins tomorrow.

JOHN MICHELOSEN, University of Pittsburgh quarter back in 1937, who stayed out of professional football on Coach Jock Sutherland's promise to make him his assistant wherever he went, will be affiliated with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the fall, but not as a player unless the Dodgers come to some agreement with the Chicago Cardinals to whom Michelosen belongs. . . . Bonanza.

"Where do you get your ideas?"
Somebody said to me.
I get them, kind sir, from him and her,
From them and those and thee.

To me, every person I chance to meet
Contains a potential vein,
Which, properly mined, is very worth while
And proves an eventual gain.

The girl in the coffee shop down the street,
Who scolds as she cleans up a muss
Then makes a smart crack in the very next breath—
Then there's that chap on the bus,

A fellow with plenty of humor
Back of that poker face;
Often I hate to get off the tram
When it reaches the proper place.

The cop on the beat, the paper boy,
The woman who cleans by the day,
The night clerk at the old Merchants Hotel just over the way.

Where do I get my ideas?
Sometimes it makes me sore
That with life so vital and pulsing,
I don't get a whole lot more!

The Wake Depends Upon Its Friends.

With Life So Short.

A million years from now both you and I
Will be alive somewhere beyond this sphere,
Crowned with celestial joys that never die
Or haunted by unconquerable fear;
Our hearts will know eternal peace and rest
Or be tormented by uncessing pain,
And we shall walk forever with the blest
Or follow the red caravan of Cain.

What fools we are to trade eternity
For the poor passing pleasures of the day,
To sell the birthright won at Calvary
For miserable baubles made of clay;
To follow blindly with the reckless throng
With life so short, eternity so long.

AUBREY TO LEAD GOLDEN GLOVERS FROM CLEVELAND

Colored Heavyweight Wins Finals Before 10,000.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 2 [Special].—Allen Aubrey, a colored boy with a knockout in his right hand, will lead the Cleveland Golden Gloves team into the Chicago Tribune's Tournament of Champions next month.

Aubrey became heavyweight champion of the northeastern Ohio A. A. U. district tonight by outclassing Jerry Koberna, 210 pounds, in the finals of the Cleveland Plain Dealer tourney before 10,000 fans. Altho unable to connect solidly with the right hand that felled two of his earlier opponents, Aubrey won by a wide margin.

Casket Maker Wins.

George George, a casket maker, whipped Bobby Berry to score one of the biggest upsets of the tourney and win the light heavyweight crown. Staggering the favored Berry with a series of rights to the head, George won the unanimous decision.

Jabbing Larney Durrah off stride and then connecting with whistling rights to the head, Joe Maxin, the best boxer in the tourney, took the middleweight title. Durrah, who carries dynamite in both hands, was baffled by the shifty Maxin.

Lawer Keeps Going.

Beauford Glover, Mansfield colored boy, took the lightweight crown by outpunching Jerry Flemia in an interesting battle. Glover, called the outstanding fighter in the Cleveland tourney by many trainers, was far too clever for Flemia and pounded him at will.

Schindler Retains Title.

Max Schindler of Lorain became the only champion to retain his title by whipping Tony Lanese in the featherweight final. Lanese took the lead in the first round and was connecting freely in the second when he was suddenly upset by a right to the jaw. That blow turned the tide and Schindler had things his own way in the final round.

DEADLINE AT HAND

Chicago's Golden Gloves boxers have only two more days in which to enter the Chicago championships which will be held in the Coliseum, Feb. 20, 21, and 22. Open division boxers may file entry until midnight tomorrow. Final examination for these boys will be held Friday night in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. Each will receive written instructions by mail earlier in the week.

Monday evening the first of the three sectional tournaments will start in the Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street. The three day tournament will be held in one ring. All contestants assigned to the west side must report Monday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock. The first match will start at 7 o'clock.

TAKE BOXER TO HOSPITAL; FEAR SERIOUS INJURY

Lello, Angott Fight 10 Round Draw.

New York, Feb. 2 [Special].—Brute strength conquered a gallant, fighting heart in Madison Square Garden tonight and carried Melio Bettina, Beacon, N. Y., light heavyweight boxer, to a technical knockout victory in the 12th round over Fred Apostoli in a wild, thrill packed bout. While the rivals were waiting for the 13th round to begin, Larry White, manager of the Californian, instructed Referee Art Donovan to halt the fight.

It was feared the former San Francisco bellhop was suffering from an intracranial concussion. An examination in the dressing room indicated the concussion, according to Dr. John Truiga, examining physician.

Lello, Angott Draw.

Apostoli's defeat marked the end to a spectacular career of four years among the topnotchers during which he won the New York recognition as world middleweight champion. Tonight's was his second bout as a light heavyweight.

A crowd of 12,369 paid $33,218 to watch the two battle for a chance to engage Billy Conn of Pittsburgh for the world's light heavyweight title. Conn defeated Bettina last summer for the championship.

Apostoli Keeps His Feet.

There were no knockdowns in the Bettina-Apostoli battle, tho each assimilated some hard punches. Apostoli, as bewildered as a man trying to escape from his shadow, had the courage of a lion but only the strength of a kitten in the closing rounds. He could hardly breathe and hold his hands in front of him for the last four rounds. In the last round, Apostoli, his eye badly swollen, almost collapsed without being hit and was on the ropes repeatedly.

After the fight, White declared: "I don't know what's happened to Fred recently; it's the mystery of the prize ring. I'm not going to let him fight again. He's thru for good."

Tribute from the Referee.

Apostoli gave the tip-off on his weakened condition as early as the ninth round when he removed his mouthpiece to aid his breathing. He was puffing, his left eye was swollen, and he gasped for aid all thru the last four frames as Bettina mauled and wrestled him around.

Donovan patted Freddie on the back in a gesture of admiration as the coast gamester crawled to his stool at the end of the 12th. Suddenly White and Trainer Whitey Bimstein jumped into the ring and then Donovan went over to Fred's corner. Apostoli pleaded thru battered lips to be allowed to continue.

HAWKS END ROAD TOUR AGAINST LEAFS TONIGHT

Games Tonight

New York Rangers at Montreal.
Chicago at Toronto.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 2.—The Chicago Blackhawks arrived here tonight for their game tomorrow against the Toronto Maple Leafs, final contest of a three game road tour in which the Chicagoans already have lost two.

The Hawks were still in a daze following their meetings with the Boston Bruins and the New York Americans. Last Sunday night they headed for the road with hopes high as the result of an 8 to 1 rout of the Montreal Canadiens. On Tuesday they met the Bruins in Boston and emerged with a 5 to 0 licking, the 14th the Bostonians have handed them in 15 starts.

Shore Adds to Hawks' Woes.

The Boston hex continued thru last night's game in Madison Square Garden, where the Americans drubbed them, 5 to 2. The real reason for this defeat was that hardy ex-Bruin, Eddie Shore, recently traded to the Americans by Boston. There was some speculation about whether Shore was in condition for big league hockey, but he settled that by leading the Americans in a four goal third period in which he himself collected two assists.

Meet Detroit Tomorrow.

The Hawks and Toronto have played four times this season, Chicago winning one, 2 to 1, while the Leafs took two by scores of 3 to 1 and 4 to 2. The fourth game ended in a 3 to 3 tie. With this record to face the Hawks were not especially happy, especially since they must return to Chicago immediately after the game to meet the high flying Detroit Red Wings in the Stadium Sunday night.

NEW YORK TO GIVE A SALUTE TODAY TO MAKI, NURMI

New York, Feb. 2 [Special].—Plans for a reception were completed today as word was received that Taisto Maki, the newest flying Finn, and Paavo Nurmi will arrive tomorrow on the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord for a tour of America for the Finnish relief fund.

The Finnish stars will be met down the bay and escorted to city hall for a greeting by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia. Plans also call for an introduction of the pair at the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

NORRIS DENIES THAT HE'LL BUY THE WHITE SOX

James Norris, Chicago grain broker and president of Chicago Stadium, last night denied a report that he was bidding for the White Sox.

"There's not a thing to it," Norris said. "I don't know how the reports started unless it is because I am a director of the First National bank [executors of the J. Louis Comiskey estate]. As a matter of fact the matter hasn't even been discussed. Moreover, I couldn't buy the Sox even if I wanted to."

Scholarships at Iowa Are for Every One

A total of 750 male students out of a total undergraduate enrollment of 3,553 at the University of Iowa held scholarships last year. These consisted principally of reduction of tuition and are based on need and scholastic average.

These figures were included in an outline of conditions at Iowa as released yesterday by Western conference headquarters in Chicago in amplification of its report made public Tuesday on the conference as a whole. The statement on Iowa is the third of the series.

Dean Rienow in Charge.

Iowa last year listed as athletes 251, and 69 of them received the tuition reductions thru the student aid committee, headed by Dean R. E. Rienow, to which any undergraduate may apply. Seven other Iowa athletes held cash scholarships granted by the Chicago Alumni club. Total for the 76 was $5,286.06.

Tuition remission does not exist at Iowa, but loans are not infrequent. They are made thru application to the student aid committee and are available to all students who qualify on the basis of "good scholarship and good security." Forty-nine athletes received loans amounting to $2,950 last year.

Maintain Employment Bureau.

An employment bureau for all students is maintained at Iowa under Lee H. Kahn and last year 134 athletes were assigned to a total of 190 jobs, which included 34 National Youth administration assignments, and the 134 in aggregate earned $16,665.41. Their campus jobs included concessions salesmen.

MADDY HORN AND LAMB TAKE LEAD IN SKATE RACES

Win Two Events Each in Ice Competition.

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP).—Defending Women's Champion Madeline Maddy Horn of Beaver Dam, Wis., and Del Lamb of Milwaukee, Wis., dominated the first day of the North American speed skating tournament today. Miss Horn opened defense of her North American crown by winning the 220-yard and ¾ mile events in her division.

Lamb, member of two Olympic teams and runnerup in last year's North American meet, likewise scored a double with victories in the 220-yard and 1 mile senior men's contests.

Lamb Wins Easily.

Miss Horn, four time winner in her class at the national championships, held last week-end in La Crosse, Wis., traveled the ¾ mile in 2:18, almost a second slower than the 2:17.02 she set in winning the event at Saranac Lake last year. Her 22.4 time for the 220 was 1.3 slower than the 1939 speed.

Lamb had an easy time in the mile, covering the distance in three minutes. Richard Dost of Cleveland established a better mark of 2:46 in winning the intermediate boys' mile. Lamb sped the 220 in 19 seconds, only four-tenths of a second below the 1939 time.

A crowd of 4,000 lined Iroquois lake in freezing weather to watch Miss Horn and Lamb pile up 60 points each toward senior championships.

Freisinger Is Next.

Closest to Lamb in the first day's point score was Leo Freisinger of Chicago, premeet favorite who finished third in the 220-yard race and second in the mile for 30 points. Miss Horn, however, was hard pressed by Louise Herou of Minneapolis, who amassed 40 points with seconds in each of the women's senior races.

Ed Olson of Cleveland, Ohio, won 50 points in the intermediate boys' competition with first place in the 220 and second in the mile, behind Dost. Junior victors were Art Bulrice of Saranac Lake in the boys' 220 and Rose Steininger of Troy in the girls' 220. Bunny Lawler of Chicago won the 220 intermediate girls' event and Walter Rust of Elgin, Ill., the Juvenile boys' 220.

Nine more finals in all divisions will mark tomorrow's competition, with the meet ending Sunday.

TO DECIDE SEVEN TITLES

Training routines will end for the 456 entrants who have been named thus far for the 18 events. Another 40 or 50 are expected to make post entry.

More than 100 of this large field are title aspirants in the seven Western open events, which are for senior men and women and intermediates. The three races making up the men's program are at 220 yards, three-quarters and 2 miles, while the senior girls' pair of championship distances are 440 yards and three-quarters. Intermediates are set for a 220 yard dash and a three-quarter mile race.

Mackey to See Double Action on Polo Card

Claude Mackey will be the busiest man in the 124th Field Artillery armory tonight. Playing in both games of a double header and with different teams he will set a Metropolitan league record. Mackey, captain of the Woodland Polo club, will lead his associates against the 122d Field Artillery.

Then he will start riding all over again at the No. 1 post for the Evanston Polo club against the 124th Field Artillery. Mackey plans to play every minute of both contests. Only once before in the Washington park armory has a polo player done double duty. He was Billy Zimmerman, who played with Ridgewood, N. J., Polo club, and Winston Guest's Optimists on the same night during the 1938 national indoor tournament.

Win or lose, the 124th Field Artillery riders will remain in first place in the senior division, and Evanston in third. The game will be the second of the tourney for these teams, the artillerymen taking a hard fought 13 to 11 decision in their previous meeting. Since then Evanston has defeated Oak Brook and the Chicago Ramblers. Tonight's lineup:

Star Cast Is Assembled for Millrose Meet

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—The 33d annual meet of the Millrose A. A., presenting all-star casts in races from 60 yards up to two miles, will open the major portion of New York's indoor track season tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

The main event, the Wanamaker mile, will find Glenn Cunningham trying for the seventh in a string of victories that started in 1933 and has been broken only once.

The Kansan won last year in 4:13, with Chuck Fenske trailing by two yards. Already beaten this year by Fenske and Gene Venzke, Glenn will be no better than even money against these two and Blaine Rideout, Lou Zamperini, and Les MacMitchell, New York U. sophomore.

One mark that seems due to be wiped off the books is the :49.6 record for the quarter mile set 27 years ago by Tom Halpin.

The event was added to this year's program expressly to get that outdated record off the books, a task which will be intrusted primarily to Johnny Quigley, Manhattan freshman; Harley Howells, Frank Ohl, Harold Cagle, and Charlie Belcher.

In the Millrose 600 Jim Herbert and Wes Wallace, winners the last two years, will match strides with Charlie Beetham, Sanford Goldberg, and one of the two Canadians in the meet, Bill Fritz of Kingston, Ont.

All-star fields also have been lined up for the two mile, in which Greg Rice will try to repeat last week's upset victory over Don Lash; the half mile, with John Woodruff matched against Campbell Kane of Indiana and Jim Kehoe of Maryland, and the three-quarters mile, another Millrose novelty, which will have John Borican, Archie San Romani, Blaine Rideout, and Tommy Deckard on the starting line.

Outdoor Show Opens Indoors on Pier Today

BY BOB BECKER.

Outdoor fans who walk out onto Navy Pier this afternoon for the opening of the National Boat and Sports show may forget that they're in the city and imagine themselves far back in the woods on one of their annual fishing jaunts.

Fragrant evergreen trees, a miniature waterfall, a family of Wisconsin Indians, all types of pleasure boats, and even fishermen angling for bass and pike will be seen by sportsmen who attend the show today or during the coming week. The show will be open from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. each day thru next Sunday, Feb. 10.

Casting Begins Tonight.

A number of competitive events are on the daily schedule, including bait casting sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, golf driving, model power boat racing, table tennis, and rifle and pistol shooting. Another feature of interest to sportsmen will be the miniature skeet shooting range utilizing small shells and small clay pigeons.

The Tribune casting tournament opens at 7:30 tonight when casters from each of the four Chicago casting clubs start their competition for trophies. Club casters may compete tonight, tomorrow, or Monday evening. Fishermen who belong to no casting club will start their chase for Tribune trophies Tuesday evening. The finals will be held next Saturday night, the three high scorers of each previous night being eligible for this event. Casters will be admitted at the gate by showing their rods and reels.

It's All Skish.

All casting competition in this year's show will be in Skish, the new casting game formerly called Fish-O. Skish is similar to regular tournament casting except that the competitor has three casts at each ring instead of only one. The scoring system also is different. Regular fishing equipment must be used, including a nine pound line and a level-wind reel.

POLICE TO TEST NEW NO-STATIC RADIO SYSTEM

Inventor in City to Help with Experiments.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Chicago police department's radio division within a fortnight will begin testing a revolutionary type of staticless broadcasting. This new broadcasting method, developed by Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong of Columbia university and known as the "frequency modulation" type, is reported to offer great advantages over the existing system of transmission in police and aviation radio services, as well as for commercial broadcast stations.

The Federal Communications commission has authorized experimental use of frequency modulation, or F-M, as it is called in radio engineering circles, in police radio. The Chicago department, so far as is known, is the first to avail itself of this method.

Maj. Armstrong, who came to Chicago several days ago, conferred yesterday with Fred H. Schnell, police department radio engineer, under whose direction the tests will be conducted.

More Faithful Reception.

Radio experts say that F-M broadcasting eliminates static and achieves an amazing fidelity of reception. Schnell said that if its claimed superiority is found to hold good in the Chicago police system an F-M system will be adapted for use in the 200 squad cars that are radio equipped. Of these 17 have two way radio systems, making it possible for them to transmit as well as receive messages.

Broadcasting now uses what is known as amplitude modulation. Sound travels along a carrier wave on which the broadcaster must stay lest he get into the pathways of other broadcasters. "Modulating" consists of loading this carrier wave with sounds, as music or speech, and changes in sound are achieved thru varying the amplitude of the signals. Static can mix in with the load on the carrier wave because it has the same characteristics as the broadcast sounds. [It has been said that radio never has been able to comb the static out of its own hair.]

More Elbow Room Needed.

In frequency modulation, on the other hand, the wave maintains its amplitude at all times, but is always changing frequency—that is, the number of vibrations changes with the change in sounds or voices. Frequency modulation requires more elbow room than standard broadcasting. The broadcast sounds skitter back and forth over a wave band five times as wide as the bands used in amplitude modulation.

The loudness of the sound in F-M is governed by the extent of the wabbling of the carrier wave; the pitch, by the rapidity of the wabbling.

The carrier wave loses its own identity and becomes the radio equivalent of the music. It is not still long enough for static or other noises to mix with it to produce clicks, whines, and whistles. The wave is silent except for the program and during a break in the program there is no hum, as at present. Only silence.

Radio engineers offer an illustrative parallel by saying the existing setup might be likened to an elevator car, running up and down a narrow shaft which it completely fills. The car cannot go elsewhere or wobble in its course.

A One-Way Boulevard.

In the frequency modulation type of broadcasting the elevator becomes an automobile, traveling all alone on a broad one-way boulevard. The automobile can wobble from one curb to the other without interfering with anything or anything getting in its way.

Special receiving sets are required by the new method. In the tests to be conducted by the police department observations will be made with two cars—one equipped with the standard equipment, the other with F-M. Their signals will be compared at points scattered about the city.

The superiority of F-M over standard broadcasting is expected to be fully as great in police radio as on channels already tested. Noises from man made interferences—ignition systems, motors, electric signs—will be greatly reduced, it is expected. Thus, commands and instructions or calls for aid will be more clearly heard.

Now it is difficult to communicate with headquarters from some points in the city. The new system is expected to end this.

A Refugee Brings First Paprika Seed to America

Opelousas, La., Feb. 2 (AP).—When Hitler moved into Austria Arthur Denes, a Jew, fled to America with 200 pounds of paprika pepper seed from fields that had made him a "paprika king"—seed which Horticulturist Julian Miller of Louisiana State university called the first true paprika seed ever to reach this country. Now Denes plans to plant 350 acres of the crop in fertile Louisiana, and is giving the precious seed to his neighbors. Since war has disrupted normal importation from central Europe, Denes thinks he and his neighbors will find a ready market.

LEWIS INSTITUTE ALUMNI OPPOSE ARMOUR MERGER

Charge Will Violation in Suit.

Hearing of a friendly suit seeking court sanction for the merger of Lewis Institute and the Armour Institute of Technology was interrupted yesterday by the filing of an intervening petition opposing the consolidation and asking that it be voided.

Leave to file the petition was granted by Judge Robert Jerome Dunne to Attorney Robert Levin, representing 12 alumni and students of Lewis institute. The petition charged that the merger agreement, announced Oct. 26 by trustees of the two schools, violates several clauses of the will of Allen C. Lewis, founder of Lewis institute. When the institute was incorporated his will became its charter.

Judge John P. Barnes, ready to testify.

One of the will's clauses stipulated that the institute provide a domestic science school for "respectable women." Under the consolidation there would be no home economics courses.

Petitions Cites Financing.

The petition also objected to the merger on the ground that most of the financing would come from Lewis institute, since Armour institute has a comparatively small endowment. The combined endowment funds were estimated at more than 2 million dollars last fall.

The suit being heard by Judge Dunne was filed Nov. 25 by the two boards of trustees. They are seeking an interpretation of Lewis' will and court approval of the merger. Attorney General John Cassidy was named as the nominal defendant.

Two trustees testified yesterday that consolidation would be the salvation of the Lewis institute. Dr. James B. Herrick, professor at Rush Medical school for 50 years and a Lewis trustee for 35, held that the school's financial position was not as rosy as pictured in the intervening petition.

Loss of Rating Told.

"In the last 10 years Lewis institute has stood still," said Dr. Herrick. "It has stagnated. It needed immediate financial help. Armour has five times as many students. The union of the two institutions was regarded as the best method of carrying out Lewis' ideals. Only recently Lewis institute was removed from the list of accredited engineering schools at the instance of a board of examining engineers."

Federal Judge John P. Barnes, a Lewis trustee for three years, said the consolidation would eliminate competition both in the solicitation of funds and in acquiring a student body.

"Men of wealth can be convinced they will get more for their money by contributing to a consolidated school," Judge Barnes said. "A technical high school of today is the equivalent of an engineering school of Lewis' time. The merger would provide the best advanced technical training, which really was Lewis' aim."

Judge Barnes said the consolidated school would be known as the Illinois Institute of Technology, but that the schools would continue to function under their respective names out of respect to the founders.

ACT TO BAR DRUG STORE SALE OF SYPHILIS 'CURES'

Hygiene Body Maps War on Quackery.

A plan for policing the nation's drug stores to prevent the sale of quack remedies for venereal diseases was set in motion yesterday at the concluding session of the American Social Hygiene association's regional conference in the Palmer House.

On Thursday the 300 health, medical, and social welfare leaders attending the conference had heard a half dozen authorities on syphilis control denounce medical and drug store quackery as obstructions in the national program to curb syphilis and gonorrhea.

Self-Treatment Increasing.

These authorities agreed that over the counter prescriptions and self-treatment for venereal disease were increasing in pace with the public awakening to the dangers of syphilis and gonorrhea.

At a luncheon meeting Dr. William F. Snow, chairman of the executive committee of the association, read a resolution calling for the formation of a joint antiquackery committee representing the social hygiene association, the American Pharmaceutical association, the United States public health service, and the American Medical association.

Dr. Snow said that Dr. A. G. Du Mez, president of the pharmaceutical association, has assured him of active coöperation in discouraging the unethical druggist's usurpation of the physician's rôle in the diagnosis and treatment of syphilis.

Druggists' Position Told.

The druggists' viewpoint was expressed at a section meeting on pharmacy and medical practice laws and their enforcement, which introduced the resolution. Dr. Carl N. Neupert of Madison, Wis., said that many druggists who wish to conduct an ethical trade are told by their customers that they have no other place to go for venereal disease treatment.

It was agreed that the health officers and private physicians must provide facilities for examination and treatment within the reach of all and educate the public in when and where to seek competent aid.

Mrs. Margaret Wells Wood, consultant on social hygiene and parent education for the Illinois department of public health, told the conference that public opinion is now ready for establishment of social hygiene and sex education in the public schools.

GOLDBLATT BROS. ORDERED TO HALT BUS LINE SERVICE

The Illinois Commerce commission ordered Goldblatt Brothers yesterday to cease operating a free bus line from Cicero, Berwyn, and Brookfield to their store at 26th street and Turner avenue. It was held that the line is a public utility operated without permission of the commission. Objections to the Goldblatt buses were filed by the three towns and by the elevated and surface lines. The store fought the action on the ground that only customers were carried and that this did not make the service a public utility.

UTILITY PLANS 'DEATH CLAUSE' UNIT DISPOSAL

Will Seek to Sell Stock Control.

Charles True Adams, trustee for the Utilities Power and Light corporation, announced yesterday that early next week he will file a petition with Federal Judge William H. Holly asking authority to request the Securities and Exchange commission for permission to sell its stock holdings in the Indianapolis Power and Light corporation. The deal will involve about 20 million dollars.

Charles True Adams.

The $83,000,000 Indianapolis utility is owned by Utilities Power and Light, Chicago utility holding company now in reorganization. Sale is being made in compliance with the "death sentence" clause of the public utility holding company act.

Utilities Power and Light plans to divest itself of the Indiana company thru its sale of its common stock in the company, all of which now outstanding it owns.

Enters Underwriting Agreement.

An underwriting agreement has been entered into with a large group of investment banking houses headed by Lehman Brothers; Goldman, Sachs & Co., and the First Boston corporation. Among the Chicago houses included is Glore, Forgan & Co. The deal is subject to approval by the SEC.

Besides selling the Utilities Power and Light holding of 645,980 shares, the underwriting group plans to sell 54,020 shares for the company, proceeds from which would be used for working capital and other corporate needs. The parent company in the past has supplied the financial needs of the Indianapolis unit, but with this relationship ended the company would have to stand on its own feet. The sale price of the stock and other details will not be disclosed until just before registration with the SEC becomes effective.

Plan to Sell Stock in State.

Present plans call for the sale of the stock so far as possible in Indianapolis and Indiana, with stock not sold there to be distributed elsewhere. The purpose is to bring the ownership and control of the company within the area in which it operates.

If approved, sale of the Indianapolis company will be the largest transaction entered into for the purpose of complying with the "death sentence" clause.

The financial position of Indianapolis Power and Light is reported to be good. Its fixed charges were lightened about a year ago, when Adams directed a bond refinancing operation which resulted in interest rates being reduced from 5 per cent to an average under 3¾ per cent.

Proceeds from the sale of the Indianapolis Power and Light stock would be used, if an appeal against the reorganization plan is rejected, under the terms of the plan. About 80 per cent of the amount would be used to retire new bonds of the reorganized company.

Company Being Reorganized.

Utilities Power and Light, once a $400,000,000 holding company, has been in reorganization. The plan of the Atlas corporation, New York investment company, for the reorganization recently was approved by the federal court.

Utilities Power and Light recently sold, also in compliance with the public utility holding company act, the Newport Electric corporation, which operates in Newport, R. I. The deal involved about $1,900,000 for the common stock, plus bonds with a face value of about $300,000. This company was sold largely to investors in the area in which it operates.

2,200 SECURITIES TRADERS ADOPT NATIONAL CODE

Edward O. Jones, president of the National Security Traders association, announced yesterday that a code of uniform practice for members of the organization has been declared operative as of Feb. 15. The code was proposed to members six months ago, he said, and has been approved by a large majority.

Besides rules promoting sound trading practices, the code provides regulations for such technicalities of the securities trading business as interest payments and delivery. The regulations, Jones said, represent a step in the policy of self-policing which the association believes will prevent federal regulatory action.

The 2,200 traders who are members of the association will receive copies of the code soon and it will be available to the general public at the association's Chicago office.

Canadian Bond Flotations Unusually Large for Month

New York, Feb. 2 [Special].—New Canadian bond financing for January totaled $263,511,537, the largest volume for that month since 1936, according to figures compiled by Wood, Gundy & Co., Ltd. Of the total $201,351,537 was for new money and $62,160,000 for refunding. For the same month last year, total financing amounted to $75,564,500, and in 1938 to $108,227,024.

Federal Deficit Near 2½ Billion for 7 Months

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The treasury ran up a deficit of $2,421,682,471 in the first seven months of the fiscal year which will end June 30.

The treasury said that at the end of January it had spent $5,480,461,413 and had taken in, in taxes and other revenue only $3,058,778,942. In the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year the deficit was $1,987,153,408 because receipts were slightly higher and expenditures somewhat lower than this year.

President Roosevelt has estimated the deficit will total $4,032,813,641 by June 30.

Increases Offset WPA Drop.

Higher national defense and departmental costs accounted for the increased expenditures so far this fiscal year because these increases more than offset a decline in WPA spending from $1,365,330,113 in the first seven months of the previous fiscal year to $856,682,852 in a similar period this year.

Revenues lagged behind last year's collections because of lower income tax collections. All other major income sources were larger than last year.

Borrows Billion 670 Millions.

In the seven months, the treasury said, it has borrowed $1,670,219,258 to pay for most of the deficit, boosting the public debt to the near record total of $42,109,751,669.

4 SCANDINAVIAN NATIONS SEEK AIR LINE TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—Representatives of a Scandinavian air mission presented to officials of the state department, postoffice department, and the Civil Aeronautics authority today their plans for a trans-Atlantic air service between the United States and Scandinavia.

The state department, where the Scandinavians met with American officials, said that the plan contemplated organization of an international company, jointly operated by the Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, and Finnish national air lines.

The Scandinavians seek an air line over the North Atlantic via Iceland, because of the overland delay now experienced between Scandinavia and Lisbon, Portugal, the terminus of the American trans-Atlantic Clipper service.

SEC TO PROBE $80,000 FEE PAID DILLON, READ BY NATURAL GAS FIRM

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission today called a hearing to determine the propriety of an $80,000 fee allegedly paid by the Northern Natural Gas company to Dillon, Read & Co. for handling the sale of $16,000,000 worth of bonds last August.

The commission, which reserved jurisdiction about payment of the fee when it permitted the bonds of the midwestern pipeline firm to be sold, said that the hearing, on March 4, would determine whether the New York banking firm got the fee after "arms length bargaining."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Offering of the Dayton Power and Light company's $25,000,000 of 3 per cent first mortgage bonds on Wednesday, as originally scheduled, was assured today when the Securities and Exchange commission accepted an offer by Morgan Stanley & Co., principal underwriters, to impound the underwriting fees until the pending proceedings have reached a conclusion.

JOB INSURANCE LIBERALIZATION URGED BY BOARD

Pay 987 Millions in Social Security.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Liberalization of unemployment insurance benefits was urged today in the annual report to congress of the Social Security board, which reported 987 million dollars in payments to individuals during the year ended June 30, 1939.

These payments included those under federal and state plans. The total included $526,600,000 in payments from federal, state, and local funds to recipients of public assistance in states collaborating in the program; $446,100,000 in unemployment benefits received by employés under state laws; and $14,300,000 in lump sum payments from federal funds to aged employés, or their estates, under the federal old-age insurance program.

Other Millions Granted.

In addition, there were federal grants totaling $58,800,000 for the administration of state plans. The federal government also paid approximately half of the $411,500,000 which was paid to needy aged persons under state plans.

The total federal expenditures under the social security act were $844,621,000, distributed as follows: Administrative expenses, $21,306,000; grants to states, $320,315,000, and $503,000,000 in pay roll taxes which were transferred to the old age reserve account, meaning investment in the treasury's I. O. U.'s in the form of special 3 per cent certificates.

During the three year period ended June 30, 1939, cumulative pay roll tax collections were 1 billion 238 million dollars, of which a total of 1 billion 177 million dollars was "invested" in the treasury I. O. U.'s. Interest on these amounted to nearly 45 million dollars. More than 19 millions had been distributed in lump sum payments during these years.

In recommending liberalization of unemployment insurance payments, the board said they should be made to cover longer periods of a wage earner's enforced idleness where continued experience in a state shows that contributions exceed the amount required to finance present provisions of the state law.

All States Pay Benefits.

Unemployment benefits are now payable in all states since payments began last July 1 in Illinois and Montana. A supplementary report showed that unemployment benefits of more than 140 million dollars were paid in the four months, July to October, inclusive, in addition to the 446 millions for the 1939 fiscal year.

The board stated that when present conditions result in an unnecessary accumulation of funds, the states should give "serious and continued consideration" to the feasibility of liberalizing the benefits payable under state laws. At the close of the 1939 fiscal year there was a total of 1 billion 300 million dollars available for benefit payments, according to the board.

Average benefit payments between April and June last year were $10.13 weekly for total unemployment, and $5.44 for partial unemployment. Most state plans provide compensation for from 12 to 14 weeks.

Labor Demands More.

Both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have been demanding liberalization of existing plans to provide more compensation per week and longer benefit periods. The A. F. of L., for instance, is seeking payments of $24 a week for 20 weeks and uniformity thruout the nation.

The board said that while the present coverage affords some degree of protection to about 28 million employés, it still fails to reach large groups because of exclusions. It suggested that the state laws be extended to include small concerns. The federal tax provision is now applicable only to employers of eight or more persons.

LABOR COSTS HIT BY JACK WARNER AT FILM PARLEY

Altho costs have increased fourfold in four years, Warner Bros. Pictures will maintain its 1940 production budget on the present high level, Jack L. Warner, vice president, said yesterday at the Blackstone hotel. He is in Chicago to attend a meeting today to discuss the production program with the sales force.

Warner said the schedule calls for pictures to be made at costs ranging from $350,000 to $2,500,000. Commenting on the increased costs, Warner said that one of the company's most successful pictures from a box office point of view cost $175,000 and the same picture with the same cast today would cost $750,000.

Warner said that the greatest factor contributing to the higher costs has been the labor item. Managements are forced to pay large amounts needlessly in meeting the extravagant demands of labor, he said.

Auto Field Stocks High; Week's Output Is 101,240

Automobile production this week was estimated yesterday by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 101,240 units, compared with 106,400 last week and 78,410 a year ago. The sizable increase in field stocks during January has resulted in a sharp curtailment of manufacturing schedules for February, Ward's said.

Federal Quiz Is Ordered on Associated Gas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2.—Attorney General Robert H. Jackson tonight ordered a federal grand jury investigation into the affairs of the Associated Gas and Electric company system, a billion dollar utility organization, which recently filed a petition in bankruptcy.

Jackson announced that he had appointed Hugh A. Fulton, executive assistant to John T. Cahill, United States attorney for the southern district of New York to conduct a grand jury investigation into the business of Associated Gas, its affiliates and subsidiaries.

"The investigation will be carried on with a view of ascertaining whether those participating in the management or financing of such affairs have violated any federal criminal law," the announcement from the justice department said.

Jackson Explains Appointment.

Jackson explained that he had appointed Fulton at the request of Cahill, because the latter felt unqualified. The law firm of which he was formerly a partner had on one or two occasions acted as counsel in situations involving the affairs of some of the system's subsidiaries.

Associated Gas and Electric company, top holding company in the system, and its principal subsidiary holding concern, Associated Gas and Electric corporation, filed petitions for reorganization under chapter 10 of the bankruptcy law in federal court at Utica, N. Y., the early part of last month. On Tuesday the proceedings were ordered transferred to the southern district of New York.

Roger J .Whiteford, newly elected president of the top holding company, blamed the action upon an orde. of the Securities and Exchange commission which cut off the company's principal source of income, leaving it with no ready cash to pay $262,400 in interest due Jan. 15 on some of its debentures.

Three Federal Agencies Interested.

Three branches of the federal government are interested in the system's affairs. They are the SEC, the justice department, and the treasury, which is one of the company's biggest creditors thru tax liens against the company of $5,700,000 up to 1933 and an undetermined amount since then.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has already indicated that he would have no objection to the SEC being appointed trustee, which it may be under the law.

"A federal grand jury, among other things, will be able to reach the books of certain personal holding companies of officers and directors of the system, which books have hitherto not been examined by the federal authorities," said the announcement in explaining Jackson's order.

Securities Are Widely Held.

The department further pointed out that the system is capitalized at more than 1 billion dollars and that its securities are held by "hundreds of thousands of investors thruout the nation."

Associated Gas and Electric corporation controls nearly all of the system's 172 operating and subholding concerns, and its dividend and interest payments are almost the only source of income for the Associated Gas and Electric company, which owns the entire capital stock of the corporation. It was the action of the SEC forbidding the corporation to pay dividends on the stock and $557,000 in interest on a $71,805,120 note held by the company which brought on the reorganization petitions.

NEW YORK LIFE ADDS 37 MILLION INSURANCE IN '39

The New York Life Insurance company's total insurance in force at the end of 1939 was $6,830,834,796, Thomas A. Buckner, chairman of the board of the mutual company, said yesterday in a preliminary statement of 1939 operations. This represented an increase of $37,008,487 over the end of 1938, and established a new record for the company.

Assets increased $114,823,771 to $2,762,278,483, while liabilities amounted to $2,636,639,461. Included in liabilities was the sum of $39,216,872 for dividends payable to policyholders in 1940.

The Motor Vehicle Casualty company, Chicago, reported total admitted assets of $1,083,680 as of Dec. 31, 1939. At the end of 1939 total admitted assets were $1,036,144.

SECOND LARGEST OIL WELL IN STATE RUNS 7,380 BARRELS IN DAY

Centralia, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—The second largest oil well in Illinois produced 7,380 barrels in a 24 hour test completed late today. Drilled by John R. Mitchell, the well is in the Lake Centralia-Salem field and a half mile northeast of the Paul Rossi well, which came in yesterday to set an indicated all-time record for Illinois production.

Both wells are from the Devonian lime, the fifth producing level in the field, and both are in section 29, near Selmaville. The Rossi well is two miles southwest of Selmaville in the heart of the lake field. A number of 6,000 barrel wells are producing from the Devonian and McClosky formations in this section. The Rossi well, which flowed at a steady rate of 425 barrels an hour for three hours and is considered capable of more than 12,000 barrels daily, was choked down today in preparation for a 24 hour test tomorrow.

SEC RESTRICTS UTILITY DIVIDEND TO PRIOR STOCK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission today authorized the International Utilities corporation to pay a quarterly 87.5 cents per share dividend on its $3.50 prior preferred stock, but withheld authorization which the company also asked for payment of a 43.75 cents per share dividend on its $1.75 preferred stock.

The commission found that during 1940 the company probably would earn enough to meet its dividends on the $3.50 prior preferred stock and that this payment was acceptable.

On the other preferred stock, however, the commission said "there are additional factors to be considered and the record is not yet complete. The commission reserves jurisdiction as to its approval of this payment."

The authorized dividend, payable Feb. 1, will total $86,597, and the postponed dividend would have amounted to $29,160.

The company had to get permission on both dividends because it intended making the payments out of "capital on unearned surplus," which is prohibited except with commission approval under the 1935 public utility act.

REYNOLDS METALS PLANS LARGEST ENGRAVING PLANT

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 2 (AP).—R. S. Reynolds, president of the Reynolds Metals company, announced today the corporation would establish the largest photo engraving plant in the world here. The company manufactures a variety of foil products, including labels, cartons, decorative coverings, and advertising displays.

Reynolds said expansion of the Louisville division would provide employment for 1,200 additional persons with an annual pay roll of $2,500,000. The new factory will start filling an order for the French government at once, Reynolds said.

The company announced purchase of the former plant of the Ford Motor company and Reynolds said 10 carloads of machinery would be moved into the building tomorrow.

The expansion move, Reynolds said, marks establishment of Louisville as western headquarters of the company's label and wrapping gravure work previously done only in Harrison, N. J.

O. K. Chicago-Kansas City Air Line Excursion Rates

The Civil Aeronautics authority yesterday granted Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., permission to put in effect new low rates for excursion trips between Chicago and Kansas City, Vincent P. Conroy, vice president in charge of traffic for the air line, announced. Effective from Feb. 12 to April 30, the line will reduce round-trip fares by nearly one-third. They will be subject to a 15-day return limit.

Sears' Sales Set Record for Fiscal Year

Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest mail order firm, yesterday reported sales for the fiscal year ended Jan. 29 at the highest point in its history.

Gross sales for the period, the company reported, reach $657,061,593, a gain of $122,320,166, or 22.9 per cent over the $534,741,427 total of the corresponding period a year earlier. They also were $84,187,492 larger than the $572,874,101 sales for the fiscal year ended Jan. 29, 1938, previous peak.

January Sales Set Record.

Sales during the four weeks ended the same date also were the highest for the January period on record, the company reported. Gross sales from Jan. 2 to Jan. 29 were $37,767,394, against $31,496,864 in the preceding year. This represented an increase of $6,270,530, or 19.9 per cent.

The four week period, the company said, included one more day than the corresponding period of last year, as Jan. 2, 1939, was a holiday. The additional day's sales were credited with increasing the total approximately five per cent.

Department Store Sales Rise.

Meanwhile, department store sales in the seventh federal reserve district [Chicago] increased 9.2 per cent over a year earlier during the week ended Jan. 27, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Sales were up 5.4 per cent, the report disclosed, in the four weeks ended the same date.

Chicago department stores pressed ahead of the district rise and sales were up 10.3 per cent over 1939 levels during the week and 6.5 per cent during the four week period.

Department store sales thruout the nation were reported as four per cent higher during both the week and four weeks.

COURT APPROVES 1940 BUDGET OF ROCK ISLAND RY.

Approval has been given by federal court for the Rock Island railroad's $7,486,000 budget for improvements to roadways and structures, E. M. Durham Jr. said yesterday. Of the total $4,339,000 is chargeable to capital account and $3,147,000 to operating expenses.

The budget provides for 26,500 tons of new rail and fastenings; 22,400 tons of second hand relay rail and 285,000 cubic yards of ballast. Other items include $1,471,000 for bridge improvements, $409,000 for signaling, $243,000 for station improvements, and $381,000 for shops, power plants, shop machinery, and tools.

Major items in the equipment improvement program include modernization of 10 passenger locomotives, including installation of roller bearings; installation of roller bearing on 30 freight engines, and improvement of a substantial number of freight cars.

TWO AMERICAN FIRMS GIVEN CONCESSIONS TO DEVELOP GREEK POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 2. — The Hugh L. Cooper company and the Chemical Construction corporation of New York have been granted a 70 year concession to develop hydroelectric and chemical resources in Greece.

The work is to comprise hydroelectric installations for the exploitation of the waterfalls on the Achelous river which will generate from 68,000 to 136,000 horse power for a minimum of from 410,000,000 to 820,000,000 kilowatt hours.

This power will be utilized firstly for the electrometallurgical industries, such as aluminum, magnesium, etc., the raw materials of which are abundantly available in Greece; secondly for the electrochemical industries, chiefly ammonia and nitrogen products; and thirdly for light and traction in many districts, including Athens.

Ten million dollars capital has been invested and the Greek government has guaranteed payment of dividends in dollars for the duration of the concession.

United Fruit Profits Rise Despite War

The United Fruit company, supplier of 65 per cent of the world's bananas and substantial quantities of other tropical agricultural products, yesterday reported its 1939 net income increased to $14,101,929 in 1939, equaling $4.86 a common share. In 1938 net income was $10,272,746, or $3.54 a share.

Samuel Zemurray.

The increase in profits, according to Samuel Zemurray, president, occurred despite "war conditions which necessarily affected the company's business."

"Market conditions for bananas in the United States and Canada were good, and were satisfactory in Europe until war was declared there," Zemurray said.

Foreign Fleet Still Active.

Despite "more difficult operations," the company's British fleet, consisting of 23 of the 90 or more steamships operated by United Fruit, is continuing to transport bananas from Africa and South America to the United Kingdom. About 9 per cent of the company's net assets is invested in ships under the registry of belligerent nations, Zemurray said.

Four of the German fleet's six vessels are tied up in German ports, one was wrecked on the Scandinavian coast, and one was transferred to Honduran registry.

The company's inventory increased from $8,499,913 at the end of 1938 to $12,082,717 at the end of 1939, due mainly to its large development program. In 1939 a total of $17,795,840 was spent for additions to fixed properties.

Appropriations for capital expenditures in 1940 were $10,804,332, in addition to which $4,034,466 remains unexpended from previous appropriations.

Woolworth Earnings Increase.

The F. W. Woolworth company announced yesterday that its earnings in 1939 increased in spite of the effects of the European war on its income from overseas operations.

Profit of the company and its Canadian subsidiary for the year ended Dec. 31 rose to $29,310,353, equal to $3.02 a common share on the capital stock, from $28,584,944, or $2.95 a share in 1938.

The 1939 income account did not include dividends and undistributed surplus earnings of the German subsidiary totaling about $2,210,886.

Increased domestic sales and steady profit margins more than offset the decline in dollar earnings of foreign units, the company said. The parent company took the foreign profits in sterling, declining rates for which reduced the dollar totals.

British Unit Earns Less.

Income from British operations was $10,222,314, compared with $11,673,324 in 1938. Of the $10,222,314 earnings, $8,715,675 was in dividends and $1,506,638 was undistributed profits.

Standard Brands, Inc., food distributing company, had consolidated net income of $7,356,308 in 1939, equal to 51 cents a share on the common stock. In the preceding year it earned $8,721,305, or 62 cents a share. Profit in the three months ended Dec. 31 was $2,253,446, or 16 cents a share, against $2,531,251, or 18 cents a share in the last 1938 quarter.

Fitz Simons & Connell Dredge and Dock company, Chicago engineering and contracting concern, reported net income for 1939 of $80,600, equal to $1.30 a share, against $3,756, or 6 cents a share, in 1938. The company's working capital was increased $83,108 during the year.

A. T. & T. Reports January Gain of 94,000 Phones

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—American Telephone and Telegraph company reported today a gain during January of about 94,000 telephones in service, bringing the total to about 16,630,200. The gain in the previous month was 80,800, and in January, 1939, it was 65,400.

STOCKS SO DULL BROKERS SEEK WAYS TO EXIST

'Change Seats Sell Lowest Since 1918.

New York, Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Members of the New York Stock Exchange had three matters to worry about today at the end of what has become a customary dull trading day.

First was the sale of a stock exchange membership for $48,000, the lowest price since 1918, when a seat sold for as low as $45,000. Members recalled the record price of $625,000 in the booming days of 1929, and the high of $495,000 ex-rights in the same year after the number of seats had been increased from 1,100 to 1,275.

Second was a request from the stock exchange asking members for suggestions as to how they could balance the budget and at the same time build up a reserve fund to meet unusual or emergency situations. About the only answer was higher commissions, and the members fear higher commissions will drive business away.

Third was a trading volume that barely exceeded 514,000 shares.

Need Million Shares Daily.

It is generally understood that for brokerage houses to be on a profitable basis the volume must total at least 1,000,000 shares a day. The average for months has been about 600,000 shares a day. On only two days this year, Jan. 2 and 3, did sales exceed 1,000,000 shares and then only slightly.

The seat sold at $48,000 was the third to be posted today. The first was sold for $53,000, off $6,000 from the preceding sale, and the second was sold for $52,000.

[Arrangements were completed yesterday for the sale of a membership in the Chicago Stock exchange at $1,500. This is $300 lower than the previous sale.]

The decline in prices of seats was a reflection of the reduced volume of business available to be shared by the various stock exchange houses. The amount of business in January was the lowest for that month since 1922.

Firms Forced to Merge.

The scarcity of business has been responsible for the consolidation of many houses which have taken that step in an effort to cut down expenses. Brokerage houses have been forced to cut down their staffs to such an extent that on the few recent occasions when business has been lively they have had to scramble to handle it.

Recognizing the situation, a committee recommending establishment of a special fund of $5,000,000 to handle emergency situations asked the members to submit recommendations. The committee said the principal sources thru which additional revenue could be obtained are a direct levy on the members and assessments on members based on the volume of transactions made by each member. It acknowledged that "neither the members of the exchange nor member firms are in a position to bear additional charges without increased income."

Stock Continues Irregular.

The market continued to show little in the way of a trend yesterday. A few issues, including steels, aircraft, and certain specialties, moved somewhat higher, but numerous other issues declined. Gains of two points for some of the favorites were sharply reduced at the close.

The fact that only a few issues were selected for buying was explained as being due to the choosiness of the purchasers seeking shares that might be in a position to gain from the war.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic held modest gains at the close of trading. Among the automobile shares, General Motors gained ⅛ and Chrysler dropped ¼.

Aviation shares stood out among the leaders as orders from the warring nations of Europe continued to flood the manufacturing companies.

New York Bonds.

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—United States government bonds continued their slow climb today in a "dead level" loan market. Gains in no case topped 5/32 point, but the inching-forward process was a direct continuation of the movement which began Wednesday.

Corporate issues, except for a few utilities, closed the session almost exactly where they ended yesterday. Leading exceptions included Portland General Electric 4½s, up 1⅝ at 74⅜; International Hydro-Electric 6s, up ⅝ at 73¼; Commonwealth Edison convertible 3½s, up ¼ at 128⅛; and Consolidated Edison 3½s, up ⅛ at 107¼.

The average of foreign government dollar loans declined, despite small gains for issues of Belgium, Buenos Aires, Canada, Germany and Japan.

Chicago Stocks.

Prices were mixed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in the transfer of 17,000 shares in 102 issues. Thirty-nine finished higher than the previous close, 30 lower and 33 unchanged. Volume leaders included Commonwealth Edison, which closed ⅛ higher at 32¼ on transfers of 2,150 shares. Swift was unchanged at 22⅝. Berghoff Brewing reached a new high at 11¼, up ⅛.

Bank Stocks.

Declines dominated the bank stock market yesterday with Harris Trust down two points to 295 and First National off an equal amount to 243. Continental Illinois closed at a bid of 88, down 1½ points, while City National and Northern Trust each dropped a point. Chicago Title and Trust advanced one to 120. Other issues were steady.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The range of prices for hogs widened abruptly yesterday as demand for well finished new crop hogs expanded, while "lard hogs" came under pressure. The latter ruled weak to 10 cents lower, closing at the bottom. Top 190 to 210 pound averagers moved up 5 cents to $5.65, with some of these kinds showing 10 cents gain at the start of trading.

Lamb offerings were cleaned up quickly at steady to 10 cents higher prices yesterday. Hardly enough cattle arrived to establish quotations somewhat. However, demand was narrow and the scant supply brought barely steady rates. No choice steers arrived.

ASSAIL MONTHLY INVENTORY CALL UPON BUSINESS

Congressmen to Fight Federal Order.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 [Special].—A congressional fight was developing today against the new demand of the department of commerce for monthly reports on inventories from a large "cross-section" of the manufacturing industry. Influential Republicans and Democrats in both houses assailed the undertaking as an impediment to business or another blow against free enterprise."

Senator McNary.

Sen. Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.] minority leader of the upper house, declared he was against the undertaking "because it places an added strain on business."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin [R., Mass.], house Republican leader, promised to oppose the plan when the commerce department appropriation is reported, probably next week.

Rabout Raps Red Tape.

Rep. Louis Rabout [D., Dich.], acting chairman of the subcommittee of the house appropriations committee dealing with the commerce department appropriation, was emphatic in asserting that "we don't want any such red tape wrapped about business."

"I am against this program," Sen. McNary said. "I thought that every possible method of hampering industry had been used. I don't see how there will be any time for carrying on business if a monthly report on inventories is to be made, in addition to the other reports already required."

Martin said: "This is a forceful illustration of why we are prevented from having recovery despite conditions long warranting it. If we continue with all these reports, which are merely to obtain an excuse for some new action against business, we will find that there is no such thing as free enterprise left in the country."

Harrison for Careful Study.

Sen. Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance commitee, said all such projects should be studied carefully.

"I see no reason why such a project should not be carried out if the cost is moderate and if it does not place an undue strain on business," he said. "If the program goes further than seeking information to aid the government and business, however, it is bad."

The commerce department has sent out 1,800 questionnaires to leading manufacturers asking for detailed information on inventories. Results of one poll already are tabulated, and another is about to go out. The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce plans to ask for such reports monthly.

Land Bank Commissioner's Lending Powers Extended

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—President Roosevelt signed today a bill extending the lending authority of the land bank commissioner until June 1, 1942. Previous authority expired Thursday. These loans, considered important in the refinancing of farm-mortgage indebtedness and the financing of farm purchases since 1933, may be continued under the legislation with funds already available to the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation.

JOHNSON & JOHNSON BUYS ITS BIG LEASED PLANT IN CLEARING

Johnson & Johnson, one of the world's largest makers of surgical dressings, yesterday bought the plant at 4949 West 65th street in Clearing which it has occupied under lease. It is said to have been one of the largest real estate deals in the Clearing industrial district in the last 10 years.

The purchase included 448,000 square feet of land and a plant containing 322,000 square feet of floor space. The price was not disclosed. The company also took a two year option on 175,000 square feet of land adjoining the plant on the east. The new factory now being built at 4951 West 66th street, where gas masks will be made for the government, was not included in yesterday's purchase.

The decision to locate permanently in the Chicago area follows seven years during which the company's midwest business has grown steadily.

ALLEGHANY OUT ON LIMB AS C. & O. RAIL WAR LOOMS

Bond Collateral Drop Threatens Its Vote.

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—The power of the Alleghany corporation to vote its big holdings of Chesapeake & Ohio railway stock at the annual meeting of the road's shareholders was left in doubt today.

A quarterly appraisal of securities, including large blocks of C. & O common, behind Alleghany's three 5 per cent bond issues showed less than the 150 per cent valuation necessary to give the top company voting control of the C. & O. shares pledged as collateral.

Under the bond indentures, the market value of the collateral must be at least 150 per cent of the face value of the Alleghany issues before the bond trustees can release the stock.

Weakens Young's Position.

The appraisal, it was pointed out in financial circles, apparently weakened the position of Robert R. Young, chairman of Alleghany, in a threatened proxy fight for control of the railroad at the annual meeting, scheduled April 23 at Richmond.

However, Alleghany may demand another appraisal at any time and was expected to do so if a rise in security markets strengthened its position before the meeting.

The Guaranty Trust company, trustee for the 1944 issue, valued the collateral behind it at 139.9 per cent of the face value as of yesterday, compared with 144 per cent Nov. 1. The collateral includes 1,056,000 shares of C. & O. common out of a total of 7,657,000 C. & O. shares.

1949 Collateral 132.2 Per Cent.

The Continental Bank and Trust company, trustee for the issue due in 1949, valued the collateral at 132.21 per cent of the value compared with 138.3 on Nov. 3. Included in the securities held by the trustee behind the loan are 690,000 shares of C. & O. common.

The management slate of directors for submission to shareholders is expected to be named at a board meeting Feb. 19, either at Richmond or Cleveland.

The Young forces have indicated their decision on a proxy contest may depend largely on the personnel of the management's slate.

OFFER PROGRAM FOR MERCHANTS' MARKETING WEEK

The program for the 37th semiannual convention of the Interstate Merchants council, which will open in Chicago Monday, was announced yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce, which is sponsoring the meeting and related trade shows.

The council, representing retailers and department store owners or buyers from 35 states and several Canadian provinces, is the retail affiliate of the Chicago commerce group.

More than 18,000 merchants and buyers will be in the city to spend millions of dollars for apparel, gifts, and other items for the Easter and spring trade, the association said.

Hold Spring Market Week.

Spring market week will be a part of the program, with 2,200 Chicago firms holding their individual spring openings and 900 out of town lines being displayed. Twenty trade shows are on the schedule.

The convention program calls for a beginning of registration at the Hotel Sherman at 8:30 a. m. Monday. On Tuesday, starting at 7:45 a. m., a breakfast clinic for buyers and merchants interested in infants' and children's wear will be held at the Merchandise Mart.

The council's banquet will be held at the grand ballroom of Hotel Sherman starting at 6:30 p. m. on Tuesday. Louis A. Jacques, Rockford, Ill., department store executive and president of the merchants' council, will be the chairman of the banquet.

Speakers at Banquet.

The speakers will be L. S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the Peoples church of Chicago. The association's glee club, conducted by Dr. Herbert E. Hyde, will be presented.

A women's wear and accessories breakfast clinic will be held at the Merchandise Mart on Wednesday morning, and a breakfast clinic for corset merchants and buyers is on the convention program for Thursday morning.

Related market events, many of which will last thru the following week, include style shows, a wash apparel show, an eastern importers' and manufacturers' exhibit, a luggage show, and a boat and sports show.

COCA-COLA.

I am a coke fan, have read articles about Coca-Cola but I have not seen a brief description of the company's financial make-up and the way it operates. I would appreciate such a report.—K. F.

Answer: Tho popularly thought to be a manufacturer of a soft drink, the Coca-Cola company actually prepares only a sirup made mainly from sugar. The sirup is sold in bulk form mostly to five bottling companies, which then resell it to about 1,200 local bottling firms operating under Coca-Cola franchises. The remainder of the sirup not sold within the Coca-Cola organization is distributed to jobbers who serve soda fountains.

Coca-Cola was introduced in the United States in 1886, when 25 gallons were sold. Sales expanded rapidly under the impetus of persistent advertising and effective merchandising methods. The drink is now sold in numerous foreign countries as well as in the United States.

The sirup is manufactured in 14 factories in this country, Cuba, and Canada. These factories, it is estimated, consume about 200 million pounds of sugar a year, making Coca-Cola the world's largest buyer of sugar.

Coca-Cola company owns more than 20 subsidiaries but is itself an operating company. It has outstanding 600,000 shares of $3 cumulative Class A stock and 3,991,900 shares of common stock, both of no par value. The company has no funded debt. The largest stockholder in the company is Coca-Cola International corporation, which owns about one-third of Coca-Cola company's stock.

The growth of the company's earnings since 1932 has been steady. Instead of dwindling during the depression years, the company's profits have been higher since 1934 than in the period before 1929. In fact, 1938 net income was about twice that of 1929, and the latest reported 1939 net income was far ahead of corresponding 1938 earnings.

Consolidated net income, earnings per common share, and dividends per common share of the Coca-Cola company and subsidiaries compared as follows in recent years:

	Net income	Earned per share	Dividends per share
1934	$14,329,000	$12.49	$ 7.00
1935	15,804,000	3.48	*6.75
1936	20,398,000	4.66	4.00
1937	24,682,000	5.73	4.50
1938	25,571,000	5.95	4.50

Net income in the first nine months of 1939 rose to $23,747,597, equal to $5.61 a common share, from $21,125,708, or $4.95 a share. Dividends of $5 a share were paid on the common stock in 1939. Regular dividends were paid on the Class A stock.
